FRAZER'S LEASED

OPERA HOUSE WILL BE RE-MODELED THROUGHOUT.

R. J. Nixon and K. J. Taylor, of Seattle, New Lessees—Planning Great Changes in Stage and Scenery—Will Open September 1 With "The Christian."

R. J. Nixon and K. J. Taylor of Seattle have leased Frazer's opera house for the coming year, and are here to remodel the inside of the building. Work will be commenced next Monday and when the men are through with the job, the opera house will be greatly improved. Messrs. Nixon and Taylor are in the city making arrangements for the commencement of the work. Mr. Nixon has been with John Cort, the manager of the Northwest circuit for some time, and both are theater men of much experience. They have been busy at the opera house today, planning the changes to be made.

The stage will be remodeled from the top to the bottom. The fly gallery will be altered so that all of the scenery can be handled with ease and the stage will be wired so that all the modern electrical effects can be used in the plays that will be put on the coming year.

The scenery will all be new, the contract is let and the work is being done at North Yakima by an artist in the employ of the company. The new scenes will be modern and up-to-date and will be on new lines from anything that is now in the house, so that the theatergoers of the city will have a change of scenes when the house opens the first of the coming month.

The dressing rooms will be rebuilt and refitted and made as comfortable and convenient as in any house in the state. New mirrors, new stoves, new lighting and new furnishings will be the order for the whole house.

The interior of the auditorium will be renovated and redecorated. A new coat of paint will be given to the whole interior and in fine when the house is opened for the first play it will be the same as new.

One thousand dollars will be spent on the place to make it comfortable for the people of the city and for their pleasure. E. J. Murphy has the contract for the repairs and will rush the work, so that all will be in readiness for the opening.

A long list of the star attractions of the coming season await the people of the city this year, and the management will put on only the best plays.

The season will be opened the first of September with the presentation of Hall Caine's masterpiece, "The Christian." This play has been before the public too long to need any comment and as the managers of the house say that all of the plays to be put before the people this season are of the same plane it will be seen that many treats are in store for Pendleton's playgoing populace this fall and winter.

FOR NAMELESS CRIME.

John Fleming, Moral Degenerate, Now in Jail.

Upon the complaint of James Summers, an information was issued in the office of Justice of the Peace Thomas Fitz Gerald this morning, charging John Fleming with indecent exposure and immoral actions toward his two little boys. The man was arrested and is now in the county jail.

Fleming is the man who has been around the city for some time making and selling curios made from wood. He is a hobo, and is, from the accounts that have been given to the police, a moral degenerate who would be better off in the asylum or the penitentiary where he would be out of the way and a menace to no one.

The time of the examination has not been set, but it will perhaps be heard Monday.

AT SHIELDS' PARK.

Entire Change of Program Monday Night.

The old faces pass on and the new come upon the scene at the park Monday night.

The bill for next week promises to be first-class in every respect. The five numbers assigned here for the week are as follows:

- Wise and Milton, comedy sketch.
- Frank Bowman, illusionist.
- J. J. Welch, monologue and illustrated songs.
- Zoyarra, revolving globe act.
- Ronald Bradbury, phenomenal baritone.

All these numbers have made excellent hits in Walla Walla.

Mr. Welch, who will sing the illustrated songs, has just come from the Orpheum circuit, which is an assurance of a high order of ability.

This is the last opportunity to see the wonderful monoped, Earne and Honegger. They will leave in the morning for Seattle.

The splendid prizes which are to be given away may be seen at Rader's furniture store. They are to be given away to some lucky persons on Saturday, August 15. A ticket for the drawing is being given with each admission to the park.

MARRIES HIS WIFE.

Queer Matrimonial Experience of Two Portland People.

Although they have been man and wife and have lived together as such for five years past, Joseph G. Cogan and Mrs. Clara Cogan, formerly Miss Baumeister, are to be married, says the Oregonian. They will secure a marriage license and have the marriage ceremony performed just as if the time for a climax to their courtship had arrived for the first time. The conditions that make the second marriage necessary are stranger than the matrimonial episode of Enoch Arden and, indeed, there is something of a similarity.

When the couple were married about five years ago, Mrs. Cogan, then Miss Baumeister, was a young widow; or at least she supposed she was, her husband having disappeared and supposedly died or had been killed.

But after she had laid aside the widow's weeds and ventured again into matrimony, there came the very unexpected news that the husband she had mourned as dead still lived. However, he accepted the situation as it stood and there was no trouble and Mr. and Mrs. Cogan lived happily together.

This was the situation until recently, when the first husband died. Mr. Cogan then consulted a well-known lawyer in the city and was advised that, while he and his wife undoubtedly acted in good faith when they were married the first time, a second marriage would remove all doubts, for to reduce the matter to technicalities a marriage to a second husband while the first is yet living is illegal, although such a construction of law would have been decidedly harsh in this case. Only a few of their most intimate friends were let in on the secret and even fewer were told of the second wedding, which is to be held as soon as Mr. and Mrs. Cogan have secured a formal marriage certificate from the county clerk.

In Great Need of Men.

A great deal of trouble is being experienced by the railroads in getting men, even after they ship them.

Every train out of Portland and the Washington cities carries a load of men bound for the construction camps of the railroads and when the train reaches the camp there are very few willing to work. All of the men who will work are in the harvest fields, and the rest that are shipped are tramps and hoboes who take advantage of the need for men to get from one place to the other.

"I never heard Dinsmore acknowledge that he was growing old before today." "How did he acknowledge it?" "He announced that he felt as young as he ever did."—Detroit Free Press.
