THE FAIR

"BURIED AT SEA."

Historical Play to Be Seen at the Frazer Saturday Night.

"Buried at Sea," which will appear at the Frazer Saturday, Oct. 3, was written by Theodore Kremer, author of "The Fatal Wedding," "A Desperate Chance," etc., and is claimed by the press to be the masterpiece of this author.

The leading role is assumed by Orral Humphrey, a young actor of great ability. The scenic effects are very superior and especially one, is a crown of scenic art, namely, Trafalgar Square, London, with its historic lions at the base of the shaft in honor of England's great sea warrior, Lord Nelson.

Florence Chapman in "Buried at Sea"

Another most sensational feature is the great ocean scene, and as you look out upon the troubled waters, with the lightning flashing and thunder rolling and see the strenuous efforts made by the hero to save himself, throws before your eyes a most weird and picturesque scene. The company presenting this play is one of the strongest companies playing melodrama, and the public can rest assured that they will be more than pleased at the novel effects as produced in "Buried at Sea."
