WALLA WALLA REFUSES GIFT.

County Commissioners Vote Against the Donation for the Stubblefield

Walla Walla, Nov. 13.-The board of county commissioners yesterday evening voted against the $10,000 donation necessary to secure the Stubblefield Widows' and Orphans' Home for this city and county.

The will of the late J. Stubblefield made provision for the expenditure of $100,000 from his estate for the erec-tion of such a home upon the donation of $10,000 by the city desiring the home, as an evidence of good faith and energy.

The matter has been under discussion before the board for the past three months, it having been put on from time to time. The citizens, it is said, will now take up the matter of raising the amount and will endeavor to secure the home through private subscription. If the amount raised in Walla Walla by November 20, by the provisions of the will the trustees of the fund must seek a location outside of Walla Walla county.

One Thousand Pounds is From Pay ette, Wash,-Much More Is Expected From Different Directions to Await the Annual Advance in Price. The Pendleton Ice and Cold Stor-

Company now has in their cold rooms over 6,000 pounds of butter shipped in from various points to be held in storage for a lesser or a greater time

Last Saturday they received a snipment of 1,000 pounds from the Payette creamery of Maple Brothers, and it is expected that more will follow from time to time during the winter. It is the intention of the Maple

It is the intention of the Maple Brothers, part of which firm are residents of this city, to ship all of the surplus from their creameries in Washington to this city to be held in storage until the time shall come when it can be disposed of at a profit. This is the butter which has taken the first prizes at the state fairs of Washington, Idaho and at the fair at Salt Lake. It is well known over the country and is recognized as a standard butter.

About the first of the year butter always reaches a good price, and if the butter producer is able to hold it until that time he can reaffice nearly twice as much for his property as he can to sell it as made. For this rea-son the Washington butter is being shipped into the city and will be held here until the prices are good, when it will be sold to the trade at a good profit. The shipment of Saturday was the first one of many, as the firm pects to have a large amount in the house by the first of the year

WOOD IS PLENTIFUL.

Over 1,500 Cords on the Dump at Murdock Spur and One-Third More on Mountain Than Last Year.

Frank Hanlen, a sawmill and wood man of Meacham, was in the city yesterday evening en route home from Walla Walla. Mr. Hanlen says there are about 1,500 cords of wood now on the dump at Murdock spur, a wood loading spur two miles east of Meachand in the timber ready to be hauled in there when cars can be secured for shipment.

This is fully one-third more than is usually shipped out from this spur, and the amount at other shipping points compares favorably with this increase at Murdock. While the output is one-third greater this year, it is about all contracted ahead to Eugene Tausick, of Walla Walla and there is little to sell at the present

Mr. Hanlen has about 500 cords not yet contracted, and will hold it until later, expecting the price to go still higher than at present.

There is a large supply of wood yet within the reach of the track and Mr. Hanlen thinks it will be many years before an actual shortage of wood will be felt in Eastern Oregon.

SHOOTING ON NORTH SIDE.

Midnight Mystery Cleared by J. F Robinson and Frank Neagle.

For some time the people on the north side of the river have startled every few nights by a series of shots seemingly fired along the river bank. Each time the fusillade occurred in the morning between 1 and 2 o'clock, and would awaken the residents of that district.

The ladies especially were fright-ened, and last night J. F. Robinson and Frank Neagle started our to locate the disturbance when menced. After if lengthy investigainvestigathat the noise was due to the short sharp explosions of the gasoline en gine at the office of the Tribune, which sounded like pistol shots and have been a source of terror conjecture for a week or more to the north side residents,
