LONG BICYCLE TOUR.

From Los Angeles to Montana and Return on a Wheel.
C. A. Lewis, of Los Angeles, is in the city for a day or two, resting on a novel trip that he is taking. Mr. Lewis is a handwriting expert of Kansas and California, and has been in the school room for 25 years. Having grown tired and wishing a change, Mr. Lewis, who is an enthusiastic wheelman, started on a tour of the Western states on his bicycle. He has already traveled 2800 miles, wheeling through New Mexico, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Wyoming and Montana. He will rest here a short time when he will make a tour of Northern Oregon and Washington and thence return home through Southern Oregon and Northern California.

Mr. Lewis was caught in the big storm in Montana, where so many sheep were killed and was forced to carry his wheel for 30 miles before finding a place where he could rest and recuperate. He will be in Pendleton for two or three days.

AT AGENCY SCHOOL

LARGE AUDIENCE WAS HIGHLY ENTERTAINED.

Nice Program Excellently Rendered by a Hundred Bright, Well-Trained Indian Children—Large Number of Visitors Attended From the City and All Amply Repaid for Going.

Last evening the chapel at the agency school was crowded to witness the exercises given by the little folks of the school, and the people were treated to a sight not often seen; one strange and gratifying, and yet pathetic, the meeting of two or three generations of the vanishing race of America's first people, the Indian of the old, wild days of freedom, their children of the reservation, and their grandchildren of the agency school. And from the one extreme to the other is shown the story of the race. The little girls in white and the little boys in grey picturing to the stolid white-haired men along the wall the results of the civilization they fought against.

One Hundred Children Took Part.
There were about one hundred little tots in the exercises last evening, and all were dressed in clothes made and sewed at the agency. The little girls were in white and looked bright and happy as a band of public school pupils in any city. The little boys were in the grey cadet cloth of the agency uniform, and showed in their movements and actions their capability for receiving instruction. And all around the walls stretched the line of the parents and grandparents of the entertainers, each in his blanket of varying colors, while the seats and aisles were filled with visitors in natty summer clothes, making a combination only to be found in a few places in our land today.

Very Entertaining Program.
The opening number was a chorus by the school, "Flag of Freedom," and in it the children demonstrated that the art of singing does not belong to the white man alone. Their singing was very creditable and showed the careful training and painstaking care of the instructors.

One of the unique features of the program was an exercise entitled "Three Kittens," and given by Louise Brisbois, Emma Johnson and Anna Blackhorn, three of the smallest girls of the school. They were dressed as little kittens, heads, fur and all, and with their little songs and dialogue, quite captured the audience.

Another special feature was the "Sunflower Chorus," by ten boys and girls. A large sheet was suspended on the platform, and upon it were painted ten large sunflowers, each child standing behind the curtain, thus formed with head thrust through the center of the flower, sang the song and chorus. It was quite novel and very well given.

It is not possible to pick out any one number that excelled the others in excellence, for all were good, and by the precision of the acting and the exactness of the work in singing and speaking, evidenced the superiority of the training they have received. The program in full as given, is printed below:

- Opening chorus, "Flag of Freedom," school.
- Flag drill, small boys.
- "My Bonnie Bird," song, Lucy Linton, Maud Joe and Vera Spokane.
- Mother Goose, 16 primary children.
- Shepherd's chorus, boys and girls.
- "Wild Flowers," song, four girls.
- "Three Kittens," Louise Brisbois, Emma Johnson, Anna Blackhorn.
- "Whistle and Hoe," eight small boys.
- "Turkie Turks," six girls.
- Lilly drill, small girls.
- Manual of arms, large boys.
- "Good Night," song, four small girls.

The success of the entertainment is due to the untiring efforts of the teachers at the agency school, Miss Hattie McDowell, principal teacher, Miss Gertrude M. Golden, primary teacher, Miss Esther Sutherland, seamstress, and I. R. Bamber, drill master and industrial teacher.

training that has been given them. Under the supervision of Miss M. V. Gaither, who has occupied the responsible position of assistant superintendent of this school for the past 10 years, it has grown to be the most progressive reservation Indian school in the United States and those who witnessed the closing exercises last night came home with stronger hope than ever for the final rescue of the Umatilla from the ways of savagery.

OBJECTIONS FILED

POSSIBLE OBSTRUCTIONS TO SEWER CONSTRUCTION.

One Property Owner Protests Against Sewer Being Laid Through His Property—Two Objectors to the Proposed Terminal—Work Will Proceed.

The sewer committee and the contractor, J. H. Sutherland, are being held up by some of the residents of the lower part of the city on the sewer proposition.

The committee has a clear right of way down Alta street and along the O. R. & N. right of way, but the distance is 600 or 700 feet farther and crooked and the fall is not so great. For this reason they wish to carry the pipe down Court street, across the Matlock property to Morton street, and down that street through the Edgewood addition to the river at the railroad bridge.

One Property Owner Objects.

Every one of the property holders through whose property the line must pass have given their consent to the excavation except J. M. Slack, who has 625 feet of land through which the line must go. He is of the impression that such a thing as a sewer near his property would damage the same. For this reason he is holding off, and has not yet given his decision in the matter. And while he is holding back, the contractor is losing time, and the laboring men who are here to commence work on the sewer are losing money and remaining idle. The matter will perhaps be settled this evening and the work will be in full blast inside of a week.

Active Preparations for Work.

Mr. Sutherland, the contractor, is here and arranging as rapidly as may be, the details preparatory to the commencement of his work. As soon as the right of way dispute is settled the work will proceed.

Object to Proposed Terminus.

J. D. Price and Seth Richardson who own land near the river where the mouth of the sewer will be, are bitterly opposed to the construction of the sewer and the dumping of the sewage at that place and they intimate that they will fight the thing until certain portions of the universe warmer than Pendleton are a mass of corrugated ice and never ending snow.

But it seems that they are "hollering before they are hurt." The river at the point of the sewer's exit is always deep and wide. It is below the mill race and has the full water flow of the stream and it is right between the embankments of the railroad bridge, where the channel is always forced to be the same, and the current is strong and steady.

At present it appears that the sewer will be constructed without interruption and, if there is any damage done, recourse may be had when the damage is a reality.

PENDLETON LOSES A GAME.

Colfax Wallops the Home Team and Takes the Game 8 to 5.

Yesterday's game at Colfax was closely matched. There was some good playing on both sides, but Pendleton yielded to the Palouse boys to the tune of 8 to 5.

"Slats" Taylor, Pendleton's pitcher, went to pieces in the eighth inning, striking Lawrence in the temple and putting him out of the game. He allowed Colfax to make seven runs in the seventh inning, being found for three two-baggers and one home run. Cline made the home run with two bases filled. Eleven hits were secured from Taylor, all bunched. Five scattering hits were made from Druhot.

Walla Walla Wins.

Dayton, Wash., June 5.—In perhaps the best game played in the Inland Empire league this season, the Walla Walla team, greatly assisted by the splendid pitching of Leach, their new twirler, shut out the Barley Growers after nine exciting innings of the national game yesterday afternoon. Leach in the form in which he pitched yesterday, is a wonder and will be able to more than hold his own against any of the Inland Empire
