PILING TO SALT LAKE.

Oregon and Washington Timber Used on the Famous Cut-Off.

Day after day there passes through the city cars loaded with piling bound for the Southern Pacific cut-off at Salt Lake. The S. P. track between Ogden and Salt Lake makes a big bend around the edge of the lake, and in order to shorten the distance it was decided to build a new track closer to the water. For years the lake has been settling and growing smaller and smaller, and it has left a long reach of salt marsh along the water line. Across this the track has been built. Already the company has sunk over $2,000,000 in the construction and yet it is incomplete. Trainload after trainload of rock has been hauled out to the place and dumped onto the ground, only to sink out of sight. Now the company is sinking piles, one on the top of the other, and seemingly has not yet found the bottom of the marsh. For months the work has gone on and the track has been made apparently solid, but when a train has gone out on it it sagged and sank. Now they are attempting to find the bottom with piling, and Oregon and Washington are supplying the demand.

AT SHIELDS' PARK.

List of Prizes Won Saturday Night—Entire Change of Program.

A large number of the people of the city were at the park last Saturday evening to witness the performance and get their chance at the prize drawing contest. Four of the numbers that were drawn were not in the park, and new ones were taken from the box, as is the plan of the management. The four numbers were 3,630, 5,826, 4,464 and 5,662.

Henry Tippler won the first prize, with the number 4,603. This was the mirror. Emma Bowman won the rocker with the number 5,391. W. D. Chamberlain won the third prize, "Pharaoh's Horses," with the number 4,723, and the fourth prize went to F. E. Barker, who held the number 5,911, and J. H. Duncan got the other one with number 4,963.

This evening there will be an entire change in the program and all of the actors will be new. Some very interesting specialties are in store for those who attend, and as this will be comedy week it is expected that the park will be crowded as it has been in the past.

The bill will consist of Mr. and Mrs. Brownson, in their comedy creation, "A Brainy Boy"; Stanley and Scanton, the musical team; Sims, the cartoonist, and Bartelme, the novelty foot juggler and upside down dancer. Will Murray will sing the illustrated songs, which will all be new ones, and there will be new pictures on the polycope.

JOSEPH WAS FULL.

Rode Another Man's Horse Out of Town by Mistake.

There is on the reservation an Indian known as Joseph, and by that name alone. Once in a while he comes to the home of the paleface and manages to secure by some means large quantities of the water that cheers, and as a general rule enriches the city to the extent of a few of the dollars of the great father before he returns to his wigwam on the reservation.

Sunday he was here on one of his pilgrimages, and when he started home he accidentally got hold of Tom Hampton's horse, which was tied in the corral, and rode him out of town. The brother of the owner recognized the animal as it was going out of the east edge of the city, and took possession of the horse and rider also. This morning Joseph pleaded guilty to the court of being drunk, and gave Judge Fitz Gerald $10 as a bonus for the pleasure he had had and as rent for his bed in the city hotel for the day.

NEW DEPOT WALK.

Scheme to Obviate Inconvenience to the Public During the Work.

The workmen at the depot have commenced to put in the new walk that is to extend around the building and in order not to delay the traffic or inconvenience the traveling public, they are taking up half of the walk at a time. The walk is sawed in two parts along the center stringer and the half next to the building put in first. After that is completed the other half will be laid. In this way there will be no confusion during the time that the work is being done.

EIGHT CARS CATTLE

BOUGHT ON M'KAY CREEK AND ALL ARE FINE BEEVES.

Increasing Number of Cattle on the Market, and Prices Have Fallen—Scarcity of Feed and Growers Must Sell—Buyers Have the Edge on the Situation.

J. C. Lonergan will ship eight cars, or about 200 head of fat cattle to the Frye-Bruhne Meat Company of Seattle on Friday next. The shipment was bought in the country at the head of McKay creek, and all of the cattle are in good condition and young.

Mr. Lonergan reports that there are plenty of cattle on the market, and that the price has fallen in the last two weeks. The buyers are now offering $2.50 per 100 for cows, which is lower than the market has been for several years. Steers are selling for $3.50, which is lower than the price at this time last year, when they sold for $3.65 and $3.75.

Part of the reason for the fall is the fact that there is not enough feed for the cattle that are in the country, and the dealers know that the growers have to sell or move their stock. On the other hand, the growers recognize the conditions and are willing to let the cattle go rather than lose them in the winter and spring. It is a sort of arbitration on both sides, with the odds in favor of the man who wants to buy the stock. Another thing that tends to lower the price, is that the country has more stock than it could well feed if the hay had not been light, and the market is to a certain extent overstocked. Recognizing this the growers are attempting to get rid of their surplus, and the dealers are paying less than if the owners were not anxious to sell.

They Lead the Procession

The popularity of Swift's products among all classes is very largely due to the absolutely clean and hygienic conditions under which each carcass is dressed, and the meat and the food products prepared and inspected. This is particularly true of Swift's Premium Ham and Bacon. From the sleek, corn-fed hogs in the pens, the carefully selected hams and bacon in the smokehouse, the final expert inspection by the U. S. government, and, lastly, the dainty wrapping in parchment paper, each step in the evolution of these nutritious and appetizing products is a guarantee that they will always please.
