Notice to Tax Payers.

You can save the county expense by selling at the assessor's office to give in your personal and city property.

So many have employment away from home during the day that it is extremely difficult to find them. In order to see such persons and adjust their assessments the assessor will not only remain in his office during regular office hours, but will, for two weeks, keep his office open in the evening from 7 to 9 o'clock. You are earnestly invited to call soon and go over your valuations with the assessor personally.

LIVESTOCK EXHIBIT

AT THE LOUISIANA PURCHASE EXPOSITION.

Provision Made for a Premium List, Classification and Prizes on a Scale Never Before Attempted—A Quarter of a Million Dollars Allotted for the Competition.

The Louisiana Purchase Exposition, in recognition of the magnitude and importance of the livestock industry and appreciating that St. Louis, the seat of the World's Fair of 1904, is practically the geographical center of the largest improved stock-producing area on the globe, has appropriated a quarter million dollars to prizes for which the world's stockmen are invited to compete.

This vast sum makes possible a classification much in advance of any heretofore attempted, with prizes on a scale of generosity before unknown in the history of expositions. The largest sum previously offered by a like enterprise was $142,500 at the Columbian in Chicago in 1893.

In the classification every branch of improved animal industry is to have its proportionate recognition whether it be the Percherons, Shorthorns, Pigeons or Pointers; whether the meek-eyed cows from the Channel Islands or descendants of the American bison that once made populous the plains beyond the Missouri; whether the petite ponies from the Shetland Islands or the robust mule that has in recent years so rapidly advanced in public esteem by his proven usefulness in war no less than in the prosaic paths of peace.

For the accommodation of the array of exhibits which will compete for the prizes offered, the management have allotted 30 acres of the most desirable ground in all the exposition tract of over 1200 acres, most of which it overlooks, and upon this hill will erect the requisite buildings, combining the desired modern features of utility and adaptation with harmonious and pleasing architectural effect. The building scheme will comprehend between 45 and 50 structures, including 33 barns to accommodate 80 or 90 horses and cattle each, several others with slightly less capacity, four octagonal barns, 100x100 feet, to accommodate cows to be used in a dairy demonstration, with silos and feed barns, a grand amphitheater and arena, 250x450 feet, for an exhibit ring and a building for public sales of livestock and for stockmen's conventions, in which will also be made the exhibits and demonstrations with relation to livestock under the auspices of the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations.

Aside from those usually shown, various classes of horses not previously taken up at expositions, such as those for artillery, cavalry and ambulance use in the military service, fire department, express and ambulance horses for city purposes, will be given the consideration their importance justifies.

Cattle, sheep and swine, as with horses, will be given such a wide range as to reward generously, independent of the specialties given by states and breeders' organizations, the exhibitor, the breeder and the feeder. Aggregating offerings so inviting that they must attract the choicest products that pasture and feed-lot, supplemented by human skill have yet evolved.

One of the most interesting and instructive features planned for the exposition will be a comparative test of breeds of cows with reference especially to their dairy qualities in both butter and cheese production, and incidentally their gains in flesh.

Poultry, pet stock, dogs and the minor animals and fowls are to be recognized more fully than has ever before been done, and every energy will be bent to have at St. Louis in 1904, along with the other magnificent arrays of the world's most interesting and best, the most extensive and instructive presentation of animal exhibits ever assembled.
