SAYS MEN CATCH THE ORGANIZATION FEVER.

Unionism Falls Flat if Not Used as a Political Force—Men Have Not Yet Come to Know True Meaning of Power.

Chicago, May 29.—Clarence S. Darrow, who was chief counsel for the miners in the recent arbitration growing out of the strike in the anthracite coal fields, delivered an address before the Henry George Association here on "The Perils of Trades Unionism." The general tone of his talk was that labor unions do not understand the principles upon which they are founded, and along which they must work if they are to continue in existence.

Trade Unions Monopolistic.

He said in part: "Trade unionism is really, in its last analysis, the effort to monopolize the labor market in the same line as the trust in the effort to monopolize production. The great growth of trade unionism in the last few years has taken into its body large numbers of men who were not familiar with its principles, or its value—whose one desire has been to better their condition—who have not the understanding of affairs to recognize the relation that trade unionism bears to general progress, and who therefore, have narrow views as to its management, control and use.

Combination an Epidemic.

"In the growth of trade unionism the men seem to have lost sight of the fundamental principles, which in the end must control. Men catch trade unionism, speculation, combination, as they catch the measles or the mumps. Capital has caught the fever of combination until it has gone mad over corporations and trusts. Likewise labor has caught the fever of trade unionism, and without knowing what it means or realizing how it may be of real service to the world, has turned its power and energy in the building up of organizations. Unless this force is turned to political power or turned to substantial methods for bettering industrial conditions rather than gaining temporary or personal advantages, then all this great movement must be for naught."
