SCHOOL DISTRICTS CAN GET MONEY CHEAP.

Law Making Interest Rates to Dis-Effect-Only Two Applications So

Salem. Ore. June 23.—Two school districts have made application to borrow money from the irreducible state school fund, under the act of the price?

Why buy poor coal when you can get the best for the same price? last legislature, and their applications have been accepted. A number of other districts are making preparations to borrow money from the same source, and it seems that the state land board will be able to put out considerable money in this way. The siderable money in this way. The district whose offers of bonds have been accepted are District No. 1, in Classop county, which will issue bonds to the amount of $35,000, and District No. 2, in Wasco county, which will issue bonds to the amount of $3,500. The loans will be made at 5 per cent interest. The usual rate for mort-gage loans is 6 per cent, but the board does not find borrowers for the entire fund

The act of the last legislature provided that whenever any school district desired toralsemoney by issuing bonds, it should be the duty of the district to offer the bonds to the state and board at not less than 5 per cent interest. The board has the option on bonds at that rate, and if the bonds are found to be legally issued may purchase them. If the state land board declines to purchase the bonds the district may then sell them in the market at the best terms that can be

It is necessary that all the proceedings for the issuance of bonds be legal and in order to facilitate the work and secure compliance with all the requirements, the state land board has, with the assistance of the attorney general, compiled full in-structions and forms to be used by school district officers in calling theer-ings, holding elections, and other proceedings incident to the making of the loan. These instructions will be supplied to any district contemplat-ing the issuance of bonds. The blank forms and rules are made so explicit that any district can carry out the cedings according to law without employing a special attorney. By this means the state land board also secures uniformity in the proceedings which will make it easier for the attorney general to examine the records ascertain whether the bonds have been legally issued and the possibility of delays is reduced to a minimum, Any failure to observe each required step in the proceedings will invalidate bonds and make it necessary for the district to begin the proceedings over again. The state land board is also preparing a form of bond which each dis-trict will be required to issue. Uniformity in this respect will make it easy to keep the records of bonds in the hands of the state land poard. school district can now issue bonds without giving the state land board an opportunity to buy them, so that practically all the interest paid by school districts upon bonds hereafter issued will go into the public school fund, thus saving tals large a of money to the public schools
