MAXWELL CANNOT COME.

Author of Irrigation Law Finds it impossible to Attend Oregon Meeting.

George H. Maxwell, author of the Irrigation Law, and executive director of the National Irrigation Association, was invited by the Oregon delegation at Ogden to attend a meeting of the State Irrigation Association in this city, in November, but the gentleman said in view of previous engagements it would be impossible for him to arrange his return to come.

Mr. Maxwell has just completed a western tour in which he spoke in Skane, Seattle and Portland, and owing to his absence from home for the past month, he must necessarily line future engagements at present.

He was one of the ablest men in the congress, and where there is a strong feeling against him in Kansas, Colorado and California on account of his attempt to merge the Trans-Mississippi congress and the National Irrigation Association, yet he is one of the leaders in the movement for national reclamation in the country.

It is possible that the author of Idaho irrigation laws will be present at the Oregon state meeting.

Shields' Park Torn Down.
Workmen finished removing the lumber from the lot formerly occupied by Shields' Park, today. The lumber and lumber was purchased by T. M. Lowe, and will be used in the frame work of a new dwelling, which he will erect in the near future on High street, in the vicinity of the high school building.

SEWER MEN STRIKE

ALL WORKMEN ON COURT STREET EXTENSION OUT.

Struck Because a Foreman Was Discharged Who Would Not Discharge a Laborer—General Foreman Claims He Can Get Laborers When He Needs Them.

All of the workmen on the Court street sewer construction quit work this morning, and as a result the construction is crippled to some extent, though J. F. Shultz, the general foreman, claims that the slackness of the work is owing to the fact that the sewer is crossing Main street today and but a few men can be used until the line is once more strung out along the sewer street.

Yesterday afternoon Shultz requested Jess Ward, the foreman of the Court street gang to discharge a man named Jim Duke, one of the shovel hands on the Court street work, as his work was not satisfactory. The foreman refused, and as a result lost his job. This morning when the men came to work they asked that their foreman be reinstated, and when it was not done, they put their shovels and picks in the tool house and quit.

There Are Others.

As a result, only one of the men in the gang stayed with his job, and he was a boy. The foreman claims that when he wants more men he will have all that he can use, but that until the ditch crosses Main street he will use a small gang and work them in little space, so as not to interfere with traffic more than is necessary. Every day now is precious to the constructors of the works, for they have far to go before they finish their contract, and not much time in which to make the distance. If it were to transpire that more men could not be had to fill the places of the strikers, the work would be delayed and the contractors would be seriously inconvenienced.

Mr. Shultz says that the reason Ward was discharged was that he was not competent to run the gang.

WRECK ABOUT CLEARED UP.

Company Will Sell Coal to Highest Bidder—Thirteen Cars a Total Loss.

Foreman F. P. Rounds, of the O. R. & N., billed most of the scrap iron and the cars that were saved from the Cayuse wreck to Albina, today. Out of a total of 17 cars wrecked, 13 are a total loss. Four steel coal cars were saved and will be repaired at the Albina shops. Portions of two box cars will also be saved although they are badly damaged.

There is about 400 tons of excellent coal in the wreckage. That portion of the coal lying near the tracks will be gathered up by the company and brought to this city, but a large amount of it is scattered down the embankment out of reach, and this will be sold to the highest bidder in the near future.

SOME IRRIGATION POINTS.

Oregon Has More Natural Advantages Than Utah.

and what of good will spring from it. Mr. Halley, in speaking of the matter, thinks that one of the chief points of benefit to this part of the state is the enthusiasm that was engendered by the visit and the commendation returned from Ogden, there has been much interest in what was done mingling of all of the irrigationists of the country.

Another thing is what the men from this state saw there in the way of irrigation. The people of that country have taken land not as fertile by far as that of this state, and by the use of water have made one of the richest districts in the nation. The natural advantages there are not as many as here, and there were more problems to overcome. The cost of irrigating was greater, and we of this state have the advantage in every way. For these reasons the people of this state should be ready and willing to help the problem of irrigation in every way that is possible.

The best way to hasten the consummation of the plans of the engineers and bring the country under the water, is to see that there are laws made as soon as possible for the help of the government in establishing the work. Any obstacle in the statutes that now exists should be eliminated, and the way made clear for the institution of the plans of the government. Water rights should be looked into, the apportionment of the water over the land, and the distribution of the same should be determined, and all of the details, so far as possible, should be fixed, so that when the time for the government to open the work comes there will be nothing to delay the consummation of its plans.

W. F. Matlock, who was also at the congress, is of the opinion that the best thing the people of this section can do is to keep the matter of irrigation before the state and see that they keep it before the national legislature, so that they will not forget the appropriations that are needed to carry on the work. The government is now doing all that it can in the direction of irrigation, and will do more in the years to come if it thinks and sees that the people of the country are anxious for the work and willing to do their share in carrying out the directions of the central government. The people of Eastern Oregon should convince their representatives at Washington that they are in earnest about the work and they will have all of the assistance that they need. Laws should be made by the state legislature and enthusiasm kept up among the people of the districts to be benefited by irrigation.

GENTLEMEN WERE HOSTS.

They Royally Entertained Ladies of the Eastern Star.

Last night the gentlemen of the Eastern Star entertained the ladies of the order at the hall. The gentlemen had entire charge of the occasion, and did things as they should have been done. They bought the banquet, put it on the tables and served it. In fact, they were the slaves of the ladies for the time being. After the banquet games were played, songs were sung and a general good time was had by all. The principal musical feature of the evening was a male quartet.

During the evening there was a bean throwing contest in which the ladies proved themselves to be the better competitors, Mrs. F. S. Younger winning the first prize. All of the ladies were given bouquets of cut flowers by their hosts. The affair was voted a grand success by all in attendance.

Killed by a Fall.

Walla Walla, Sept. 23.—W. H. Crandall, the aged farmer who fell from a barn loft at his place six miles west of Walla Walla a week ago today, and sustained injuries about the head and body, died at the Walla Walla hospital at 1 o'clock this afternoon. For several days he has been in a critical condition. His injuries consisted chiefly of concussion of the brain and an injured back.

EXCURSION RATES

RAILROAD FARES REDUCED DURING CARNIVAL WEEK.

Large Attendance Expected From Neighboring Towns—Stock Show Will Be Held on the Island—Expected That Exhibit Will Be so Large as to Require Annexes.

Arrangements have been made by the management of the carnival to run excursions over the O. R. & N. from as far as Heppner to this city during the week. Mr. J. O'Neal, the travelling passenger agent of the company, was in the city yesterday and has made arrangements for the reduction in rates and the excursions. The gentleman stated that from what he had heard along the line there would be large crowds here from the outside. It would be the policy of the company to do all that was in its power to make the week a success.

Mr. Halley has made arrangements to hold the stock show in the large tent on the island. The carnival
