YOU MAY BE CURED

544 Garfield Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL., October 9, 1902.
After doctoring for eleven months and taking forty-three bottles of medicine and finding no relief for leucorrhoea resulting from irritation of a fallen womb I took Wine of Cardui and fourteen bottles cured me. This seems strange but it is the simple truth. Wine of Cardui helped me from the time I began taking it and having heard it praised so highly by friends who had tried it I felt satisfied that it would help me, and it did. It cured me. Took every bit of ache, pain and headache, cramps and dragging down sensations away till I felt young, strong and happy once more. It is a wonderful medicine and a true friend to women. When I look back on the months of torture I had it seems like a hideous nightmare. Wine of Cardui will cure any woman I believe. I have more faith in it than all other medicines combined.

Frances Kingsley
Vice-Pres., Chicago Historical Club.

How can you refuse relief when you know you are growing worse day after day? Shooting pains, irregularity, inflammation and bearing down pains make thousands of women miserable. Why drag through life never enjoying anything? Wine of Cardui has made over 1,500,000 weak and suffering women well and strong. We ask you to go to your druggist today and secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui and begin to take it at once. Do that and the health Mrs. Kingsley writes about will soon be yours. If you think special directions are needed in your case, address, giving symptoms, Ladies' Advisory Department, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

WINE of GARDUI

THIS is the instrument I use in examining the interior of the eye. With it I can tell if your eye is in a healthy condition or plainly see any disease that may be present. This is very important for sometimes glasses will not help your eye trouble. If you need glasses, I have instruments for showing me just what lenses are required. If you do not, your trouble can be corrected by a physician.

WEEKLY FASHION LETTER.

New York, Oct. 3.—Fashion's tide, if taken at its flood, leads to bankruptcy unless one has an unlimited dress allowance. The stores are brilliant with displays of fashionable autumn gowns whose price tags cause one to stand in open-eyed amazement. At first it would seem impossible for the woman whose small savings must supply the entire winter outfit to be smartly gowned this season, but there comes the stereotyped old consolation of reproducing the exclusive designs in less expensive materials.

Red has developed into a very popular shade, and "lobster," which has hitherto been a term of opprobrium, has emerged from the limbo of ridicule to the name of a particularly pleasing color for street dresses and automobile coats.

A design that has attracted much attention for its originality of design is carried out in lobster red satin cloth with gored skirt. The fulness about the hips is disposed of in four narrow tucks on either side and one broad box-pleat at the back. Around the bottom there are four circular flounces gradually widening from the front until they extend half way up the skirt at the back. Finishing the flounces is a silk embroidered red and black braid stitched on with a piping of black satin.

The jacket is an Eton effect with several applied tucks of the cloth, draped down the back in a sharply pointed surplice effect. Only black stitching is used to finish the tucks, but there is a collar of rich cream-colored lace embroidered with black and red, and this extends down the front below the waist line and is set off with large black silk buttons on either side of the jacket.

A flat hat abruptly dented at the back and trimmed with elegant velvet ribbons completes the costume.

Compromise Effected in Coats.

Exclusive ladies' tailors express the fear that long coats are likely to be overdone this season and for this reason they are taxing their ingenuity to find something that will offset the great demand for an already inadequate supply of the coats. A model which might prove a happy compromise, suggests both Russian blouse and Eton jacket. It is close-fitting and has a buttoned Eton that falls over a supported girde of velvet. Below the girde the inevitable hip flounce appears, but instead of being plain at the top with ripples lower down, all of the fulness is taken up in a wide plait at the back, with two narrower plaits on either side. Depending from the belt are ends of the velvet finished with silk fringe. This design is seen in several smart autumn costumes and it is hard to find anything that combines novelty and beauty more effectively.

Hip-yokes of lace continue a fashionable feature of full dresses, especially those intended for at home wear. A chic petty-color French frock has the skirt made with a yoke of lace over the hips, the lace extending down the front with narrow tuckings below running straight down to a deep gathered flounce. The whole falls very full and long over the feet with a sweeping train at the back.

The bodice is also tucked and has the lace around the neck and across the sleeves, which are gathered full around the top, flowing below the elbow. There are cuffs of lace and a crushed white silk sash encircling the waist and hanging in long ends over the skirt at the back. While the general outline of smart sleeves continues full, there is unlimited variety in cuffs, which really make or mar a gown, one might say. There is no particular design which one can recommend as being more comme il faut than another; all seem to combine the ideas and all the different eras in the history of dress and are indeed glowing tributes to the ingenuity of the sartorial artist.

MEXICO'S CITY GOVERNMENT.

Former Ancient Methods Supplanted by the New.

A new system of local government has now gone into effect for the City of Mexico and the federal district that surrounds it. This new scheme has been modeled principally upon that of the city of Washington and the District of Columbia. For several centuries the City of Mexico had been governed by a city council, and for a long time the little towns and suburban neighborhoods in the federal district had been governed by separate village or local councils.

Under the new system the federal government emphasizes the growing sense of nationality. It is making the capital city and the federal district more and more the center of the national life, and it is now proposed that the old districts shall be administered and governed on model principles. The new law vests administration in three officials appointed by the federal government, one known as the governor of the district, another as the president of the superior board of health, and the third as the director of public works. To some extent, these three men act together as a board and to some extent each acts separately in his own sphere. There continue to exist the elective councils, but they have a wholly changed and restricted sphere.

There are records of the meeting of a city council for Mexico dating back as far as the year 1524, and the present hall of sessions of the city council is famous for its collection of historical paintings and memorials. With its Old World charm, due to its cathedral and other monuments of Spanish church architecture, and all its new improvements, Mexico will be a splendid city.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for October.
