SCHOOL DIRECTORS

MEETING OF THE BOARD DOES NOTHING DEFINITE.

Discuss the Question of Sites and Resources—Are a Unit in Favor of Retaining the High School.

The board of directors for the Pendleton public schools met in regular session last evening in Dr. C. J. Smith's office. After the routine work of the session was disposed of the board discussed the question of increasing school house facilities. Nothing definite was done, as the matter is very hazy in perspective, and the action of the people in regard to the school question is very much in doubt.

Many of those who were opposed to the issuance of bonds at the last election are now agitating the abolition of the high school. They contend that should the high school be abolished there would be room for all the rest of the students in the building, made vacant in that manner.

As there is a director to be elected in June, and as the matter of the high school will then come up for discussion and disposal, the board was loath to take any decided stand in the matter of increasing the seating capacity of the schools.

The term of Dr. C. J. Smith as a director, will expire in June, and an election will be held to provide for his successor, and it is expected that the matter of the high school will be finally settled at that time. The board as a unit, are in favor of retaining the advanced grades in the present system, but in view of the agitation of the anti-bond people the question is in doubt. When the situation has cleared some definite action will be taken, but whether the board will attempt to provide an entire new building or to simply authorize an addition to one of the present structures is not known.

INVENT A TIMBER SAW.

A Device Valuable to the Lumber Interests.

C. E. Balesby and E. B. Barley, of this city, have perfected a unique invention and left this morning for Meacham, where they have the contract for sawing logs for the Minnis lumber and logging interests of that place. The affair is a large swinging steam saw hung on a derrick and intended to saw the forest trees as they are found in the woods, cutting them into the lengths required for shipping. The forest trees are felled and stripped of their limbs, then skidded to the saw, where they are cut into lengths.

The saw has been tested and found to work satisfactorily at the foundry. If it does good work in actual operation, the owners and inventors expect to mow the mountains hereabouts.

The latter has had to relinquish his position owing to the demands of his business upon his time. "Bob" Brown needs no introduction to the people of Pendleton. He will play in the team and at the same time manage the boys in their march toward victory. Mr. Brown is a good business man and a baseball man, and will lead the team to success.
