ED WESTON AGAIN

PUT UNDER ARREST, BUT ESCAPES AT POMEROY.

Was Taken in Custody on a Charge of Horsestealing Brought From Lincoln County—Was Out on Bail From This County While Under a Sentence to Oregon Penitentiary.

Ed Weston, well and unfavorably known in this part of the country on account of his fondness for horse flesh that is not his own, has again come into prominence in Washington, where he has been arrested for horsestealing and has escaped from the officers after having been captured.

Weston is under sentence in this county for a term of two and a half years for horsestealing, but was admitted to bail in the sum of $500 while an appeal was pending in the supreme court. He was held in the county jail here for the greater part of the summer, and his appeal was set for the November term, but was continued. The money for his bail was furnished by his grandfather, and he left the state as soon as released from the jail, going to Washington.

He is said to have stolen a valuable horse from a Lincoln county horseman and a reward of $500 was offered for his arrest. He was arrested in Pomeroy, and while the officer was taking him to the restaurant for supper, Weston slipped away in the dark, and has not been found. He served time in the Walla Walla penitentiary for horsestealing, and it is not likely that he will take another chance at the same place if it is possible for him to get away.

AT THE INDIAN SCHOOL.

Christmas Will Be Celebrated in the Most Approved Manner.

The teachers and scholars of the Umatilla Indian school are now busy preparing a Christmas program for the celebration to be held in the chapel at the school on Christmas eve.

It is the intention to have a Christmas tree in the chapel on that evening, at which each scholar will receive a present, and in connection with this will be given a special program. The teachers and scholars will all take part in this, and it will be most entertaining.

The Indian scholars are very apt in matters of this kind, and are in the present instance most earnest and enthusiastic in working for the success of the evening. Every grade and class in the school will have part in the program, and the participants are now being drilled by their instructors in their parts.

The chapel will be decorated in true Christian style, and the little Americans will be given the time of their lives.

"THE HEAD WAITERS."

An Entertaining Combination of Music and Fun.

"The Head Waiters" was played to a good house at the Frazer on Saturday evening and was enjoyed by all. There was no plot to the piece, but it was a combination of pipe-dreaming and jokes that took well with the audience and made it a success.

Joe Kelly, the pipe dreamer, was as disappointed in his talk as his remarks were comical, while the gulleless innocence of Charles Burkhardt as Izzy Cohn, repeatedly made the audience roar. The singing was good and the music of the catchy sort that takes the gallery gods and makes a play successful. All parts considered, it was a good evening's entertainment.

LODGE OF SORROW

THE ELKS REMEMBER

DEPARTED BROTHERS.

Beautiful Ceremony at Christian Church—Well Rendered Songs by Vested Choir—Touching Memorial Address by William Smith.

S. P. Sturgis,
William C. Murphy,
Henry C. Guernsey.

The First Christian church was filled yesterday evening with friends and members of the Order of Elks, to witness the beautiful and solemn memorial service, or "Lodge of Sorrow," held annually by that order on the first Sunday in December.

The church was beautifully decorated with the purple and white colors of the order, and with evergreens, while the altar was draped in the stars and stripes.

The services opened with a song, "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand," by the vested choir of the Episcopal church, with Miss Costi Raley at the piano.

Following this, the lodge of sorrow was opened by Exalted Ruler Hartman, the impressive ritual of the order, reminding initiated and uninitiated alike of the uncertainty of life, and of the splendid virtues which should crown all the actions of men, was rendered.

The roll of the departed ones was called, and their failure to respond was beautifully woven into a sermon too deep for human speech, by those who had known them in life, and in that moment of meditation, there was evidence in the moist eyes and bowed heads of the Elks of a deeper fraternity and brotherly love than is expressed in the outward forms of the order.

At the close of the "Lodge of Sorrow," Rev. W. E. Potwine offered a brief, but touching prayer, after which William Smith, of Baker City, delivered the memorial address. He briefly reviewed the objects of the order, and laid strong impress upon the motto, which is inscribed upon all banners of Elks—"The faults of our brothers we will write upon the sands; their virtues upon the tablets of love and memory."

He spoke briefly of the charitable features of the order, the deep underlying principles which crown the order with highest honors and bind the members together in bonds of fraternity and fellowship.

If the virtues of charity, alone, as exemplified in holy writ, and adopted by the order of Elks, as a fundamental principle, should govern the actions of men, the speaker said, there would be no need for further regulation in human society.

"Charity suffereth long and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not herself, nor puffeth herself up; doth not behave unseemly; seeketh not her own; is not easily provoked; thinketh not evil; rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth; beareth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things."

If this creed were followed by the world, the speaker said, the sum of human woes would disappear from the path of men, and the tears of the widow and orphan would not embitter the experiences of mankind.

He reviewed briefly the history of the order in his home town, stating that the Baker City lodge had been in existence for eight years, and that during the first seven years of its life death had fallen to visit its ranks, but that within the past year three members had passed to that other lodge, and failed to respond to the roll call on earth. Baker City lodge has a membership of 300, and has recently built a fine lodge building.

Following the address, the vested choir sang very beautifully, "No Shadows Yonder," and the memorial service closed with the singing of the doxology by the audience, and the benediction by Rev. Potwine.

Pendleton lodge No. 288 was organized in September, 1894, and now has a membership of 107, and is in a thriving condition. In that time but three members have died—Samuel P. Sturgis, William C. Murphy and Henry C. Guernsey, whose names were inscribed on the beautiful memorial programs issued by the lodge.

A number of Pendleton people attended the drive, and report a good time and plenty to eat, thanks to the hospitality of the residents of the sister city. The drive was over a new territory, and the number of rabbits caught was correspondingly great.

The meetings have been very successful in the past, and the interest in them is still great, so that the church is disposed to continue them.
