COLFAX HAD A WALK AWAY THAT MADE HEAVENS WEEP.

Only a Sympathizing Providence Kept Pendleton From Being Ingloriously "Skunked"—Next Game Will Be Played Saturday and Two Games on Sunday.

If anyone thinks that the hand of providence has not been stretched out over the local baseball team by the goddess of good luck; if anyone thinks that the powers that rule do not harken to the mourning cry of Pendleton in defeat, they need but to turn to the game of yesterday and be convinced. Colfax should never again attempt to wrest the banner of victory from the Indian boys, for they are watched over by those who are able to change defeat into a draw and to open the vials of the heavens for the benefit of the under dog in the game.

Colfax jarred the foundations out of the rain tank yesterday and by that act she lost the game. The first inning the visitors made four runs and the sky was bright and the sun was hot, then they made another in the second inning and the sun ceased to shine upon them and the rain came down to rebuke them for dragging the Pendleton banner in the dust. The visitors seemed to play in hard luck, for they had the game in their pockets when the weather forced them to call the game and seek shelter of the grand stand.

It is useless to attempt to describe the game, for there was nothing to it but a walk away for the boys from up the country. They batted Marcus and ran the bases like a lot of children at play and all the efforts of the boys from home seemed vain and a waste of energy. When the rain came the score stood 5 to 0 in favor of the visiting team, and had they been able to have played a few moments more the game would have been theirs, for it was the first of the fifth inning when they stopped.

There will be no game today, but on Saturday the cohorts will meet again, and on Sunday there will be two games to delight the hearts of the lovers of the national game.

THIS IS NOT A FISH STORY.

Tale of a Barrel, a Sack of Wheat and a Sudden Rain.

Walter Wells, a man of truthfulness and of sobriety, backed by competent authority, has a curious story to tell of the rain of yesterday. He says that there is in the edge of the city a barrel sunk in the ground and used for vitrioling wheat. This barrel was sunk in the ground all but about three inches of the top, and was tamped down hard and fast and was full of water and contained a sack of wheat.

When the rain commenced the barrel began to rise, and by the time the storm was over the thing was almost out of the ground. The water had gone in so fast that there was no room for the barrel, and it had to vacate. All persons just returning from fishing trips and hunting excursions are invited to compete. Question is, where would the barrel have been by this time had it kept on raining?

Great Sachem Takes a Trip.

INDIANS IN A LAWSUIT.

Alleged Assault and Battery Originating in a Dispute.

That the Indian is fast learning the ways of the white man is evidenced by the title of a case to come before the court of United States Commissioner Halley tomorrow at 10 o'clock. It is an action brought by Joe Allen against Charles Bennett for assault and battery. The trouble arose over the pasturing of some cattle or horses on the land of the defendant.

It is hard to get at the straight of the matter, but this much can be gleaned, that the defendant told the plaintiff to move his stock and then the wife of the plaintiff appeared on the scene and took the defendant by the hair of the head and pulled the same, upon which the red man arose in his might and kicked her out of the house. After that he had to whip the husband of the injured lady. The case will be tried upon its merits tomorrow at 10 o'clock.

Spencer Begins Sentence.

Walla Walla, June 12.—Edward Spencer and three other prisoners were brought to the penitentiary yesterday afternoon by Sheriff W. J. Doust and three guards. Spencer, notwithstanding he has 13 years ahead of him in the penitentiary, seemed to take his coming with a degree of pleasure. It is said he feels tickled because he got off so lightly for the murder of Ella Mundt in Spokane last February. Spencer's self inflicted wound after he had committed the act, is still troubling him somewhat. It affects his side so that he now walks with a limp. By good behavior he may reduce his sentence to eight years and three months.
