

Why Pay as Much

for an inferior beer?

Schlitz beer costs twice what common beer costs in the brewing. One-half pays for the product; the other half for its purity.

One-half is spent in cleanliness, in filtering even the air that touches it, in filtering the beer, in sterilizing every bottle. And it pays the cost of aging the beer for months before we deliver it.

If you ask for Schlitz you get purity and age, you pay no more than beer costs without them.

MOOTWAR IN KANSAS

MANEUVERS OF REGULAR ARMY FOR TWELVE DAYS.

An Area of Two Hundred Twenty-Five Square Miles Will Be Covered by the Operations—National Guard From Seven States Will Participate.

Fort Riley, Kan., Oct. 16.—Beginning today and continuing until October 27, the army reservation here is to be the scene of the greatest military maneuvers ever conducted in the United States. The success of the maneuvers held here last fall inspired the war department to lay the plans this year on a much larger scale. The movements of the troops will extend over an area of 225 square miles, instead of being limited to 19 square miles, as they were a year ago, and the number of troops has been doubled.

The game will be largely one of strategy. All the arms of the service will take part in it. The artillery will be represented by nine light batteries—the largest and strongest force of field artillery that has been brought together in this country since the Civil War—with Major William H. Coffin in command. There will be a brigade of cavalry, under Gen. C. C. Carr, and brigades of infantry commander by Brigadiers Generals Fred D. Grant, J. Franklin Bell and Thomas H. Barry. In command of all the operations is Major-General John C. Bates.

One of the most important, not to say picturesque, features of the war game will be an attack upon a convoy of food supplies. A supply train composed as it is of a string of loaded wagons miles in length, is obviously vulnerable to assault and correspondingly difficult to defend. The problem is to fetch it through, in order that the victuals in question may not go to recruit the larder of the foe.

To Control the Railroad.
Where a railroad runs through a scene of military operations, as in this neighborhood, the control of it often determines the success of an army. Hence the importance of securing the mastery of traffic over the Union Pacific road. Whoever force, the blue or the brown, obtains, theoretically speaking, the advantage will be in a position to cry "mate" to its adversary.

Questions of this sort will be determined by officers of high rank appointed by the war department. They will decide which wins, the blue army or the brown army, when an attack is made upon a fortified village. It will be their function to determine whether an entrenched position has been (technically) captured and whether this regiment or that brigade has been (constructively) wiped out. From their decision there will be no appeal.

In the course of the operations an entire division will be marched out and deployed for battle. An attack in force will be made upon an outpost, after preliminary skirmishing and reconnaissance, and the blue and brown armies will finally come into collision. The forces being pretty evenly matched, the losses on both sides may be expected to be large, though the wounded will not require hospital treatment, and the dead will happily come to life again after the fray.

One of the most important objects of the maneuvers is to afford to officers of the several arms an opportunity for observing the evolutions and capabilities of the other arms. Thus the cavalrymen will see what the infantry and artillery are doing and the artillery will get a more definite notion of the sort of co-operation which may be expected from the infantry and cavalry. The value of this is obvious. Of course, the engineers will have their own important part to play in the operations, constructing pontoon bridges and throwing up earthworks, while the signal corps, with telegraphs, telephones and a balloon, will attend to the business of conveying intelligence.

Where the Troops are From.
The regular troops engaged in the maneuvers, and the most of which are now on the fields, come from Fort Leavenworth and Riley, Kas.; Sill and Reno, Okla.; Nohrara and Robinson, Neb.; Logan, Colo.; D. A. Russell, Wyo.; Douglas, Utah; Snelling, Minn.; Lincoln, N. D.; Meyer, Va.; Keough, Montana; and Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

Besides the regular troops there will be an army of national guard present as follows: Kansas, one brigade, consisting of two regiments of infantry and two battalions of field artillery; Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and Arkansas, one regiment of infantry each; Colorado, one battalion of infantry; Nebraska, a signal corps of about sixty men.

The work of establishing the camp was practically completed today. The camp extends several miles along the Kansas river. The site is well drained and there exists a plentiful supply of pure water. The working of feeding the army during the thirteen days is in charge of Captain A. M. Davis, the commissary of the department of the Missouri. A depot commissary is erected near the camp, where all articles which the troops may need may be purchased. Arrangements have been perfected to supply the troops with fresh beef, fresh vegetables and fresh bread every day while they are encamped on the reservation. The supply of bread will come from the army bakery at Fort Riley which will be operated night and day during the next two weeks.

Mrs. Kate Longan, carrying her 2-year-old baby, was lost on the prairie near Denver, Wednesday night, in a snowstorm, and fell into an irrigation ditch. Both were frozen to death.

A MISTAKEN VIEW.

F. H. Newell Says There is no Enthusiasm in Oregon.
In an interview quoted in a recent Washington dispatch, Chief Hydrographer, F. H. Newell of the Geological survey made the remarkable statement that there was no enthusiasm displayed by the actual irrigators of Eastern Oregon, and that the only interest taken in the subject at the recent meeting of the National Irrigation congress, was by men directly interested in private irrigation schemes.

When it is remembered that about 50 of the delegates from Oregon to the congress, were from Eastern Oregon, and about 40 of this number were actual irrigators, it will be shown that Mr. Newell did not study the Oregon delegation closely, or has been misquoted by the Washington correspondent.

Mr. Newell is reported to have said: "The people of Oregon, in contrast with residents of other Western states, manifest little or no interest in the great subject of irrigation."

"The few men who are actively booming irrigation," says Mr. Newell, "are those who control large tracts of lands lying under proposed irrigation projects, and these men are working solely in their own behalf."

"There is an absolute lack of public enthusiasm, however, which is remarkable, in view of the vast benefits that will accrue to the state of Oregon as a result of the irrigation of its arid lands."

SPANIARDS INSULTED.

Would Not Listen to American Tunes in Slot Machines.

Shortly after the Spanish-American war, one of the first American novelties sent to Spain were the nickel-in-the-slot machines—the musical kind. Unluckily, the first machines played American airs. They were quickly demolished. When the next lot of machines were imported it was carefully advertised in advance that these contrivances would play Spanish airs only.

This was taken as a sort of national compliment, and the American slot machines jumped into sudden favor, especially the gambling varieties, as the Spaniards are very fond of all games of chance. In a place like Malaga there are now more than forty such machines, each earning $3.50 daily on the average.
