some shipping pressure early, but, in the main the tone remains strong, and the market has the support of a large speculative buying. We can learn of no material increase in farmers' deliveries and stocks of good corn are rather meagre and the arrivals in fairly good demand. We see nothing very encouraging yet to the short seller and think we would rather buy on the breaks. Another Rise in Turpentine,

The Standard Oil Company today announced a rise of 2 cents a gallon in the former quotations of turpen-tine. This makes a rise of 8 cents tine, a gallon in that oil during the past 10 days. The rise is said to be due to the extra cost of production, occa-sioned by labor troubles and also to the cornering of a great portion of the supply.
