A Card to the Public.

We, the undersigned, desire to enter a protest through the columns of the East Oregonian, against the proposed desecration of the Lord's day by holding a horse racing meet next Sunday at the race track under the auspices of the Pendleton Driving Association. When we paid our membership fee in that organization, we were led to believe the object of the association was to sprinkle and keep in order the road from Pendleton to the race track, and we want it distinctly understood we are in no way connected with any institution that disregards God's law and outrages the feelings of a Christian community.

Respectfully,
R. M. O'BRIEN,
LEVI JOHNSON.

Notice to Builders.

Sealed bids will be received at the office of T. F. Howard, architect, room seventeen Judd block, up to three o'clock p. m., of May 18th, 1903, for the erection and completion of a two-story brick building, according to plans prepared for the same by T. F. Howard, architect. Stone foundation and cement work reserved. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids for the work.
May 8th, 1903.

STRIKE CONTINUES

RIGBY-CLOVE PEOPLE DO NOT OBJECT TO UNIONS.

Will Leave the Matter of Joining Labor Organization to Their Men—Castings That Caused the Trouble Made as an Accommodation.

The Carpenters' Union got in a hurry and held their meeting last night instead of tonight, at which time they discussed the boycott on the Rigby-Clove Foundry. W. R. Rigby and Mr. Clove were present by invitation and conferred with the union.

After the meeting was called to order the chairman asked to hear from Mr. Rigby. He responded, telling them that he was undecided as to where he stood.

Nothing had been asked of him and no demands made and therefore he did not know the exact phase of the question he was to discuss. If the union wished to ask him any questions he would cheerfully answer.

B. W. Rigby's Views.

The matter was then explained to him from the standpoint of the union and the demand made that he force his men to unionize or discharge them. This Mr. Rigby refused to do. He was willing to tell the men he employed that he had no objections to the union, that they were at perfect liberty so far as he was concerned, to join the union, and that he believed in unionized labor, but he would then leave the matter to the men, and if they desired to join all right, and if not he would make no discrimination against them.

This plan the union refused to accede to, holding out in their demand for an enforced unionization of the plant. Mr. Rigby and his partner persisted in their refusal and the meeting adjourned without anything being accomplished.

G. W. Rigby was on the streets this morning and gave the foregoing account of the meeting, and he further said that he was very sorry that any unpleasantness had occurred and did not see the occasion for it. None of the management of his plant were unfavorable to the unionization of labor, in fact, they were in favor of it. Every man had a right to protect himself and his skill, whether by patent or by copyright or by union restrictions.

A mechanic's skill, in his line was his capital in life, but if he did not wish to protect himself or to join a union Mr. Rigby saw no reason why the matter should be forced upon him.

Will Not Coerce the Men.

Taking this view of the case, the owners of the foundry saw no reason to compel their men to join a union against their will. There was no occasion for any trouble. The foundry was a small concern, organized by private capital and making an effort to grow and expand to the good of the owners, employees and the city. The castings which had caused the dispute were an incidental, as the prime consideration of the company was the manufacturer of their new combined harvesters.

They had made the castings as an accommodation to a neighbor, and gained practically nothing by the deal as they were not equipped for the work. The men employed were all paid the same scale and no differences in wage was observed other than was called for by the difference in work. All men were recognized on the same plane and all treated alike, so taking all things into consideration, he thought the matter should be left to the men and the issue not forced.

Mr. Rigby, while deploring the action of the union, does not see that it will make any very great difference with the foundry. It will, of course, shut off all job work, but since the real object of the concern is to manufacture their harvesters, it was doubtful whether or not the boycott would affect them in their work of primary importance to them.

Will Confer This Evening.

The union will hold another meeting this evening, at which time the trouble will be finally settled. It is thought that the foundry will be declared unfair, but that some arrangement will be made whereby the iron already purchased of the concern may be used by union workmen. The fact that the decision of the union was never made public leads conservative men interested in the case to this view of the matter.

There are two or three men at the foundry who are not in favor of the union, averring that they see no reason why they should join. If these men can be won over, it is hoped, the trouble will melt away; if they are obdurate in their attitude, the outcome is in doubt, as the owners will not force them to join. Tonight will see some solution to the puzzle.

H. B. Adams Dangerously Ill.

H. B. Adams, proprietor of the Weston brick yard, is still critically ill with Bright's disease. His son Clark, who went up to Weston last week, to be at his father's bedside, has charge of the yard.

Draft Horses to Seattle.

A car of heavy draft horses will be shipped tonight over the W. & C. R. for Seattle, for which market they have been bought by J. B. Canney in the vicinity of Pendleton.

The monster Corliss engines at the cold storage and ice plant are now in place on a concrete base.

SHEEP TO THE MOUNTAINS.

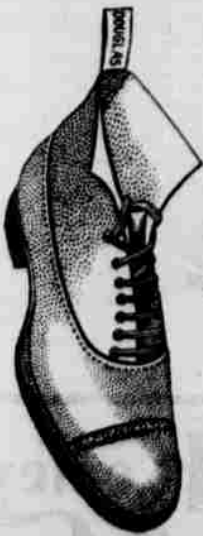

Very Prosperous Condition of La Fontaine and Garrison's Flocks.
J. H. Garrison, of the firm of Garrison & La Fontaine has returned to the city from a trip into the Meacham country with his band of sheep. There are in the flock 9,000 sheep, of which 4,300 are ewes, the rest being this year's lambs. As the estimated percentage for the lambing season is about 60 per cent, and Mr. Garrison landed in the mountains with about 104 per cent lambs, he feels very good about his band. He has them on good grass and expects them to be in first-class condition for the market by fall, when he wishes to bring them out of the moun-
