

You Want Both

When you try on a pair of shoes look for two things—"Comfort" and "Style." You must have them both; either one by itself is not enough.

Our whole stock is purchased with these two things in view and it is the largest and most complete in Pendleton from a heavy brogan to the finest French kid boot and they all have that wearing quality found only in a carefully selected stock.

young face. "She is one of our unidentified dead," said Mrs. Kelly. "Her face has a vaguely familiar look, yet no one seems to know her. Possibly she was at the Heppner hotel. Most of its guests were lost."

Heart-Rending Scenes.

Piles of rough coffins throw vague and distorted shadows in the gloom. Some are occupied and some are not. As the bodies are brought in, poor, bruised, battered, mud-stained, inanimate clay, they are placed on the slats across the tubs. With sheep shears the women cut away all clothing. When they have been washed they are put in the boxes and a sheet laid over them to await identification. Some of the sights I saw with the dead are indescribable. Some of the meetings of sons or other relatives who had traveled as fast as horse-flesh can go to come to the comfort of those who have been spared are too pitiful to tell—too sacred to describe.

Here is a woman bowed with years and grief. Her husband and children have sunk beneath the rushing, seething tide of destruction. A son or a daughter has hastened from some neighboring city to comfort her. How can she be comforted? At such a time there is no human aid. One stands dumb before such heartbreaking grief.

When the friends are let in to identify the dead one sounds the depths of human sorrow. One father who had seen his wife and two of his children lying cold and inanimate, was hoping against hope that his only remaining little one might have been spared. A message came for him to go up to the hall. When he looked on the anguished face of his little baby, kind nature mercifully veiled his sight. He fainted and was taken from the hall.

I caught a few hours' sleep at the home of Will Irwin. Next morning at 4 o'clock I was astray. I spent the next few hours in helping the searchers for the dead. Here a baby's hand can be seen in the foams and jetsam left by the receding waters. Carefully the little form is removed and taken to the receiving hall. I stood talking with one of the marshals who was describing the appearance of the advancing wall of waters with timbers and cattle being now submerged and now thrown to the surface, when one of the searchers motioned to him. We went over to the silent group. They had torn away the wreckage and exposed the form of an elderly man. His face was crushed. From his vest pocket hung a gold watch. His hands were extended, grasping for the help that did not come.

Articles of value are scattered everywhere. On Chase street I saw a line of silverware extending to the edge of the stream, probably the wreck of some sideboard.

Will Burn Up Wreckage.

Workers are hurrying in from nearby points. Teams and men are tearing the wreckage apart and piling it, for burning. Unless one has seen it, little idea can be formed of the congestion of travel and of communication.

I filed an order for the use of the long distance phone at lone at 9 o'clock a. m., and at 3 o'clock I gave up the attempt. During that time the phone had been continuously busy. When I came out by team I brought several score telegrams.

Heppner has had an overwhelming disaster. It will take years for her to recover from such a staggering blow. Unless one has witnessed something similar, it is difficult to form any conception of the devastation that has been wrought to life and property. FRED LOCKLEY, JR.

Sumpter Relief Fund.

Sumpter, Or., June 17.—The citizens of Sumpter have subscribed $700 for the relief of the Morrow county sufferers.

La Grande Relief Fund.

At a mass meeting held in La Grande yesterday evening a large amount of provisions, clothing, tools and money was raised for the relief of the Heppner sufferers.

Railroad Open to Lexington.

Lexington, June 17.—The O. R. & N. trains are now running between Heppner Junction and here. From this place to Heppner, a distance of nine miles, the track is washed out nearly the entire distance, and it will be some time before it can be sufficiently repaired to admit the running of trains.

However, the wagon road is good and supplies are quickly transported to Heppner by team.

Hunt for the Dead Continues. lone, June 17.—Tired out and weary of the carnival of death, the searchers are still bringing the bruised and unrecognizable bodies from the miles of debris that marks the once happy Willow Creek bottoms.

Supplies Transported Free.

Lexington, June 17.—Every train that passes Heppner Junction going east or west, bears supplies for the stricken district. The O. R. & N. has met the situation ably and heroically. Every pound of supplies that is billed to Heppner, no matter from where it comes, is transported free of charge and is given precedence over all other commodities.

Relief Party From Freewater.

The Freewater Times and a merchant of that city are sending a party of 10 laborers to Heppner to assist in the relief work. The laborers will be paid wages by the parties sending them, who will place them at the disposal of the general relief committee of Heppner.

Had Relatives at Freewater.

The wife of Thomas Howard, of Heppner, who, with her husband and three daughters, were drowned Sunday, was a sister of John S. Vinson, the postmaster of Freewater.

Freewater Sends $100.

The citizens of Freewater yesterday sent word to the mayor of Heppner to draw on them for $100, the amount raised in that place by private subscription for the relief of the flood sufferers. The cash will be forthcoming through the mayor of Freewater, on a draft drawn on the Bank of Milton.

The subscription was started and followed up by F. R. Fuller of the Freewater Times.

This is an act of practical, up-to-date generosity that ought to be remembered, and probably will be.

Milton Will Send $250.

In response to the general situation the city of Milton raised a relief corps of 10 men to work at Heppner, but as a precaution, Mayor Miller wired to the mayor of Heppner asking him what they needed most. The following dispatch was received by Mr. Miller this afternoon in reply: Heppner, June 17, '03.

Situation appalling. No help is needed for labor but we need money badly. FRANK GILLIAM, Mayor.

Inside of two hours the citizens of Milton in response to this telegram subscribed and paid in $250 in cash, which will be forwarded at once.

MET DEATH ALONE

M. P. CARGILL IS DROWNED IN COOMBS CANYON.

Left Pendleton Monday Evening on Horseback—Torrent of Water Carries Body Eight Miles—Resident of Umatilla County for 20 Years.

The body of M. P. Cargill was found by George Fourth, a 10-year-old boy, at the mouth of Coombs canyon, at 9 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Cargill left Pendleton on horseback Monday evening and in attempting to cross Coombs canyon, was caught and drowned by the cloud-burst which occurred in the hills west of this city Monday night.

His body was washed eight miles down the canyon and lodged in a heap of drift at the mouth.

News of the accident was brought to this city by Charles White and John Forth, who live on Birch creek. Coroner W. G. Cole was immediately notified and an investigation is being made this evening.

The body was badly bruised and bore evidences of the awful velocity of the torrent that swept the unfortunate man down the entire length of the canyon. His horse has not yet been found and it is not known whether it was drowned or not.

He was identified by a check book found on him.

Mark P. Cargill was a nephew of D. E. Cargill of this city, and a brother of Mrs. Alex Hudson, of McKay creek, and of Elmer, Dabert and W. H. Cargill, of this city, and has resided in Umatilla county for 20 years, eight years of which he spent at Weston.

He was 31 years of age and a native of Illinois.

OLD FRONTIERSMAN.

Pal of Wild Bill is in Pendleton and Full of Reminiscences.

Harry Young, of Portland, has been in the city the past week in the interest of the Paraffine Paint Company, and left last night for La Grande. Mr. Young is a man who has had a career more checkered than you will find in the history of most men. He was a friend of the famous Wild Bill of the frontier days, and was present at the time he was shot to death in the Sixty-six saloon at Deadwood. He was personally acquainted with all of the gun fighters of the early days and has many reminiscences to tell of those days, when might was right on the frontier. Mr. Young now has a book in the hands of the publishers, entitled "Hard Knocks," and it is a history of the frontier as seen by one who was there.

Cottage Grove, the little city at the head of the Willamette valley, now springing into prominence, is the especial hobby ridden by Mr. Young at the present time, and he is loud in the praises of the natural resources of the place. He says that if the city of Seattle had a town as rich in possibilities as near it as Cottage Grove is to Portland that the country would know something of the place through the papers of the place. He puts the little town at the head of the coming towns of the state, maintaining that there are but three towns in the state at the present time, namely, Pendleton, Eugene and Cottage Grove.

PENDLETON RELIEF

COUNCIL APPROPRIATES FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS.

Motion Passes Unanimously at a Special Session Held This Afternoon—Warrant for the Money Will Be Taken to Heppner by Mayor Halley.

The council was called in special session this afternoon for the consideration of the Heppner relief fund. The meeting was called to order by Mayor Halley, who stated the object of the meeting and called for discussion of the question.

Clopton was in favor of the appropriation, but he did not know whether or not this was the time to send the money. He thought that perhaps we might better wait until towards the end of the matter and then we could tell what they needed and how to supply their wants. The blankets and things that had been sent to the people had been stopped at Echo and were there yet. Those things ought to be sent, and the men from here who were assisting at Heppner could then tell them what was needed.

Johnson thought that $1,000 would be a small sum to send and that the council might send $500 now and the rest later.

Halley thought that some appropriation should be made from the city now, just to show the good will of the city. Heretofore the help had been from private sources and those who had friends in the stricken place. Now the city should come to the front and show that it sympathizes with its sister city in distress.

Sommerville moved that the council order the recorder to draw a warrant for $500 in favor of the relief committee of Heppner and the motion was seconded by Howard and passed by an unanimous vote.

It was decided to send the money over to the city by Mayor Thomas Halley, who will go to Heppner on the early train in the morning.

COMPROMISE MADE

FEDERATION LABOR MEETS FOUNDRY PEOPLE HALF WAY.

Rigby-Clove Will Post Notices Declaring Their Friendliness to Unions and Expressing Their Willingness for Employees to Join—The Boycott Will Then Be Called Off.

The labor controversy of the carpenters versus the Rigby-Clove Foundry, is in all probability at an end, and peace the white-winged, once more nestles over the city. The difficulty has been ended, and the warring factions have once more joined hands for the betterment of the city and the good of the state. When the state organizer, G. Y. Harry, of Portland, was in the city last week, he went over the trouble and pointed out to both sides the error of their ways and then, like the minister at the altar, he took the hands of the two factions and joined them in the bonds of holy unity; that is, he told them to shake hands and make up.

Of course there were concessions to be made on the side of the foundry and some things to be overlooked by the carpenters, and both sides, in obedience to the advice of the leader, have at last reached an agreement, and the war is at an end and no one is hurt.

The matter was turned over by the carpenters to the Central Federation of labor, and by them was considered in all of its phases. After they had gone over the question they sent a committee to the foundry and met the owners in conference. There they asked the foundrymen to post a notice in their shops telling their men that the firm had no animosity toward the unions and advising them to which they were eligible if they so desired. The members of the foundry concern agreed to this and as soon as the notice is published the boycott will be called off officially and the trouble will be at an end.

Mr. Clove, who has been the storm center of the disturbance, and the man around whom the trouble has hovered, was seen this morning and explained his position on the subject. He said that he was perfectly willing to post the notice, and always had been willing to make any such statement to his men. He has nothing against the unions and will allow any and all of the men in his employ to join any or all of the unions. So now the matter seems to be settled, and it only remains for the unions to publicly call off the boycott, to put things on the same plane that existed before the trouble commenced.

WILL BE REMODELED.

Operations Begin July 5 for Rebuilding and Rearrangement of Boston Store Interior.

The Boston Store is on the eve of an eruption, for as soon as the big red-letter sale now on is closed on the 5th of July, the place will be remodeled from the top to the bottom. The dry goods, which are at present in the corner building, will be moved to the other side of the house and the clothing will be taken from their present position and put in the corner department.

All the interior of the store will be changed, and the place will be painted and renovated from the cellar to the garret. When the work is all finished the store will be one of the most modern in equipment, and one of the most convenient to patrons and proprietor alike that is to be found on the coast.
