KEIR HARDIE IS ILL

NOTED ORGANIZER OF THE LABORING MEN.

Born in Poverty and With a Scant Education. He Became a Great Labor Leader and Was Once in Parliament—Organized the Independent Labor Party.

London, Sept. 4.—News of the serious illness of Keir Hardie will be received with interest in organized labor circles in America, for, by the reason of his several visits to the United States, his name is almost as familiar in that country as on this side of the water. For several weeks he has lain at his London lodgings, too ill to be removed to his home in Scotland. His death, which it is feared may be imminent, undoubtedly would leave a gap in the ranks of British trades unionists which it would be difficult to fill, however much public opinion may be at variance regarding the man himself.

For years Mr. Hardie has occupied a conspicuous place in the public eye. His followers speak of him as the greatest labor leader England ever produced. Those whose doctrines do not coincide with his term him a mere empty brand, a blathering, pure and simple. It is evident that one who draws forth such extremes of praise and vituperation must of necessity be possessed of qualities out of the ordinary.

Hardie is now nearing his fiftieth year and has been identified with labor unions and socialist propaganda ever since he was able to think for himself, and he began to think when he was a mere lad. Born in a little village in the mining region of Ayrshire, he got a very scant education, and then had to go to work. Like his father and most of his relatives he has been at work as a driver at the surface dumps of the coal mines. When he got older he went to work underground. He early became imbued with the idea that the laborer was getting anything but justice. From the teachings of his fellow-laborers he became interested in the theory of socialism and began an extensive course of reading. He had a natural facility in speech—a gift which his enemies call it—and before he was 21 was one of the best public speakers in the region where he lived.

Before he was 25 years of age his leadership in several strikes had made his name well known in all the border mining regions and from there spread throughout the English laboring world. But Hardie was not satisfied with merely speaking of socialism and talking of the things that might be accomplished for and by the laboring classes. Legislation was the only means of bringing about the desired reforms, and to legislation and its attendant, practical politics, Mr. Hardie turned his attention. After studying the situation he organized the Independent Labor party. The independent labor party grew slowly in power until in 1892 it was able to elect Hardie to the house of commons. With their leader in the commons the members of the party hoped to secure much. Other labor parties also were hopeful, and politicians generally awaited with some anxiety Hardie's next move.

The first surprise came the day he took his seat. It is an unwritten law of the house of commons that each member shall wear a black frock coat and a silk hat. Mr. Hardie did not feel bound in any way by this rule, and when he appeared he had on a coarser cap and a greasy sack coat. To say that he created a sensation is to put it mildly. The old members were shocked at what seemed to them a sacrilegious trampling upon tradition. But Mr. Hardie's followers were pleased immensely.

"BARGAIN DAY" A SUCCESS.

Oregon Daily Journal Meets With Phenomenal Patronage.

Real money possesses certain attractive qualities wherever it may be seen. There was plenty of it in Woodward, Clarke & Co.'s window last Saturday—the returns from the Journal's bargain day offer, gold money, bank drafts, checks, money orders and bills, with a bucketful of silver dollars and half dollars thrown in for good measure. There wasn't room for all of it in the spacious show window, so hundreds of the money orders and checks had to be pinned on the hangings at the rear of the window, says the Oregon Daily Journal.

All that money represented just one day's receipts in subscriptions to The Journal. The cashier hasn't yet finished counting all that has come in in response to the offer. However, at last accounts the number of Journal subscriptions under the offer, was daily, semi-weekly and weekly, more than 8,000.

No newspaper in Oregon has ever done anything like it before. No newspaper in the Northwest has ever had such a day's receipts.

It was all the result of a month's advertising in The Journal.

Everybody has heard of bargain days at department stores, but who ever heard of a bargain day in newspapers? The Journal thought of it, and with The Journal to get a good idea as to put it into execution.

July 25 a page advertisement was inserted in The Journal announcing that August 25, "Bargain Day." The Journal would reduce its subscription prices to $2.50 for the daily paper for one year, 75 cents for the semi-weekly and 50 cents for the weekly. In addition The Journal offered prizes for the largest list of subscribers sent in. These prizes amount altogether to $500 and will be distributed as soon as the heavy lists can be tabulated. Books and articles for personal use, worth from $2 to $25, were given away to everybody who sent in 25 subscriptions or more. Also there were a number of cash prizes won on "Bargain Day."

This advertisement was printed in the country edition of The Daily Journal not often than twice a week, twice in the weekly and twice in the semi-weekly. In all it appeared about a dozen times.

The readers of The Journal saw it and told their friends. Their friends in turn told their friends and the news went abroad, that the most thoroughly up-to-date newspaper in Oregon was offering subscriptions at a rate absurdly low. The people jumped at the offer. Knowing that never again would they have such a chance, they opened their pocketbooks and forthwith silver and gold and paper began to pour in on The Journal.

To give an idea of the rate at which subscriptions were coming in The Journal made a display in the big show window of Woodward, Clarke & Co., of the receipts for the single day, August 25, the announced bargain day. And that display of the returns from the Journal's "Bargain Day" offer was a revelation to those who saw it.

In that display that attracted thousands to the show window on Washington and Fourth streets were money orders and checks from every city, town and hamlet in Oregon, from nearly every bank in the state and representing every class of people that reads newspapers and knows a good newspaper when it sees one.

The result of The Journal's "Bargain Day" is a testimonial of good will from the people of the Oregon country to The Journal as a newspaper and an advertising medium, as "Bargain Day" was exclusively advertised in The Journal, with the exception that The Journal's generous contemporaries made frequent mention of the novel idea, for which The Journal is deeply obligated.

WANT GOOD IRRIGATIONISTS.

Utah People Warmly Urge Governor Chamberlain to Attend Convention.

Governor Chamberlain is receiving urgent invitations to attend the National Irrigation Congress at Ogden, Utah, and he is asked to address the congress on some subject of interest to the irrigationists, says the Salem Journal.

Among the letters received this morning was one from Governor Heber M. Wells, of Utah, who personally urges the governor to attend. Another was received from the officers of the irrigation congress, a third from the chairman of the executive committee, and still another from the mayor of Ogden.

All these express the earnest wishes of the writers that the governor attend the congresses and assist in the work before it. The prominent men of Utah have pleasant recollections of the governor's visit when the Elks were there.

WHY CROPS FAILED.

Franklin County People Seeded in Careless Manner.

"The great majority of the farmers of Franklin county sowed acres, not wheat this season, and this in a measure accounts for the poor yield in that county," says the Walla Walla Union.

So Albert F. Chittenden, Whitman 93, accounts for the fact that the average yield of wheat in Franklin county was eight instead of 15 bushels per acre this year. Mr. Chittenden and his brother have several sections of land 12 miles this side of Kahlotus, which they believe to be as good as the land of Enreha, etc.

"Whenever farmers cultivate their land as it should be, the crop will be correspondingly large," continued Mr. Chittenden, "On breaking and other land which has been merely scratched over it is preposterous to expect to receive an abundant harvest."

As to the persistent report of dissatisfaction among the farmers of Franklin county because of the short crop, Mr. Chittenden said the effect of failure was felt keenly by the farmers who came to the new country recently with barely sufficient means to make their way with favorable conditions. These, he thought, would in some cases leave the country if they could sell out.

Rheumatism Is Not a Skin Disease.

Most people have an idea that rheumatism is contracted like a cold, that the damp, chilly air penetrates the muscles and joints and causes the terrible aches and pains, or that it is something like a skin disease to be rubbed away with liniment or drawn out with plasters; but Rheumatism originates in the blood and is caused by Urea, or Uric Acid, an irritating, corroding poison that settles in muscles, joints and nerves, producing inflammation and soreness and the sharp, cutting pains peculiar to this distressing disease.

Exposure to bad weather or sudden chilling of the body will hasten an attack of Rheumatism after the blood and system are in the right condition for it to develop, but have nothing to do with the real true causes of Rheumatism, which are internal and not external.

Liniments, plasters and rubbing will sometimes reduce the inflammation and swelling and ease the pain for a time, but fail to relieve permanently because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it attacks it in the blood, and the Uric Acid poison is neutralized, the sluggish circulation stimulated and quickened, and soon the system is purified and cleansed, the aching muscles and joints are relieved of all irritating matter and a lasting cure of this most painful disease effected.

S. S. S. is a harmless vegetable remedy, unequalled as a blood purifier and an invigorating, pleasant tonic. Book on Rheumatism will be mailed free.
