AS TO IRRIGATION

STATUS AND PROSPECTS OF GOVERNMENT WORK.

Messrs. Newell, Savage, Whistler Et Al Meet With the Commercial Association—Impart Much Valuable Information as to the Bureau's Work in This and Other States—Officials Cannot Tell "Which Way the Cat Will Jump."

Last Saturday evening the Commercial Association assembled with their friends in the rooms of the association to meet with the party of irrigationists who were here looking into the conditions of the country in the service of the interior department. The guests of honor for the evening were F. H. Newell, the head of the reclamation bureau of the department of the interior, H. M. Savage and J. T. Whistler, engineers of the department, and Congressman J. N. Williamson and ex-Congressman Malcolm A. Moody. A large number of the men of the city who have the problem of the watering of the semiarid portion of the state at heart, were present, and listened with great interest to the remarks and explanations that were made by Mr. Newell.

Magnitude and Uncertainty.
Mr. Newell said that the task was of such magnitude that the men who were interested in the movement were compelled to go slowly and carefully in their investigations for fear that in the end they would be unsuccessful in what they undertook if they did not first consider all the details of the case. What had already been done was the patient work of years, and the best efforts of men who had made the subject a life work. And in the work there was so much to do that it must of necessity be a slow process. First, the district engineers gathered all of the data at their command and from it made the reports which they submitted to the bureau; this was in turn given to the board of engineers, who examined it, and they passed on it, and if it was deemed feasible it was recommended to the department for action, and then finally, if the department saw fit, the works were begun.

All of the work had been gone over so many times that there was not much of newness in the discussion; but there was one thing that had not been understood, and that was the fact that the engineers favored no state or community for the reason that one part had put up more money than the other. The question that was first considered in the recommendations of the engineers was the needs of the country. For instance, in Nevada all of the people are moving out of the state. There are now not more than 40,000 people resident there—just about enough to make one good-sized town, were they all rounded up into one place. And this small number of people have to support all the expenses of a government. The strain is too much for them; and they are leaving the state. It has been thought best by the department in order to upbuild the state, to fly to the help of the people by the irrigation of their land, and works are now in course of construction. When they are done, a valley 60 miles long and of good width will be under water, and the state will have a nucleus around which to gather for the reclamation of the country.

Oregon is not the first on the list of the states that have made appropriations for irrigation work, but is at least third down the line. But this fact will have no bearing on the report of the investigators. The works will be located where they will have the greatest effect in the making of the state, and the consequent good of the nation. The problem now before the investigators is where to locate the works—where to find a place that is feasible, and where the land will justify the expense. When this place of places is found and has been proven to be good, the works will be started.

State Legislation Needed.
The greatest thing that the state could do to help the men who have charge of the government work would be to see that there is suitable legislation enacted, so that when the time comes for the construction to begin there will be no trouble over water rights, and no injustice done. The men of the state should see that there is a commission appointed who will be competent and willing to investigate all of the points of such a measure; to examine into the prior rights of those who now are using the streams, to determine the number of inches that each man would be in justice entitled to use, and then draft all of their findings into a bill for the next session of the legislature.

But as far as being able to tell what would be the ultimate outcome, it was impossible, for the engineers did not know themselves what the department would do with their recommendations.

Mr. Williamson and Mr. Moody also made short talks on the subject, as did some of the men of the city, and at the conclusion of the meeting an informal discussion was indulged in by those most interested in the movement.

Working for Columbia College.

Rev. G. H. Gibbs, pastor of the South Methodist Church at Milton, who has been traveling over Eastern Oregon and parts of Idaho in the interest of Columbia College, at Milton, spent last night in the city and left for his home this morning. He has met with very encouraging success at every point visited, and the prospects for a good attendance for the coming year are excellent. This college has grown in popularity and efficiency until it now stands in the front rank of Eastern Oregon institutions, and one of which Umatilla county is justly proud.

WHAT MADE IT SO?

Many people are coming in with the report that the wheat is better than they thought, large, plump and fine. Many people are coming in with the report that the shoes sold at the big Boston Store are better than others and they want some of them. They are large, plump and fine. It is a fact we do pay the manufacturer more for a shoe to sell at a given price than others do, and thus we secure greater value. We sell shoes at a less expense per dollar's worth than any other concern in the city, and therefore we can afford to handle such lines as the Douglas for men, Gloria for women, and Red School House for children.

Douglas is the largest manufacturer of welt shoes to sell at $3, $3.50 and $4 in the world, and we certainly have a representative line, one that will astonish you. The Gloria $3.50 shoe for women is the best shoe at this price sold the American public today. We find each season an increase of trade—why is it? Merit that confirms buying opinion. Good wear combined with good looks and comfort. Oh yes, we must not overlook the Red S. H. shoes. They fit the school boys and girls. We have kinds for each. I believe you had better get the next pair at the
