GERMAN EMPRESS
DOMESTIC, WELL PRESERVED WOMAN.

Only Feminine Majesty in Europe Who is Not Unhappy—Been Married Twenty-two Years and is a Devoted Wife and Mother—is Not a Society Leader.

Berlin, Oct. 22.—Empress Augusta Victoria was 45 years old today. Though the empress is slightly older than her husband, with her fair complexion and luxuriant hair, she looks, if anything, younger than he does. The preservation of her youthful appearance may be ascribed to her freedom from worry and her happy life. She is one of the few feminine crowned heads who might truthfully be described as finding as much solid, homely contentment in her husband's palaces as any honest workman's wife in her vine-clad cottage.

This is a good deal more than can be said of her sister majesties, who, probably, with the exception of Queen Alexandra, are a weary and unsatisfied class of women at least their faces bear all the marks of rather peevish discontent and unattained longings. Not so, however, does Empress Augusta Victoria, who was never an heiress in her girlhood, who at 18 was told to marry a young man deeply in love with another and who, between a clever, critical mother-in-law and her husband's chief political adviser, seemed likely to find life at the imperial court anything but a bed of roses.

In the Midst of Infrigue.
After her marriage, which took place in February, 1881, her trials began in earnest, for intrigue was rife at the German court. Bismarck and the Crown Princess Frederike were sworn enemies and Prince William took a prominent part in all these doings, but his wife triumphed in the end. She remained the same cheerful, busy, amiable young lady of her girlhood days, healed quarrels by a mild word at the right time and presented her husband in turn with six rosy, sturdy boys and a dainty little princess.

There has never been the slightest effort on her part to lead in the social world and, in fact, were any one probably to ask her why she does not read more or undertake the first place in society, she would explain that she had not the time to spare.

She is a most devoted wife to her husband, and often spends the morning with him helping him with his business, for with all her housewifely qualities she possesses a clear brain and calm judgment, which are often of great assistance to the emperor.

Her happiest hours are spent with her children, of whom she is devotedly fond, and the birth of her little daughter completed the happiness of her home life. The empress is also extremely fond of music, and is a fair performer on the violin, and often when in private the emperor and empress hold a little concert, and he is also a great lover of music and possesses a very good voice and a correct ear.

Hebrew Population.
New York, Oct. 21.—Professor Haman, of Basel, has written a remarkable article on the present geographical distribution of the Hebrew race, says a Herald dispatch from London. The professor is a leading authority on the subject. He says that Hebrews now number about 10,000,000, of whom a good two-thirds are settled in Europe.

Russia contains 5,500,000 Austria-Hungary 1,800,000, Germany 568,000, Roumania 300,000, and Great Britain 200,000. Next to Europe comes the United States with 1,000,000. Asia, the original home of the race, contains 250,000, Africa 200,000, and Australia 17,000.

Professor Haman believes that more than 200,000 Hebrews embraced Christianity during the 19th century.

Hearts of the Hapsburgs.
A grim spectacle seen by King Edward in his recent visit to the imperial burial vault in the Church of the Capuchins at Vienna was a row of more than 150 crystal vases, mounted in gold and topped by a crown. Each of these vases contains the heart of a dead Hapsburg. In the 13th century the Duke Francis died in Switzerland, and directed that his heart should be removed and sent to Vienna. Ever since this custom has been observed in the Hapsburg family. The sole exception to this Hapsburg custom was that of the late Archduke Ludwig, whose will forbade the removal of his heart.

The Wearing of Amulets.
Who wore the first amulet it would be impossible to say, but the adoption of a talisman to ward off evil is of very ancient origin.

Phylacteries, the Greek word for amulets, were worn by the Israelites, to which allusion is made in the Scriptures. These phylacteries were narrow strips of parchment on which were written passages from the Old Testament. A strip was placed in a small leather box and bound to the left elbow by a narrow strap. There was a smaller phylactery for the forehead, the box for which was about an inch square.

The word amulet is of Arabic origin and implies a thing suspended. Amulets were of various kinds. The moonstone, found in the desert of Arabia, was worn as a talisman against enchantment by the women, who suspended it around the neck. It was a white, transparent stone, the time for searching for it being midnight.

Various Styles of Hairdressing.
The various styles of hairdressing under Louis XVI. were known as the cascade of St. Cloud, the windmill, the sheep and lambs, the hen and chickens, the dog and hare, the peal of bells, the milkmaid, the bob wig, the botter, the kerchief, the oriental, the Circassian, Minerva's helmet, the crescent, the sulgna, the desire to please, the turned up curl, the treasurer of the age, the frivolous bather, the rat, the drunken monkey and the lover's snare, the last named consisting of a mass of curls covered with powder, particles of which, deposited on the coat or shoulders of a gentleman, indicated the previous whereabouts of the lady's hand.
