FOR EIGHT HOUR LAW.

noral War on Labor

Washington, D. C., May 16.—Already the campaign for another eight hour bill has been begun by the American Federation of Labor. An eminent lawyer has been engaged to draw a measure, one that will be constitutional if possible. It is the intention of the labor leaders to have this bill pass muster with the committee on education and labor of the senate, the senate itself and even the president. And further, the president is to be urged through all pressure that can be brought to bear upon him to endorse this proposed act in ans next annual mesage.

At the same time the National Association of Manufacturers have begun active preparations to beat, not only this bill, but also the anti-conspiracy bill, which would legalize a picket around any manufacturing plant. Advices received from every section of the country indicate that the labor organizations and the manufacturers are working with might and main to increase their strength to the maximum in preparation for the coming struggle, which it is conceded on all sides, will be a fight to a finish.

Epworth League's Observance.

New York, May 16.—Tomorrow all the Epworth Leagues throughout the world will observe the fourteenth anniversary of the organization. The leagues have quite appropriately decided to combine with the celebration an observance of the bi-centenary of John Wesley and the Methodist church. A uniform program of exercises will be carried out by all the societies. The program selected consists of addresses eulogizing the life, character and work of the founder of Methodism, the addresses to be interspersed with hymns by Charles Wesley.

THE PEACEABLE MAN.

Nobody sings of the peaceable man Toiling and doing the best that he can.

Pretty good fellow, the neighbors all Ready to smile on the children at play:

Doing his duty without laying claim To special rewards as to fortune or fame, Helping the needy to save or to plan;

Nobody sings of the peacable man

A song for the hero who goes to the fray And strives to shoot heroes who stand in his way; A song for the monarch who sits on the throne And seeks to add other men's lands to his own.

A song to the magnate, the prince of finance, leaves to his small, struggling rival no chance, Here's a rousing refrain to the strenuous clan;

Nobody sings of the peacable man.

The Man He Wanted.

Senator Clark, of Montana, had oc-casion once out in Helena to hire a carriage driver. The roads were mountainous, and a skillful man was needed. On the appointed day the needed. On the appointed day the candidates for the position appeared. "You know where the road runs along the mountain, with the hill on one side and a gorge on the other, five miles from here?" asked Senator Clark, and all the men nodded affirm the street of the candidate of the candidates of the atively. "How near can you go to the edge of the road," was asked, "without upsetting my carriage?"

A woman in the waiting room of the Union Station at Minneapolis, the other day had a great deal of trouble with one of her children, a boy of seven or eight; and a man who sat near her stood it as long as possible, and then observed: "Madame, that boy of yours needs the strong hand of a father."

"Yes, I know it," she replied; "but he can't have it. His father died when he was six years of age, and I've done my best to get another husband, and failed. He can't have what I can't get."
