REMODELING A STORE.

Various Changes Being Made to Increase Convenience and Efficiency. Lee Teutsch is making some big in his store on Main street He has taken the cashler's desk from the lower floor and located it up stairs, in the rear end of the room now occupied by the ladies' depart-ment. This gives him a large arch connecting the two parts of his store He has also separated the shoe department, so that the ladies' shoes are all in the ladies' department of the store.

The men's furnishings department The men's furnishings department will be all changed around and tear-ranged, making the store, when the work is completed, one of the most conveniently arranged in the city. New tables and shelving will be put in and the store will be remodeled in IDY WRYE.

Largest Haystack,

In Australia the haystacks are of enormous size. As in England, im-mense quantities of hay are stored out of doors, and, like their English models, the great stacks are built with picturesque peaked roof lines, and smooth, well-raked sides. It is a common right in Australia, however to see a baystack several times the size of the barn which houses the rest of the crops of the farm. These enormous haystacks frequently con-tain some thousands of tons of hay. The largest haystack ever built, so far as known, was in the district of Victoria. The length of this mam-moth stack, when complete, was 298 teet, while its width was 97 feet. In other words, practically a New York rity block and a half in length. The height of the stack when finished was nearly 100 feet. Several stacks were required, with the ald of a score of wagons, to construct the great hay-stack. It was afterward ground up into chaff to supply a part of the fod der for the horses in the South Afri-

The August Century will have the accound installment of some hitherto unpublished letters of Sir Walter Scott. There are 19 of these, all of good length. They are addressed to good length. They are addressed to Mrs. Mary Anne Watts Hughes, and give intimate accounts of the great aovelist's literary labors, business ad-versities and family life during his closing years. The last letter, April 4, 1831, refers to the writer's mental and physical depression, and ends, "Always sincerely and affectionately yours." It was in the summer follow-ing that Sir Walter Scott went abroad on his last trip, returning to die at Abbotsford, September 21, 1832.
