WHITE MAN'S WAYS

UMATILLAS FEEL INFLUENCE OF CIVILIZATION.

Squaws and Children Imitate the Bucks' Habit of Eating in Restaurants

the size of the city, all these matters Sidewalks While Their Lords Feasted—Indian Trade a Special Commercial Feature.

One of the most marked influences of civilization upon the Umatilla Indians, is the increasing frequency with which the squaws take their meals in restaurants and chop houses while on their regular daily visits to this city.

This custom is of a very recent origin, as formerly the squaw and papooses would accompany the bucks to the restaurant door and sit on the sidewalk waiting while their lords feasted within.

On coming out, the buck, if especially thoughtful, would bring a biscuit or a remnant of meat to the family, but even this scanty recognition was usually neglected, as the voracious appetite of the Indian leaves but few scraps from the 25 cent meal. Usually while the women and children were waiting outside for the father and husband to finish his repast, they would eat doughnuts, cookies, bologna, or other delicacies, appealing to the Umatilla appetite, the children dividing their share with the family dogs.

But the squaws and children now eat at the lunch counters with regularity. They may be seen every day indulging in the white man's meal and while they never accompany the men, they eat as often and have as varied tastes.

One of the most noticeable habits of the Indian children is their never-ceasing desire to eat sweetmeats and confections while in the city. From the time they arrive until they are bundled in the wagon to start for home, they are engaged in contracting worms, dyspepsia, nightmare, had teeth and other of the white child's ills, eating the white man's sweets.

The habits of the Indians are so familiar and commonplace to the residents of Pendleton that little attention is paid to the eccentricities of these people, but they are a constant marvel to the strangers who visit the city.

Yesterday a woman who was in the city from Des Moines, Iowa, waiting for the W. & C. R. train, was enjoying the sights of this city and especially the odd habits of the Umatilla squaws, crouched on the thresholds of the various stores along Main street. One squaw had three particularly clean and bright children with her, and the tourist stood long before her watching the antics of the little savages, until one of the smallest ventured to approach her and lay its hand upon her own, wondering.

The squaw had become thoroughly disgusted with the woman who was staring at her progeny, and when the child did this, its mother snatched it to her at once, grabbed all three of the children and instantly covered them with her blanket and turned her face from the interested spectator, and held the kicking papooses under the blanket until the white woman had disappeared.

The Indian trade in Pendleton is one of the most important features connected with the people, Pendleton merchants make a practice of bringing on special grades and colors, extraordinary articles and outlandish and odd goods for their special benefit and they are on a constant outlook for the latest color design that is brought in.

SPOKANE RENTS UP.

Business Blocks Advance Rentals From 20 to 33 Per Cent Jan. 1.

Here's a pretty how-do-do for January 1, the very month that everyone is supposed to economize, says the Spokane Press. Up go the rents of professional men, and the landlords and lodgers in the big downtown blocks. The Press has had a hint, for some time, that there was forming, or formed, a landlord's trust, and the verification came today in the form of complaints from professional men, who asked the Press to exploit the newest of Spokane's local trusts. The advance in prices is general, from 20 to 33 per cent. Said one of Spokane's leading doctors:

"They raised me 33 per cent and I might as well take it, because it's folly to move around. The advance is all up and down the avenue. It strikes men and women in lodgings most heavily, but professional men are none too well pleased. I would be especially curious to learn if Assessor Stewart will now, in turn, raise the taxes on the various pieces of property?"

The Traders' block rents are up; certain tenants in the Rookery have met a raise of 20 per cent. It is even said that the Spokane club people had to face a big lift in rents. Other large blocks are said to be involved.

SCHUBERT QUARTET.

Knights of Pythias Commend the Quartet Coming Here.

The aristocratic little city of Americus, Ga., received the Schubert Symphony club with a large audience of enthusiastic people on March 10th, 1897, and the George F. Cooper lodge, K. of P. No. 43, says: "We commend them to our Brother Knights and the public and when they return to old Georgia our city will be the first to throw open its doors and bid them enter." (Signed) H. E. ALLEN, C. C. B. H. MAYO, K. of R. & S.

Some people are slow to take a hint; others can only grasp it after the "brick house" has fallen on them; but most any person with a little bit of hard sense knows that a lodge will only praise what deserves it. They would not give their brother lodges the wrong tip for all the concert companies in christendom. You can risk attending the Schubert entertainment at the Frazer January 11.

Rozzled the Frenchman.

Sergeant Harry, who acted as usher in the White House during Cleveland's second term, told this story: "I will never forget the message President Cleveland sent to Secretary Olney one night. It was this way: There was an eclipse of the moon that night, and President and Mrs. Cleveland were much interested in watching it. 'I don't believe Olney knows about it,' said Mr. Cleveland, 'and he will be sorry to miss it.' Then very quickly, 'Harry, go telephone Olney to look at the moon.'

"I went to the phone, and Olney's chief or butler or something French answered. 'The president sends word to Mr. Secretary to look at the moon,' I said. 'To look at what?' answered the Frenchman. 'The moon,' I repeated. 'Ze vat?' again he asked. 'The moon,' I spelled. 'The moon.' 'Is ze president in his mind?' 'Yes; he tells Mr. Olney to go look at the moon. Give him the president's message.' 'But vat for iss dat—to look at ze moon?' I then said a word or two and rang off.

About an hour later the same butler called us up and, with more density in his tone than even before, said, 'Meestaire Secretary desires to say to Meestaire President zat he hass looked at ze moon, and he iss mooch obliged!'

Didn't Suit Washington.

Until the early part of the last century Milford, Conn., had a house in which Washington was said to have spent a night. It was in 1789, when Washington made a tour of New England. Tradition says that there were certain things about his stay at the Milford tavern which he did not enjoy. The supper set before him consisted of boiled meat and potatoes. He was not pleased with the meal and asked for a bowl of bread and milk. The landlord brought the new order and a broken pewter spoon with which to eat it.

"Have you no better spoons than this?" asked General Washington.

"It's the best I have in the house, sir," replied the host.

"Send me the servant," said his excellency. "Here's 2 shillings. Go to the minister's and borrow a silver spoon." Tradition does not add whether he got the spoon or not.

Describing a Wedding.

A young woman clerk at the courthouse was asked to report for the Wellington (Kan.) Mail a wedding that was to take place in the office of the probate judge. Here is her journalistic achievement, otherwise not even the names being given: "The bride was sixteen years old, wore a short dress and black kid shoes, black dress, red cloak, blue velvet hat, with plumes arranged to give a wing effect, crown flat and white rosette in front. The groom was tall, gawky and light complexioned, wore a blue necktie, striped trousers, dark blue barred sack coat, standing collar, black shoes laced upside down, with strings trailing."

In the good old days the sexton announced a death in the community by a stroke on the church bell for every year of the life that was gone.

People expected, then, to live to old age, and speculation at the first tap of the bell took a narrow range including only those who had lived the allotted time. There is no reason why people should not have the same expectancy of age to-day, except for the neglect and abuse of the one organ on which all the other organs depend—the stomach.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery enables men and women to be strong and healthy, by curing diseases of the stomach (and other organs of digestion and nutrition), which prevent the proper nourishment of the body.

"I had been sick for two years with indigestion and nervous debility, and had taken medicine from my family doctor for a long time without much benefit," writes Mrs. W. H. Peck, of Lockport, N. C. "Was induced by my husband to consult Dr. Pierce by letter. You advised me to take Golden Medical Discovery and 'Favorite Prescription,' which I did, and, to my great surprise, after taking six bottles I was cured."

The Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free for 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.
