RURAL DELIVERY ROUTES.

Spector of the Omaha Division Says They Are Highly Successful.
Frank Newell, of Omaha, Neb., inspector of rural mail routes, of the Omaha division, is in the city visiting friends. He was formerly in the employ of the O. R. & N.
"Free rural mail delivery is the best of the experimental stage now," said Mr. Newell this morning. "Everywhere it has met with the greatest success. It may be a broad assertion, but there are many county people who believe that it has increased the value of their property at least $5 per acre. People living along the routes can secure much more reading matter, the children play at home more and it has increased the numbers of the letters which they write a great deal, and the incentive for good is great.
"The benefit to the farmers cannot be overestimated. Where formerly they would go into town with a load of produce, and perhaps not be able to sell it off, they now manage to return with empty wagons and full pockets. The reason is obvious—they now get the newspapers daily and as these contain the market quotations they know just exactly what reduce to take to town and when the market is short on any particular thing they load it and as a result, here is not the least trouble in selling. They also learn what the current prices are and sell accordingly. Rural mail delivery is a great success."

The Merchants' Cafe.
Keeps constantly on hand imported oysters, crabs, lobsters, crabs, oysters, all kinds of cheese. Hot merchants' lunch daily from 11:30 a. m. to 2 p. m.

WHEAT HAS DROPPED

MILLERS ARE OUTBIDDING THE EXPORTERS SOMEWHAT.

Much wheat is still being held by the farmers—buyers' reasons for the slump—millers buy from necessity to meet orders—rye is scarce in this county.

Wheat has taken another drop, and as a result the market is tighter than it has been for some time. The exporters are offering 62 cents, while the mills will give 64 cents for the common run of the grain, and 67 for bluestem. This is quite a drop from the prices that have been holding all of the year, and the farmers are as a result refusing to sell in most cases, though some of them are beginning to think that the bottom of things is dropping out and have rushed their grain to the market.

The reason for the drop is, according to the buyers, that they are unable to pay so much for the grain for shipment. The selling price of the grain will not allow it. Grain has been too high all the time, and it has come to pass that they are unable to pay what the farmers want, and have to offer what they can make good on.

Millers Buy to Fill Orders.
The mills of the county have to have the grain to fill their orders, and will therefore offer a little more than the exporters. One thing that forced the price of wheat to the altitude it reached, was the fact that the mills had flour contracted for September and October, and had to get out their orders. Thus they were compelled to have the grain, and paid high for it. The farmers started out with the idea of getting 75 cents, and had they held their grain they would have got their price. In the words of a local mill man, "They had us and pretty near landed us. If they had held on a little, we would have had to pay what they asked, for we had to have the wheat."

Rye is Scarce.
Rye is a scarce article in the county, and it would pay a few of the grain men of this section to plant a little more of it. The Byers mill has just received a carload that it sent to California for. The farmers wanted seed rye and they couldn't get it. They came to the mills and they couldn't find it this side of California. Now with the freight charges and the price, the stuff costs the farmer 2 1/2 cents a pound for seed. It would seem to be a paying crop, for there is not near enough raised in the county to meet the demand.

Barley is More Plentiful.
Barley is plentiful; at least there is enough of it grown for the use of the county, provided it were not shipped out. It is selling at 1 cent a pound where it can be found; but the feeders are having a time finding it, for the reason that most of it has been stored or shipped. There is little free barley in this part of the county. Many of the sheepmen and cattlemen who want the grain for the chop mill are having trouble in getting what they want. But there is

BUYS PACK MULES.

One Man Operating Train of 70 Animals Between Boise and Thunder Mountain.

A scarcity of freighters to take supplies into Thunder Mountain is one of the serious problems confronting those who are desirous of getting in supplies before winter sets in. Unable to secure sufficient number of freighters to take in his stuff, D. Mackenzie yesterday purchased 37 pack animals which will be started from Boise within a day or two for Thunder Mountain with supplies.

Mr. Mackenzie now has about 70 pack animals on the trail between Boise and Thunder Mountain, carrying supplies for the men he will keep to work on his properties this winter.

Mr. Mackenzie has purchased 120,000 pounds of supplies in Boise within the past 30 days, making about $50,000 worth he has purchased so far this season in that city.

COMING TERM OF COURT.

The Docket Will Be Arranged Next Monday as to Civil Cases.

Monday morning at 10 o'clock, Judge Ellis will meet the members of the bar in conference over the civil docket for the coming term of court. At this time the date of trial will be set for the different civil cases on the docket, to meet with the convenience of the parties to the actions.

The docket this term is not longer than the average, and there will be no cases of great interest. The cases are all of a petty nature, ranging from petty larceny to horse stealing and forgery. The cases are of the ordinary kind, and from the standpoint of a spectator are very quiet.

Social Next Saturday Evening.
Saturday evening the Woodmen of the World will have a social meeting in the Secret Society hall for the members of the order. There will be speeches and music and a lunch after the program has been completed. A good time is predicted.

Willis, of the American Hare Packing & Cold Storage Company, has made all arrangements for the engine needed by the cannery and the work of canning fruit and American hare will begin about October 1. IRRIGATION IDEAS

JUDGE ELLIS EXPRESSES SOME VALUABLE THOUGHTS.

Irrigated Farms Around Ogden Are Absolute Models and Oregon Farmers Should Heed the Lessons They Teach—Small Farming and Intensified Methods Are the Ideals.

Judge W. R. Ellis thinks that the national meeting of the irrigationists at Ogden was a great thing for this country in that it will bear good results in the time to come. It has awakened the interest of men of means in the possibilities of the country, and they will in the future examine into the conditions here, and it may result in the establishment of works here that will be a big thing for the state.

The East knows nothing of the conditions here, and the presence of the Oregon delegation at the meeting brought the matter before the people of the country. They told of the conditions that prevailed here, and put the matter before the country in a new light. The best thing that will come from it will be the result of the interest that has been awakened. Men are talking of Oregon and its possibilities who never gave the state a thought before. That is what is needed. There are many opportunities here, but the majority of them are too large for a single man or a small number of men. It will take money to develop the country and it is necessary to draw that money here.
