

TORTURING DISFIGURING Skin, Scalp and Blood Humours

From Pimples to Scrofula
From Infancy to Age

Speedily Cured by Cuticura
When All Else Fails.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in Eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurements, as in acne and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt rheum,—all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cures, the absolute safety and great economy, have made them the standard skin cures, blood purifiers and humour remedies of the civilized world.

Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely, to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and, lastly, take Cuticura Resolvent, to cool and cleanse the blood. This complete local and constitutional treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep in the severest forms of eczema and other itching, burning and scaly humours of the skin, scalp and blood, and points to a speedy, permanent and economical cure when all else fails.

Sold throughout the world. Cuticura Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per box of 60). Ointment, 50c. Soap, 25c. Imported by L. D. Green, 27 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa. BLUEBEARD DOUGAL MADE AN OCCUPATION OF MURDERING WOMEN.

Extraordinary Record of an Englishman Who Was Hanged Today—Took Life Sometimes for Gain and Sometimes to Gratify Whims.

London, July 14.—Samuel Herbert Dougal, known as the "Moat House" murderer, was hanged today in Chelmsford prison. The execution closes a career of crime that was surrounded by as many circumstances of mystery and sensation as the brain of a novelist ever invented. The deed for which he paid the death penalty was the murder of Miss Camille Cecile Holland, a woman of independent means who not only gave him her affection, but trusted him so far as to buy the lonely Moat farm, where they might live together in peace. He betrayed her trust, and with scarcely conceivable baseness, drove her out into the stillness of the night to blow out her brains, that he might become possessed of her property, which he succeeded in doing by forging her name to her checks.

His First Known Murder.
Dougal was a decidedly varied career, and one full of incident. He was a man of smart military appearance, pleasant of speech, and polite of manner, attractions which enabled him to win the affections of undiscerning ladies both in America and England, whom he lured to their ruin. Of his early life, prior to his joining the army, little is known. As a member of the Royal Engineers he was stationed for a considerable time in Nova Scotia. When he first landed in Halifax he was accompanied by a wife, who suddenly became ill and died. She was buried the following day. Three weeks after the death of his wife Dougal sailed for England, and returned five weeks later with another woman, whom he introduced as his wife.

It was stated in Halifax that this woman had a considerable fortune. She seemed on arrival to be in excellent health, but shortly afterwards she had fits of vomiting and coughing. In two weeks the woman was dead, and on this occasion also the remains were buried the following day. When Dougal finally left Halifax he persuaded a young woman to accompany him and she afterwards returned to that city with a story of betrayal. The man was next heard of at Alderhot and in various other parts of England. Later he went to Ireland and there married again.

Shortly afterwards he was appointed to some minor office at Dublin Castle, and among his duties was that of banking money. While employed in Ireland he forged the checks of two well-known members of the aristocracy. For this crime he served 12 months in prison. In 1894 he again turned up with a young woman whom he had met through the agency of a matrimonial advertisement. The two lived together for a considerable time in a country house on the outskirts of the village of Watlington, in Buckinghamshire. Dougal devoted his time to chicken farming and all went well until another woman arrived on the scene and caused a breaking up of the establishment.

His Last Murder.
Ultimately they went to live at Moat Farm, an exceedingly lonely spot at Clavering. Soon after commencing their tenancy Dougal began to fill up the ditch leading from the farm yard to the moat. This work was not completed on the day when he determined to take the unhappy woman's life, and it afforded him a ready-made grave in which to bury his victim. Miss Holland was seen alive for the last time on May 15, 1899. Not only was she not seen again, but no trace of her was discovered until four years afterward, when the remains of a woman were found in the Moat Farm ditch. It is one of the remarkable features of the case that during all these years Dougal had been able to act as her "double" in forging her signature to checks and carrying on correspondence with her bankers and brokers. To the few inquiries made Dougal explained that Miss Holland had gone to the Continent. Later he brought his real wife to the Moat farm, introducing her at first as his widowed daughter. Divorce proceedings against Dougal's real wife, interrupted after a decree nisi had been granted, by an affiliation obtained by a village girl against him, first directed the attention of the police to the continued absence of Miss Holland.

Dougal was first arrested on a charge of forging Miss Holland's name. Meanwhile the police were at work endeavoring to solve the mystery of her disappearance and in their perseverance in their search for the body they won general praise. They succeeded in linking together a chain of circumstantial evidence, which could not be broken by the best efforts of the counsel for the defense, and which connected Dougal with the authorship of the crime as securely as anything short of the direct evidence of eye witnesses of the tragedy could have effected.

WAS ONCE GREAT CHIEF.
Bones and Relics Found in Shallow Grave in East End.

A good Indian was found yesterday by men in the employ of Contractor Goodin in the east end, says the Morning Astorian. This estimable red man has been good for many years, longer, perhaps, than he was bad before.

The remnants and several relics were discovered about two feet from the surface in a lot owned by Mrs. H. H. Anderson. The men were removing dirt to fill up the alleyway adjoining Cedar street when a skull, a few decayed bones, an Indian pipe, two muskets, a knife, several Mexican dollars and a few American half dollars, were brought to light. The pipe has a face engraved upon it that bears a striking resemblance to Captain Merriweather Lewis. The half dollars are dated 1830, and the barrels of the once trusty muskets are rusted nearly through. If the Indian received a Christian burial there is no sign of office or other marks to approve it. He was very likely a great chief, however, as his personal property would indicate considerable wealth for an aborigine.

Considering the shallowness of the grave, it is deemed remarkable that it remained for so long a time undisturbed. The bones and relics are now at the home of Mr. Goodin, who will endeavor to discover some clue as to their origin.

WOOD DRIVE ON WALLA WALLA.

Reached a Point This Side of Roberts' Ranch Yesterday—351 Cords in All.

Lee W. Roberts returned last night from the Roberts ranch on the south fork of the Walla Walla river and reports the drive of cordwood being sent down the river has reached a point a mile this side of the ranch, says the Walla Walla Statesman. A total of 351 cords was dumped into the stream seven miles above the ranch the 4th of July and four men have worked incessantly ever since bringing the drive down stream.

Much difficulty has been experienced owing to a less amount of water in the stream than in former years and it was no uncommon occurrence for the mass to jam at sharp bends, taking hours of hard work to break it up. The wood will be taken out at Dorothy's place at the forks of the two streams.

While on the river Mr. Roberts made a casual inspection of the fruit conditions and estimates there will be a large crop of apples this year. There has been little evidence of fruit peas along the river and fruit so far appears in a healthy condition.

THE WILY CHINESE UNCLE SAM MUST STAY AWAKE AND WATCH HIM.

Another Entry Station to Be Established on the Border Between Canada and the United States—Law Will Be More Rigidly Enforced.

Washington, D. C., July 14.—Hereafter the port of Sumas, on the northern border of Whatcom county, Wash., and in fact on the international boundary line, is to play an important part in the government system of restricting Chinese immigration. In the past a great proportion of the Chinese who have unlawfully entered the United States have landed at Vancouver, B. C., and crossed the border all the way from the Pacific coast to the St. Lawrence river.

Under the old law Chinese landing at Vancouver were supposed to be transported to Montreal, and were there examined before they were allowed to enter the United States. Hereafter they are to be carried to four different points along the border the most westerly being Sumas, and there they will be examined.

Sumas Station.
Sumas, being the nearest station to Vancouver, is expected to handle a larger number of Chinese than any other border port, and preparations for their reception are soon to be made by the immigration bureau. The local authorities are to be instructed to enforce the law most rigidly, and to admit no Chinese who fail to qualify under the amended restriction law that became operative recently.

To facilitate the identification of Chinese the Sumas station will be equipped with a set of Bertillon apparatus similar to that employed by the police authorities, and every Chinese entering or leaving that port will be carefully measured, and his identity recorded, before he is allowed to pass on. Copies of these records will be transmitted to all ports in the United States, at which Chinese are authorized to enter, and will become a part of the permanent files.

The statement of an old-line insurance company for losses paid last year, show $1,179,985 losses, of which amount only $64,532 was paid to those engaged in the business of life underwriting.

WHY WE ARE AGENTS

Here Are Some of the Convincing Facts That Caused us to Take the Agency for the Fulton Compounds, the First Things Known that Cure Chronic Kidney Diseases.

First, let it be distinctly understood that every one of the cases below had been diagnosed by one or more physicians as chronic and incurable; second, note the certainty of the results as shown by the recovery also of the friends they told who were similarly afflicted with supposed incurable kidney diseases.

N. W. Spaulding, President Spaulding Saw Co., San Francisco, had a recovery in his own family and told several others who recovered.

Altogether Weske, capitalist, San Francisco, recovered himself and told two friends who recovered.

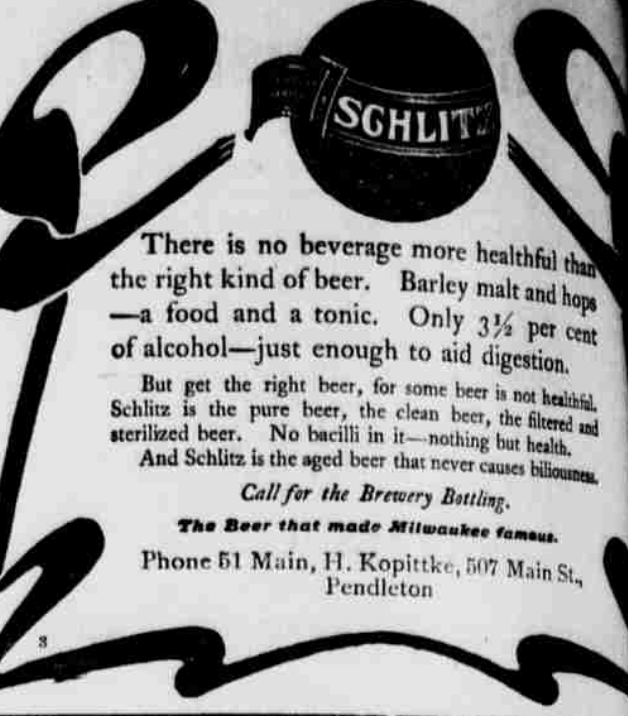

Dr. Carl D. Ziele, pioneer druggist, 927 Pacific street, San Francisco, recovered himself and gave it to more than a dozen patients who recovered.

Charles Engelle, editor of the German paper, San Francisco, recovered himself and told it to a number who recovered, one of them being Charles E. Wacker, the Sixth street merchant.

R. M. Wood, editor Wine and Spirit Review, recovered himself and told it to several who recovered, among them being an old-school physician. Edward Short of the San Francisco Call recovered, also three of his friends, viz: William Martin, Captain Hubbard of the Honolulu route and William Hawkins of the U. S. Quartermaster's Department of San Francisco.

John A. Phelps of the Hotel Koppeler, San Francisco, and two of his friends, etc. etc. The kidneys are the sewers that strain the poisons out of the system. We can stand the drainage for a short while, but when the interference becomes chronic (permanent), as first explained by Bright, it is only a question of how long before death will ensue. It is then called Bright's Disease and incurable. All kidney troubles develop into this form about the 5th to 10th month. The above cases were incurable by all other known means. People having kidney disease should begin at first with the only known thing that will cure it if it has reached the serious stage.
