AT OREGON'S FARM

EXPERIMENT STATION
NOW IN ITS GLORY.

Over Five Hundred Tons of Hay Stacked This Year—Experimental Area Comprises 203 Acres—Seed Will Be Saved and Sold to Farmers at Cost.

The farm at the Eastern Oregon Experiment Station at Union, is now a fragment of Elysium. At no other spot in the state, and perhaps not in the Northwest, is there such a variety of mingling hues, and flaming blossoms. The grounds surrounding the station buildings, for a couple of acres in extent, and the lawn and garden at the dwelling are one mass of bloom, so highly cultivated and so tastefully intermingled, that it is almost impossible to say where one dream ends and another begins.

Every known variety of domesticated flower, which will grow in this climate, is cultivated there, and adds its color to the brilliant effect.

In the farm are 620 acres of the richest land that lies under the sun in Oregon. It is black and yielding. The moisture is always at the very surface. It is strong in plant producing properties. It is noted for its vigorous and extraordinary yields of grain, fruit and vegetables. It is, in fact, the essence of soil value, only awaiting the application of right principles of farming to produce the highest grade of products. In the greatest possible profusion.

The hay crop this year amounts to about 550 tons of wheat, oats, timothy, alfalfa and wild hay. It is all of the finest quality and can be sold at from $6 to $8 per ton. The hay area comprises about two-thirds of the farm, and the alfalfa made two good crops.

The experimental area comprises 200 acres and is probably the most variegated 200 acres of land in the state. Upon this tract is grown all the common field and garden crops in different amounts. The corn crop comprises about two acres and the plants are now from four to seven feet high. The ears are large, firm, well filled and plump. If the weather continues, it will probably yield 40 bushels to the acre, of fine corn.

The sugar beet area will average 20 tons to the acre and comprises about 10 acres, and the seed beet crop about two acres, of the choicest plants that grew last year. These plants are now weighted down with seed, and while they have been chosen for their special sugar producing values, they differ as much in appearance as that many individuals, and the superintendent of the farm, A. B. Leckenby, knows each one and watches its individual growth and development, with almost as much interest as he would that of a child left in his care.

It is the intention of the superintendent to ultimately produce enough seed on the farm to supply the Grande Ronde beetgrowers. The seed now used in that valley comes from Germany, and costs from 10 to 12 cents a pound, delivered in Oregon. This imported seed does not produce the same high quality of beet as the Oregon-grown seed. It is the aim of the management of the farm, to gradually supplant the foreign seed with a home product, suited to the climate, and the soil of the country in which it is to be used.

As a test of the different kinds of vegetable seeds, Mr. Leckenby this year sent to Paris for the seed of a very high class carrot, the White Vosges, known in Europe for its sugar producing qualities.

About one-fourth of this seed came up and grew while the other part of it never sprouted. In a bed next to this, he planted some of the common garden carrots, almost every seed of which grew and matured a full-sized plant.

In the grass beds on the farm are 184 varieties of bromus encermus. Some of these grasses are waist high and so thick on the ground that they would produce five tons of forage to the acre, if all the crop were as heavy as these beds. They differ in appearance and form, as other plants, and show their adaptability to the climate by their thrifty and vigorous growth.

Mr. Leckenby is confident that any of these varieties, if given a fair start, will take place of the old bunchgrass of the foothills. They will grow on the driest ground and are so hardy that the constant trampling of stock would not affect them, as it does the more delicate bunchgrass.

He saves all the seed produced by the different experimental crops with a view to supplying the demand from the farmers of the state, as they come to learn of the excellence of the quality grown there.

garden and field plant is best adapted to the climate. By selling this native seed to the producers at cost, it will always be a cheap source of supply, and also a source of profit to the state, for the crops grown upon the farm can always be sold to good advantage.

Last year 3,000 analytical tests were made for soil value and food qualities in different kinds of plants. The scientific part of the management of the farm never ceases. If a peculiarly strong plant is noticed in any of the crops, it is immediately placed under special care, and all its seed kept separate and planted the following season, with a view to securing the most healthful and strong varieties.

If a plant develops any peculiar appearance or form, an investigation into the cause is at once made and the culture of the common carrot bed is accompanied with the same watchful care and solicitude as would be ordinarily accorded to the offspring of a king.

TRIB.

The World's Greatest Liquor and Tobacco Cure.

C. E. Hodge, for years manager of the Orange Front Drug Co., of Baker City, Oregon, says:

"In regard to Trib, I have to say out of about 300 treatments I have had since September 25, 1902, I have had but eight complaints. I have handled patent medicines for 16 years, but have never had a remedy on my shelf that has given the general satisfaction your Trib has. It is truthfully a great cure for either the liquor or tobacco habit."

Trib can be taken privately, and is a harmless permanent cure for the liquor or tobacco habit.

Price per treatment $1.50. For sale by all druggists.

A NEW UNION.

How to Join and Get Quick Results at Small Cost.

Why not join our union of piano purchasers and have a hundred dollars? You can do it and we can help you. This is how it is done: We can well afford to sell ten or more pianos cheaper than you, so have organized a union of ten members. You join and pay $10.00 down and $10.00 a month, the piano is yours. Now here is the best part of it. Every time a new member joins the price of your instrument depreciates in price $10. In other words, when the union is filled every member gets his instrument $10. less than regular price. For example, a regular $300.00 instrument can be had for $200.00 by joining the union. Don't delay taking advantage of this great opportunity, as it will only last a few weeks of the dull season. This, combined with our easy payment plan and exchange contract makes it possible for everyone to have an instrument. Therkelsen's Piano House, 315 E. Court street. Everything musical.
