BETTER THAN PILLS.

The Gymnasium Has Cured Many a Case of Dyspepsia.

William H. Everts used to boast that he had never even looked into a gymnasium, which was his way of saying that in his opinion gymnastics were all nonsense. "People say to me, 'Mr. Everts, you're hale and hearty when you ought to be thinking of your grave,' and they wonder how I do it."

Of course the secret of the hale-ness and the heartiness was temperance—moderation, says the New York News. No man who goes to bed on a supper of mince pie and Welsh rarebit and wakes up for a breakfast of sausage and buckwheat cakes and then spends most of the day twisting from one side of a desk to the other, can long avoid the prescription of hot water thrice a day before meals. "Temperance" is one of the words that are ridiculed until they impress themselves upon giddy humanity with the effect of a branding iron.

Some happy mortals like Mr. Everts have no use for a gymnasium, for they find gymnastic apparatus everywhere. The street is their half mile track; the two flights of steps, or may be 10 flights—are the lung developers; the free and vigorous swing of the arms and the throwing out of the chest are as good as parallel bars.

There are men somewhat intemperate in their temperance, displaying too much of the good thing. They crack your knuckles when they take you by the hand; they pound you on the back as if a fishbone were stuck in your throat, and say, "Brace up, old man; you'll be round shouldered if you don't take care."

But there is this to be said in favor of the gymnasium—it has cured many a case of dyspepsia and to that extent has made the world sweeter.

DOING A GREAT DEED.

How Phillips Brooks Sobered Down a Too Aspiring Youth.

When Boston's great preacher, Phillips Brooks, was a student at college, he decided to enter the ministry. His instructors advised him against this step because of an impediment in speech. "The professors had all the argument on their side," said the famous clergyman years after, when by patient effort he had gained control of his voice, "but naturally I could not protest, for words failed me."

To this preacher's study there came one day a youth, physically perfect, ambitious for honor and looking for a short cut up the road to success. He intimated that he wished to do some great thing better than it could be done by any one else.

Phillips Brooks wrote rapidly upon a piece of paper while his visitor was speaking, sealed it in an envelope and then suggested that the note be read when the man reached home. "The letter read: 'Stand in the moonlight and you will cast a shadow. No man can cast a shadow just like it.'"

The young man realized that the preacher had made his honest ambition seem ridiculous, but made another attempt. On the original letter he wrote, "Possibly, but I desire that the deed I do be of benefit to my fellow men."

Back came the original letter, with these words added: "Then stand in the sunlight and permit the workman to eat his lunch in your shadow."

Two Big Unions to Amalgamate.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 27.—The annual convention of the Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' International Union began in this city today with about 150 delegates present from various parts of the United States and Canada. The convention, which will be in session a week or longer, is regarded as of great importance in labor circles owing to the general expectation that it will see the consummation of the project to unite the organization with the Sheet Metal Workers' National Alliance. The rivalry between these two organizations of the same craftsmen has for some years militated against the welfare of both. The amalgamation will be due largely to the efforts of the American Federation of Labor.
