CABINET MEMBERS

NEW YORK HAS FURNISHED THE GREATEST NUMBER

Oregon Furnished One Since the Foundation of the Government, in George H. Williams, Who Was Attorney General—None of the New States Have Been Recognized.

It is a rather remarkable fact that Rhode Island, one of the original thirteen states, has never had a cabinet officer. The state has produced statesmen of high rank, governors, senators, representatives, soldiers and sailors, and it is surprising that political or geographical exigencies should have left all of these out of the presidential official family during the century and a quarter of the union. It is not because the state is small, for little Delaware and a number of other states no larger in population than Rhode Island have had many cabinet officers.

Some Old States Neglected.

Texas, which has been in the union for more than half a century, and is the largest in area of all the states, has never been honored with a cabinet position. Of course, since the civil war, there have been only two Democratic administrations, and naturally the south has not been recognized very much in the construction of cabinets. Still, there was a long period before the war, and even since, when it would seem that some Texas statesman might have been found to fill a cabinet position.

Florida is another old state that has never been called upon to furnish a cabinet officer, and while the size and location of the state explains that fact, the same condition does not apply to a northern state that has been a member of the union since 1861.

This is Kansas, the great prairie state beyond the Missouri, the state of John Brown, of the several constitutions, the scene of free soil and slavery conflict, and which, according to her motto, has reached "the stars through difficulties." It seems to have just happened that way, as in the case of other states. Still, it would seem that, like her neighbor, Nebraska, she might have furnished an agriculturist, or, like Missouri, on the east, supplied a man for the interior department.

New States Overlooked.

None of the new states admitted since Colorado has been honored with a seat at the cabinet board. The same is true of Nevada, admitted 40 years ago, but naturally the small population of that state has accounted for that fact, although it is said that it would be impossible to find a prominent man who has been a resident long enough to give him a cabinet office.

The new states admitted in 1889 and later, which have not been represented in the cabinet, are Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

As might have been expected, New York, with the largest population, has had the largest number of cabinet officers, while Pennsylvania is a close second. Illinois, the third in population, has had only six, and is greatly outranked by Massachusetts, Virginia and Ohio.

The first two are much older states, and in the early days of the republic each had one and sometimes two members of the cabinet. Ohio is catching up by the sheer push which the Buckeye state uses in the race it is making to eclipse Virginia as the mother of presidents.

Cabinet Positions By States.

The states which have had cabinet representatives and the numbers of each is as follows: New York, 31; Pennsylvania, 30; Massachusetts, 24; Virginia, 21; Ohio, 19; Kentucky, 14; Maryland, 14; Indiana, 10; Connecticut, 9; Georgia, 9; Tennessee, 8; Iowa, 7; Illinois, 6; Wisconsin, 6; Delaware, 5; Maine, 5; New Jersey, 5; Mississippi, 4; North Carolina, 4; Louisiana, 3; New Hampshire, 3; West Virginia, 2; Minnesota, 2; Vermont, 2; District of Columbia, 2; Alabama, 1; Arkansas, 1; California, 1; Colorado, 1; Nebraska, 1; Oregon, 1.

THEATER ATTRACTIONS.

The Park and Frazer's Announce Good Performances.

Charles Klein is the author of the stage version of Charles Dickens' "The Pickwick Papers," which we are to have at the Frazer on November 12, and Manuel Klein, brother of Charles, composed the music for this Broadway success. The stage version is called "Mr. Pickwick," and De Wolf Hopper, who originated the stage character of that truly great man, will be seen in the part when his company visits Pendleton.

"A Little Outcast."

Much interest has been displayed by the public regarding the big hit of the season, "A Little Outcast," which comes to the Frazer next Tuesday, November 17. Extraordinary electrical effects are a great feature, while the famous fire scene is the most bewildering spectacle ever put on a stage. Crowded houses attest to the phenomenal success of "A Little Outcast," and local theater-goers are anticipating a treat in its appearance here.

After tonight, Nelson & La Vern will discontinue the Saturday night performance at the Park theater in this city, and the entire list of performers will be taken to Athens for a Saturday night vaudeville show at that place each week during the winter. The performances during each entire week will be continued at the Park theater here, with the exception of Saturday night, with new features introduced regularly. The grand prize drawing takes place tonight as usual. The matinee was well attended this afternoon.

HIGH CLASS DRUGGISTS AND — OTHERS.

The better class of druggists, everywhere, are men of scientific attainments and high integrity, who devote their lives to the welfare of their fellow men in supplying the best of remedies and purest medicinal agents of known value, in accordance with physicians' prescriptions and scientific formula. Druggists of the better class manufacture many excellent remedies, but always under original or official names and they never sell false brands, or imitation medicines. They are the men to deal with when in need of anything in their line, which usually includes all standard remedies and corresponding adjuncts of a first-class pharmacy and the finest and best of toilet articles and preparations and many useful accessories and remedial appliances. The earning of a fair living, with the satisfaction which arises from a knowledge of the benefits conferred upon their patrons and assistance to the medical profession, is usually their greatest reward for long years of study and many hours of daily toil. They all know that Syrup of Figs is an excellent laxative remedy and that it gives universal satisfaction, and therefore they are selling many millions of bottles annually to the well informed purchasers of the choicest remedies, and they always take pleasure in handing out the genuine article bearing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package. They know that in cases of colds and headaches attended by biliousness and constipation and of weakness or torpidity of the liver and bowels, arising from irregular habits, indigestion, or over-eating, that there is no other remedy so pleasant, prompt and beneficial in its effects as Syrup of Figs, and they are glad to sell it because it gives universal satisfaction.

Owing to the excellence of Syrup of Figs, the universal satisfaction which it gives and the immense demand for it, imitations have been made, tried and condemned, but there are individual druggists to be found, here and there, who do not maintain the dignity and principles of the profession and whose greed gets the better of their judgment, and who do not hesitate to recommend and try to sell the imitations in order to make a larger profit. Such preparations sometimes have the name—"Syrup of Figs"—or "Fig Syrup" and of some piratical concern, or fictitious fig syrup company, printed on the package, but they never have the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of the package. The imitations should be rejected because they are injurious to the system. In order to sell the imitations they find it necessary to resort to misrepresentation or deception, and whenever a dealer passes off on a customer a preparation under the name of "Syrup of Figs" or "Fig Syrup," which does not bear the full name of the California Fig Syrup Co. printed on the front of the package, he is attempting to deceive and mislead the patron who has been so unfortunate as to enter his establishment, whether it be large or small, for if the dealer resorts to misrepresentation and deception in one case he will do so with other medicinal agents, and in the filling of physicians' prescriptions, and should be avoided by every one who values health and happiness. Knowing that the great majority of druggists are reliable, we supply the immense demand for our excellent remedy entirely through the druggists, of whom it may be purchased everywhere, in original packages only, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, but as exceptions exist it is necessary to inform the public of the facts, in order that all may decline or return any imitation which may be sold to them. If it does not bear the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, do not hesitate to return the article and to demand the return of your money, and in future go to one of the better class of druggists who will sell you what you wish and the best of everything in his line at reasonable prices.

AFTER PENDLETON MERCHANTS

Walla Walla Grocers Object to Invasion of Their Field.

The Walla Walla Statesman of Thursday has the following to say of the enterprising Pendleton firms invading Walla Walla markets:

"The Walla Walla Grocers' and Merchants' Association, organized several months ago for the mutual benefit of local retail houses, is up in arms against the methods being employed by Pendleton grocers in an effort to capture the bulk of the trade of local hotels and restaurants.

within the past month, gradually annihilating the trade with grocery houses.

According to one member of the association a Pendleton grocer has personally visited and solicited trade from local hotel keepers, offering special rates on staples and fancy goods.

As a result of this solicitation it is alleged that no less than four carloads of groceries and cured meats have been shipped into Walla Walla
