RICHES OF THE FARM

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE

Most Abundant Year in the Past Decade, Except 1901—Surplus Wheat This Year Amounted to 114,000,000 Bushels, Besides 20,000,000 Barrels of Flour.

The following valuable information is gleaned from the report of the secretary of agriculture, for 1903, which has just been issued:

Out of their continued abundance, during the past year, the farmers of the nation have contributed food and raw materials for manufactures to hundreds of millions of people in foreign countries, besides sustaining 80,000,000 at home.

A survey of half a century discovers the remarkable character of the movement in which the farmers of this country have become the chief purveyors of the world.

In 1851 our shipments of farm products were valued at $147,000,000, while half a century later, in 1901, they amounted to $952,000,000, an increase of $805,000,000, or about 550 per cent.

The farmers' export trade for the decade 1851-1860 amounted to $1,896,000,000, and in the following decade, in spite of the transfer of multitudes of men from productive to destructive life the total was $2,431,000,000. In the decade after that the export trade doubled and amounted to $4,864,000,000.

In the next decade, the amount grew to $5,740,000,000, and the total for the decade of 1891-1900 was $7,032,000,000, or an average of over $703,000,000 a year. Subsequent to the last named period this trade has gone on increasing and reached its highest amount in 1901 with exports valued at $952,000,000. The export trade in farm products for 1903 was valued at over $878,000,000, an amount second only to that of 1901.

The consumption of cotton in this country is now greater than that of any other country, and yet the cotton planters of the South not only supplied this market last year, but exported a surplus of 3,589,000,000 pounds, valued at $317,000,000, or for every working day in the year about 12,000,000 pounds, worth more than $1,000,000.

Represented in value, the exports of grain and grain products had about two-thirds of the importance of cotton in the last fiscal year, the value of the export being more than $221,000,000. From 46,000,000 acres of wheat there was a surplus for foreign mouths amounting to 114,000,000 bushels and 20,000,000 barrels of flour, amounts that together represent 204,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Third in importance are the exports of meats and meat products, with a grand total of $178,000,000, to which may be added $35,000,000 for live animals. Quantities that are beyond the grasp of the mind represent the exports of meats and their products. The pounds of beef were 385,000,000; of pork, 551,000,000; of lard, 491,000,000; and of oleo oil, 126,000,000.

The foregoing figures, it should be borne in mind, do not stand for the total production of the farms, but for the surplus production after the wants of the people at home have been satisfied.

The Farmer's Balance of Trade. The immense exports from the farms of the country lead to an examination of the so-called balance of trade. This examination reveals what seems to have escaped the attention of the public, and that is, that the favorable balance of trade, everything included, is due to the still more favorable balance of trade in the products of the farm.

During the thirteen years 1890-1902 the average annual excess of domestic exports over imports amounted to $275,000,000, and during the same time the annual average in favor of farm products was $337,000,000, from which it is apparent that there was an average annual adverse balance of trade in products other than those of the farm amounting to $62,000,000, which the farmers offset and had left $275,000,000 to the credit of themselves and the country.

Taking the business of 1903, the comparison is much more favorable to the farmers than during the preceding thirteen-year period, since the value of domestic exports over imports was $367,000,000, the entire trade being included, while the excess for farm products was $422,000,000, which was sufficient not only to offset the unfavorable balance of trade of $56,000,000 in products other than those of the farm, but to leave, as above stated, the enormous favorable balance of $367,000,000.

During the last fourteen years there was a balance of trade in favor of farm products, without excepting any year, that amounted to $4,806,000,000. Against this was an adverse balance of trade in products other than those of the farm of $865,000,000, and the farmers not only canceled this immense obligation, but had enough left to place $3,941,000,000 to the credit of the nation when the books of international exchange were balanced.

These figures tersely express the immense national reserve-sustaining power of the farmers of the country under present quantities of production. It is the farmers who have paid the foreign bondholders.

National Stock of Farm Animals. The department's inventory of farm animals January 1, 1903, discovers that while some classes of animals are only holding their large proportions, others are increasing. The horses number 16,557,000, with a value of $1,031,000,000. The mules have increased to 2,728,000, with a value of nearly $290,000,000.

Dairying shows marked expansion, and now depends upon 17,150,000 milch cows, with a value of $517,000,000. Other cattle of all sorts number 45,000,000, with a value of $524,000,000.

The number of sheep has had a tendency to decline at times during the last score of years, but within the last four years has increased decisively, so that now the sheep number 64,000,000, with a value of $168,000,000.

Hogs have remained about stationary in number for many years, and in 1903 were found to be 47,000,000 with a value of $265,000,000.

THE TIGER'S RULE

HOW NOMINATIONS HAVE BEEN MADE PLAYTHINGS.

Insight into Past New York Politics of the Tammany Ring Was Absolute—A Nomination Always Meant an Election Before the Disruption.

The news that W. Bourke Cockran of New York expects to return to congress in McClellan's place is interesting as indicating another change in a very changeable mind. Cockran came to congress during President Cleveland's first term much heralded for his oratory, stayed just long enough to learn that a new member is of little use in such a body, even though he can be a clever speaker, and went away disgusted.

One day in the early fall of 1890 Franklin Bartlett of New York decided that he would like to come to congress and see whether, by a long period of good service, a northern and eastern man could not acquire the influence possessed by so many southern and western men through that means. He met Cockran in the street in New York and consulted him about it.

"Don't go to congress," advised Cockran. "It's a waste of time. You have a fine law practice; stick to that. A man gets nowhere in congress unless he ties himself up with some crew of fellows you would not wish to train with. I've tried it, and I know."

Mr. Bartlett presented the argument which had appealed to him of a possible long and honorable service and its rewards.

"Well, there's something in that view of the case," answered Cockran. "Still, I doubt whether you would be satisfied with the results if you attempted to carry out such a program. Feeling as I do about it, I would not be hired to go again."

Mr. Bartlett had some errands to do on his way to his office and got there late. After going through his morning mail, he went around to see Richard Croker, who had offered him the Tammany nomination, and had held it open for him for some time.

"Mr. Croker," said he, "I've thought over the matter, weighed all the pros and cons, and concluded that I will take that nomination for congress."

"Very sorry to disappoint you my boy," said Croker, looking up from the letter he was writing, "but Bourke Cockran has just been in to tell me that he'd like it, and I promised he should have it."

So Bartlett had to wait two years for another opening. Cockran stayed in congress longer the second time, and quitted it because of a quarrel with the boss. Bartlett was finally "knifed" by Tammany, and cut out of his reelection after two terms, because he refused to bow to Bryanism in 1896.

UNNA DEFINES A CAUSE. European Skin Specialist Says Dandruff is Caused by Parasites.

Upon that theory, proved beyond a doubt, a cure for dandruff was sought after. Scientists, chemists, druggists and physicians all "took a hand" and the successful issue is the present product known as "Newbro's Herpicide."

This remedy actually kills the parasites that infest the hair bulb, does its work most effectively and contains not an atom of substance injurious to anything else than the germ alone. Herpicide causes the hair to grow as nature intended it should, soft and abundant.
