

SGHLI

There is no beverage more healthful than the right kind of beer. Barley malt and hops—food and a tonic. Only 3 1/2 per cent of alcohol—just enough to aid digestion.

But get the right beer, for some beer is not healthful. Schlitz is the pure beer, the clean beer, the filtered and clarified beer. No bacilli in it—nothing but health. And Schlitz is the aged beer that never causes biliousness.

WEEKLY FASHION LETTER.

New York, May 23.—Since garden parties promise to be more popular than ever this year, a pleasing note of summer is struck in the dresses which have arrived from abroad and are being built here for wear at these functions. A dainty gown which will do incidental duty at other summer festivities is shown in cream white silk all exquisitely figured in pale purple flowers arranged in tiny clusters. The skirt is formed in three tiers, the top one being gauged around the waist while the other two are shirred three rows deep at the upper edge.

The bodice has a deep yoke of white mull finely tucked and trimmed with butter colored lace medallions. A charming irregular finish is gained for the yoke by an edging of lace to match the medallions with graduated points.

The sleeves, which are tucked to fit close over the shoulders, are trimmed below the elbow with lace and gathered into a transparent cuff of wired lace supported top and bottom by narrow bias bands of cream white silk. The same idea is carried out in the stock with a delightful addition of French notes in pale purple smothered here and there in the lace.

Nice and inexpensive Dresses. Since several gowns are necessary to carry the well-dressed woman through a season, it is better to employ the inexpensive silky materials which are dressy enough in themselves to require but little trimming.

The silk mulls and muslins come under this list, although many pongees are worn and procurable at reasonable cost. Here is a pretty gown in apple green and white. The bottom of the skirt is embroidered in scallops, white and green being employed. The embroidery is carried out in floral design, the roses being arranged in circles with foliage of delicate green.

The bodice has a dainty bertha front for which the same trimming is employed. The belt shows a departure from the customary ribbon and chiffon girdles in that it is simply a gilt chain clasped unpretentiously around the waist.

The hat is extremely youthful and pretty. The top is hidden in a mass of deep cream lace ruffles and a branch of beautiful silk roses with natural foliage clusters in and out the lace. The brim is fastened with mousseline to match the lace and under the close-fitting brim at the back are rosettes of cool green and white liberty ribbon.

What really constitutes a smart and serviceable summer wardrobe is a difficult matter to decide where there are so many demands of fashion to be satisfied. A Fifth Avenue modiste who can accommodate her ideas to the purse of the average woman, though her time is devoted to the creation of gowns for society's elect assures the writer that at least two smart gowns are necessary to the success of any summer outfit. One of these should be either of black or white lace, the former for choice, if economy has to be seriously studied.

Among the secondary gowns there should be included a couple of foulards, a serge, an alpaca, a linen and muslin, besides the tailor made cloth and outing suits, the latter of which might also be made to do duty as a walking suit.

A black and white, blue and white or brown and white foulard is a useful possession, though the first-named adapts itself to a greater number of occasions. The serge should be black or navy blue and would serve for dull days, business outings and traveling.

Suggestions in Suits. A serge suit that is both practical and stunning has the skirt laid in horizontal plaits, three or four starting from the hips, carried around to the back and allowed to fall in natural folds to the bottom of the skirt. The advantage of the style is that it is alike becoming to slim and stout figures. As a finish to each plait a narrow embroidered in silk on either side of the tablier.

The bodice is also plaited horizontally and blouses over a black satin band, the front opening over a chemise of one of the fashionable laces trimmed with the tiniest of silk or pearl buttons in series of six.

The alpaca—grey or dark clear green would be smart—and the linen and muslin in dresses are for country wear and for mornings in town. Gowns of yester-year can often be persuaded to do duty again after slight alteration and serve for wet weather, motoring and so on.

The shops are still full of suggestions for the sweet girl graduate. For trimming lawn, suisee and mull bodices there are bunches of ribbon roses, chiffon violets and hyacinths, lace garlands and all sorts of what-nots for these important frocks. Less essential, but none the less pretty are little monograms that come for the ribbons that tie the diplomas. These are in gold and silver flagree and so delicate that they look like embroidery.

A graduation dress that may be worn throughout the summer is made simply of white lawn. The skirt is made with two bias vedants headed and bound with white velvet ribbon, an odd but pretty combination.

The bodice is formed of three volants, scanty in fulness, simulating those on the skirt. The yokes and tops of the sleeves are formed of imitation Irish lace. Across the shoulders are narrow strips of the velvet ribbon.

Chiffonette ought properly to be classed among the familiar fabrics with high-sounding names. It is stronger than chiffon, but not as fine and silky, yet more so than crystalline, in fact a cross between the two.

New Style of Sun Shades. No summer wardrobe is complete without its array of sun shades. There must be a shade for walking, one for driving, one for calling, one for "back" and even one for the sun bath on the seashore. The latter, by the way, is a unique little arrangement by which the complexion is protected and yet leaves room for a full exposure to the benefits of the sun.

The designs in parasols displayed for our delectation are so fascinating and seductive that one longs for the quicker approach of summer days to admit of using them as quickly as may be. They run the widest latitude in price ranging from the 98-cent special sale bargain, to the $100 imported creation.

MINING CONGRESS.

Meeting of Great Interest to All Interested in a Great Industry.

New York, May 23.—Irwin Mahon, secretary of the American Mining Congress, expects to leave for Deadwood and Lead, S. D., within a few days. He will enter immediately into the work of arousing general interest and enthusiasm throughout the West in the coming session of the American Mining Congress, which is to be held in the Black Hills in September. The various officers and committees of the congress are working in unison with the promise of making this coming session an eventful one in the history of the mining industry.

The mining men of the Black Hills country are taking their share of the arrangements for the congress. Excursions to the workings of the various mining companies are being planned, and plans are being made to profitably employ every hour of the time spent by men who are interested in the great industry. Assurances have been received by Secretary Mahon that Idaho, Montana, Colorado, Wyoming, Missouri, California, Michigan and other states in which the mining industry flourishes will be well represented at the congress. In connection with the gathering there will be a large and comprehensive exhibit of ore specimens, mining machinery and equipment.

To Celebrate Emerson's Name.

Chicago, May 23.—Ministers of all denominations have been invited by Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, general secretary of the Congress of Religion, to observe tomorrow as the 100th anniversary of the birth of Ralph Waldo Emerson and to preach sermons reflecting the thought appropriate to the occasion. In his appeal for a general observance of the anniversary Dr.

Motherhood is woman's natural destiny—actual barrenness is rare—comforting words to childless women.

Many women are denied the happiness of children simply because of some curable derangement of the generative organs. Among the many triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is overcoming cases of supposed barrenness. Thousands of children owe their existence to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This great medicine is so well calculated to regulate every function of the generative organs that its efficiency in this respect is reached for by multitudes of women.

Nine Years Without a Child. "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—We had been married nine years and never had children, and now we have a little baby girl nineteen months old, the joy of our life. She owes her existence to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's vegetable Compound I was a constant sufferer. I had pains in my back and sides, especially before menstruation. I had doctored but received no benefit. Hearing so much about the Vegetable Compound I decided to try it, and after taking six bottles was cured."—Mrs. T. H. GOULLEY, 1233 Nevada St., East Toledo, Ohio.

Portrait of a Baby Girl Who Owe her Existence to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wrote to you some time ago asking why I could not have a child. I explained that I had displacement of the womb and ovarian trouble, and suffered with backache and headache. You sent me a nice letter in reply giving me full instructions how to treat myself, and in accordance with your directions I took your Vegetable Compound, and followed your kind advice faithfully in every respect, and now I have a little girl, the joy of our home. I never would have had my baby if it had not been for your advice and medicine."

"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for what it has done for me. I hope other childless women will see this letter."—Mrs. JOHN UHARA-LACKER, 1111 Broadway, Cleveland, Ohio.

Another Happy Case in Brooklyn.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wrote to you a year ago telling you of my troubles. I had pains in the ovaries, menses were painful, and I had never borne children. You answered my letter and I followed your advice. I was completely cured. Have just given birth to a fine, healthy babe, and during childbirth had a very easy time."

"Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines are a God send to women who want to be mothers."—Mrs. SCHULTZ, 12 Luzner St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Many women whose letters we print were utterly discouraged, and life lacked all joy to them when they wrote Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., without charge of any kind. They received advice which made them strong, useful women again.

NEXT DOOR TO POSTOFFICE

Jones says in part: "The influence of Emerson has long since become the heritage of all reading and thinking people. First and always, a Mathew Arnold called him the 'friend and aider of those who would live in the spirit,' we cannot fail to realize with gratitude the great and beneficent influence upon our present moral and religious conceptions of Emerson's thought."

Carnegie Trust Not Unmixed Boon.

London, May 23.—According to Principal Story, of the University of Glasgow, the Carnegie Trust is not an unmixed boon to the students. The number of students who pay their own way is rapidly growing less, and the learned principal suggests that the young men are becoming demoralized, and are likely to have their honor and their independence sapped. He declares that instead of paying fees, some portion of the money ought to be devoted to the enlargement of the staff of professors.

Harsh Judgment.

An exchange says whenever you find a man finding fault with a local paper, open it and 10 to one he has no advertisement in it; five to one he never gave it a job of work; three to one if he is a subscriber he is delinquent; even odds he never does anything to assist the publisher to run a good paper; and 40 to 1 he is the most eager to see the paper when it comes out.
