THE LAW A FARGE

HOMESTEADERS ARE NO LONGER RESIDENTS.

Commutation Clause Opens Up the Way to Fraud—Laws Should Be Repealed to Save the Public Land for the People.

For more than forty years the phrase "Homestead Law" has been pleasantly familiar in American ears. It opened a way for millions of people to get a foothold upon the land. The idea was that as long as there was any portion of the public domain fit for agriculture, and not otherwise appropriated, any citizen, or even any alien who had declared his intention to become a citizen, might obtain 160 acres of it by filing his claim and paying certain nominal fees and settling upon it to make his home in good faith.

It was a beautiful act of paternalism—Uncle Sam, the rich and loving father, dividing his estate among all his children, natural and adopted. And the plan worked as beautifully as it sounded so long as there were farms to be had in that part of the public domain which receives a good natural rainfall. Practically the last of such land has now passed away from the government. There is a vast empire yet left—an empire in which tens of millions will some time dwell—but every acre of it must be irrigated before it will be fit for homes. When this is done, one acre will be equal in productive capacity to four acres depending upon rainfall.

To Build a Home.

The central thought in the Homestead Law, as the name implies, is that a family should settle down to the enjoyment of an independence from the permanent tilling of the soil. When it is used for any other purpose it becomes a misnomer and a disgrace.

The law sought to make sure of the permanence of the settler's home by providing that he should live upon and cultivate his homestead entry for five years before getting final title. If a family could remain that length of time upon a quarter section it would certainly become established and attached to the soil. In the view of the law makers, neither less nor more could be asked as a demonstration of good faith.

But the commutation clause goes very far to nullify this wise provision of the law in regard to a five years' continuous residence and cultivation. Under this clause, title may pass to the settler at the end of fourteen months, on payment of $125 per acre.

Chance to Evade the Law.

The commutation clause is entirely unnecessary to the settler who intends to comply in perfect good faith with the letter and spirit of the homestead law. While it would be going too far to say that no one has ever availed himself of this means of shortening his residence upon the land for a worthy purpose, it is a fact that the method is chiefly used by those who wish to evade the real intent of the law.

There is a great struggle for valuable pasture lands in the West. The country continues to grow, and with it the demand for beef and mutton. The public pasture available for live stock does not grow, but becomes relatively less. Stockmen see the shadow of coming changes in land laws when they will no longer be able to use the range without restrictions and without price. Naturally enough, they desire to make themselves secure in the possession of as much good grazing land as possible. There is a way in which this may be done, and this is by means of the homestead law and convenient "dummies" to make entries upon it.

The homestead law is all right, but the commutation clause is all wrong. The honest settler does not need it; and the country does not need the other kind of settlers. The president has urgently demanded the repeal of this feature of the law, and backed by an enlightened and insistent public opinion, his advice ought speedily to carry with congress.
