SESSION IS OVER

districts. A commissioner for each district is appointed by the governor. The three commissioners and the state engineer compose the state irrigation board, to which are first referred all adjustments of water rights and supply. In each district is one or more water masters, appointed by the commissioner of the district. The duty of this water master is to supervise the distribution of water, where a large number of users are located under one ditch or canal.

All water rights are regulated and fixed with regard to equitable distribution and use and violations of the regulations are punishable.

The government engineers said when Mr. Newell was in Pendleton, and they repeat the statement at every opportunity, that it is highly necessary that Oregon get right on the irrigation law question, so that her present crude laws, or rather absence of law, will not interfere with the ends and objects of the magnificent national irrigation act.

Disfranchised Themselves.
One of the most critical points reached in the progress of the congress, was when the first vote of states was called on a change of the constitutional number of delegates, on Wednesday.

Although 846 delegates presented credentials and took seats in the congress, when the time came and the vote was taken, the congress disfranchised 600 of its delegates and refused to permit all present to vote.

Reed Smoot struck the key-note of the situation when he said that if the delegates changed the constitution to allow all present to vote at any congress, that the state having a meeting of the association could control all its deliberations by flooding the congress with delegates from nearby points.

So the states submitted to the old apportionment and the states of Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Washington, although they had nearly 300 delegates present, had but 20 votes each, or 80 votes in all. This will tend to reduce the attendance at future conventions, for states will not care to send large delegations which have no voice in the congress. Iowa, Illinois and Kentucky have an equal vote with arid states and some adjustment of this point will soon be necessary, if the association is to live and conserve the interests of the arid states, which gave it birth.

ELECTION IN SERBIA.

Murder of Alexander is the Most Acute Issue.

Vienna, Sept. 21.—Dispatches from Belgrade say that more than usual interest is manifested in the election of a new skuptschina being held in Serbia today. With the government in control of the electoral machinery the election of a majority favorable to the present regime is almost certain, though the element of doubt in the result is sufficiently strong to excite widespread interest.

With the opposition in control of the national legislative body steps undoubtedly would be recommended immediately for an official probe of the circumstances attending the massacre of the late King Alexander and his consort, with a view to ascertaining the connection, if any such existed, between King Peter and the conspiring regicides.

Master Brewers' Convention.
Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—Nearly 400 delegates were present today at the opening of the 15th annual convention of the United States Master Brewers' Association. Technical papers and discussions are to occupy two days and the remainder of the week will be given over to features of entertainment.
