THEATERDOM
 Plays and Players and Their Realm

Jefferson De Angelis and company in Sam C. Shubert and Nixon and Zimmerman's production of "The Toreador" will be seen here in the near future. In the character of Sammy Gigg, the English footman, who, through an adroitly conceived train of humorous complications, is mistaken for the champion bull fighter of Spain, Mr. De Angelis is seen at his best. He has never had a role which gave him such exceptional opportunities for fun making as his present character.

The attraction at the Frazer on Monday night will be "Uncle Josh Spruceby." The celebrated New England comedy drama has become very popular. The scenes of the play were taken from Vermont. The principal character in the play is Uncle Josh, an old "down east" farmer, and an opportunity is presented for some next week at this popular resort, and the usual Saturday matinee will be continued during the winter.

Unusual interest attaches to the announcement that Henry W. Savage's elaborate production of "King Dodo," the highly successful Pixley and Luders comic opera, headed by Richard Golden, will come to the Frazer next Tuesday, November 10, for one night. "King Dodo" is an American work from start to finish, interpreted by an American company of conspicuous ability. The enviable record for long runs made by "King Dodo" is a matter of theatrical history. At Daly's theater in New York, the Studebaker in Chicago and the Tremont in Boston it ran for months to crowded houses. It beat all records in Chicago, where it ran for 30 weeks. The complete production will be seen here with the big cast and an augmented orchestra of solo musi-very strong dramatic situations, as well as pure comedy and wholesome fun. In these days of "farce comedies" it is a relief to witness a play of this kind. A carnival of special scenery is used, and the great sawmill scene is presented. Songs, dances and many unique specialties abound. The company carries 20 people. A big street parade is given at noon each day. The musical features include a big band and a splendid orchestra of 10 pieces.

This is the last season of "Mr. Pickwick," the De Wolf Hopper opera company's musical production of the Charles Dickens masterpiece, to be seen at the Frazer. The famous piece will be taken to London, England, next season, to fill a half-year engagement in that city.

The grand prize drawing at the Frazer theater will take place tonight, an entire new bill will be presented cians. Richard Golden, long a favorite comedian with the American public, has made the hit of his life as King Dodo. Others of note in the cast are Maude Williams, Claude Albright, Gertrude Barnes, Daisy Hamlin, Arthur Wooley, Charles W. Meyers and Harry Davies. The chorus of pretty girls—a chorus famed for its beauty—is one of the strongest features of the production. It is not in beauty alone, but voice as well, that the chorus excels. The production from a scenic and costume standpoint is particularly rich and beautiful.

Miss May Stockton, the star in that big melodramatic success, "A Little Outcast," which will be seen here on November 14, is one of the most popular footlight favorites, being remembered in such roles as Maud Chartis in "Mr. Barnes of New York," Taggs in "A County Fair," "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and in ingenue roles with the late Sol Smith Russell.

CONGRESS MONDAY

TREATY RATIFICATION AND OTHER MEASURES

Time Limit Probable On Debate and On the Final Vote—General Republican Understanding There Will Be No Financial Legislation—Message Will Be Read Monday.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—The ratification of the Cuban reciprocity treaty is all that is included in the present program of congress which will open next Monday. It was originally devised by the administration to take up financial legislation at the special session, but the idea has now been abandoned, and unless all signs fall comparatively little attention will be made to accomplish anything of importance other than the ratification of the Cuban treaty.

The reciprocity treaty has been ratified by the Cuban congress, and only lacks necessary legislation by the United States congress to become effective. The initiative for this rests with the house of representatives. The fact that several weeks are required for the organization of that body has excited apprehension in some quarters that there will be considerable delay in getting the reciprocity joint resolution in shape, and that action may be prevented at the called session.

In circles better informed, however, there exists no apprehension on this account, for while the speaker is not likely to have all the committees ready for announcement before December, he undoubtedly will announce the committee on ways and means and the committee on accounts and mileage some time during the coming week.

Time Limits for Debate and Vote. While there is likely to be a vigorous demand from the Democrats for liberal debate, it is expected a limit will be fixed when the resolution is reported, and that a time also will be fixed for a final vote. With regard to the question directly involved, it is not believed there will be any great differences in the house, but the Democrats may attempt to make capital for the next presidential election by debating the tariff and offering amendments that will not be entertained by the presiding officer.

However, there is reason for the belief that the house will be able to send the resolution to the senate before November 20. The latter body, having ratified the reciprocity treaty by an almost unanimous vote, may be expected to take up and dispose of the matter without much debate.

No Financial Legislation. Talks with leading Republican senators point to a general understanding that no financial legislation will be attempted at the extra session. During the time the house is considering the reciprocity matter the senate will have plenty of business to occupy its attention. The executive business alone is of vast volume, for the appointments made during the recess number thousands. These will have to be reported to the senate for its advice and consent, and their consideration will keep the senators busy the first ten days of the session. The financial bill will be considered by members of the finance committee, and cloak room conferences may be expected among leading senators on both sides, but no bill will be formulated until after the Christmas holidays.

Monday will be devoted to the reading of the president's message. The general expectation is that the message will be brief and will deal only with Cuban reciprocity and possibly with financial legislation. In his message it is expected that the president will direct the attention of congress to the moral obligations affecting Cuba, and point out the duty of the house to endorse the action of the senate in passing a Cuban reciprocity treaty.

Shaw Gave the Cue. If the subject of financial legislation is touched upon, it is believed that definite recommendations will be made by the president along the lines of the speech delivered in Chicago some time ago by Secretary Shaw.

The differences of opinion entertained by the administration and by leading Republican members of congress on the question of financial legislation renders it hopeless to expect that anything along this line can be accomplished in the short time which the extra session has before it, and in view of these facts it is altogether probable that the matter will be left out of the president's message entirely, though he had previously determined to give it especial prominence.
