LIEU LAND TANGLE

GOVERNOR CHAMBERLAIN WRESTLING WITH PROPOSITION

Where Double Sales Have Been Made, One Purchaser Must Lose—Fraudulent Entries Can Claim No Protection From State.

Salem, June 27.—A large stack of disapprovals of lieu land selections which lay on the desk of the state land agent today shows the wholesale manner in which the general land office and the department of the interior are turning down Oregon lieu lands. Thousands of acres which have been selected by the state and sold after approval by local land offices have been rejected recently by the general land office, and the end is not yet.

Appeals are being taken to the secretary of the interior, but it that official adheres to his present policy there is small chance of a change in the decisions. Beyond question the state land department is involved in the worst tangle ever known in its history, and it will be a long time before the kinks are straightened out.

The lieu land selections which are now being disapproved are those made upon mineral base in Eastern Oregon. By proving to the satisfaction of local land office authorities that certain school sections in that part of the state were mineral lands the state was enabled to relinquish them to the general government, and to take other and more valuable lands in lieu thereof.

Many of these sections which were thus relinquished to the government had already been sold by the state to private parties. The lieu land was also sold before the validity of the base had been finally determined, and now that the selections are being disapproved on the ground that the mineral character of the land was not properly shown, all the purchasers of such school lands or lieu lands are in doubt as to the condition of their titles.

Must Give Back Eventually.

Where there has been double selling the state must eventually return to one purchaser or the other the money he has paid, together with interest at 5 per cent. One class of purchasers must lose title to the land where there has been double selling, and whichever loses, the state will be censured for permitting its land affairs to get into such a muddle.

The problem before Governor Chamberlain, who has charge of the state lieu land business, is not what should have been done by the previous administration but what can be done now to get the state out of a bad predicament. The governor has decided to give his sanction to the appeals and has expressed his desire that the state's selection of lieu lands be approved.

The approval of the lieu land selections will undoubtedly be most profitable to the state, for the lieu land was sold for double the price paid for the school sections in place. In the contest between two classes of purchasers it is very likely, indeed, almost certain, that the identity of the purchasers of the school land in place will be disclosed.

It has been contended by General W. H. Odell, who has charge of the adjudication of mineral base for the state, that the school sections involved in this contest were purchased by land grabbers who employed stool pigeons in order to get conveyances from the state. He takes the position that since the purchasers are mere speculators who secured the land in violation of law and in anticipation of the creation of a forest reserve, they are not entitled to any protection from the state.
