AN IRRIGATION MAP

OFFICIAL PLAT LITTLE WALLA WALLA DISTRICT.

Shows All the Streams in the Tumulium Delta and Also the Water Courses Before the Delta is Reached, and After They Converge—A Valuable Addition to the Store of Information on the Subject.

J. W. Kimbrell, the county surveyor, has completed a map of the Little Walla Walla Irrigation district for the use of the people of the district and the convenience of the attorneys and court in the settlement of the case which is now in the courts on an injunction suit brought by the district against the Hudson Bay Company, which is attempting to take water for its land out of the Little Walla Walla above the land of the district.

Some time ago Mr. Kimbrell was sent to make a map that would show the lay of all of the water courses of the district, and also to show all of the land that has ever been or is now under water. He has traced out the course of all the branches in the delta of the Little Walla Walla and has followed them until they join again in the state of Washington. In a short time he will make an addition to the map showing the course of the Tumulium and its branches from the Walla Walla until they meet again.

The map will be of especial interest to those in the district, as it will show whether or not all the land can be easily brought under the irrigation ditches. There are 2,000 acres covered by a map at this time, and when Mr. Kimbrell makes his second survey he will locate all of the springs and feeders in the district.

The trouble between the Hudson Bay people and the district seems now to be near an amicable adjustment, for by an action of the court in modifying the injunction, the former company can take water from the Tumulium by fuming across the district and crossing the Walla Walla, thus taking the water from the larger stream without doing damage to the general supply of the district.

FAILED TO CONVICT

THE CHINAMAN MON HUIE WAS GIVEN HIS LIBERTY.

An instance where a Scotch Verdict of "Guilty But Not Proven" might have been rendered appropriate. Plenty of Evidence of Guilt, But it Did Not Collaborate to Produce Results.

In spite of the fact that there was a trunk full of opium in the court room taken from the room in which the dope fiends were arrested last Friday afternoon; in spite of the fact that the "lay out" was found in the hands of the fiends; in spite of the fact that Frederick B. Collins testified that he had smoked opium in the room before, and had gone there with the intention of smoking opium and had bought opium in the house; in spite of all of these facts, Judge Thomas Fitz Gerald was forced to dismiss the case against Mon Huie, the proprietor, charged with allowing opium smoking in his house, because of the brazen and monumental lies of the Chinaman and the fiend, and the general ignorance of the witnesses in regard to the matter.

Mon Huie was arrested charged with allowing smoking on Friday evening, and his case was set for this morning at 10 o'clock. Alderman Wells, Fire Chief Withee and Marshal Carney were called and all told of having gone into the room, looking for a violation of the fire ordinances, and having found there the two men smoking.

The fiend, Collins, was called, and gave an expert opinion and account of what he had done. He gave the Chinese names of the instruments used, and of the dope produced in court, told of having gone there and having rented the room to smoke in, and of having been there when the officers came into the room. He stated that he had not smoked, but was intending to, and then in a short time said that he was so full of the dope the following morning that he was not competent to have made any statement to the marshal, or the city attorney.

Mon Huie was called. He knew the man who had rented the room, but that was all. He did not know who owned the pipes in the court room, or whose trunk it was that contained the opium. In fact, he came as near knowing nothing as a mortal could without being an absolute idiot, and on account of this ignorance the court was not able under the law to convict the defendant or connect him with the crime charged, and the case was dismissed and the hall of $50 refunded. The court knew he was guilty and said so, the city attorney was satisfied of his guilt, and the Chinaman proclaimed it by his actions, still technically he is innocent.

The "Drummer Poet."

Thomas Murray Spencer, of Portland, author of the little poem which appeared first in the East Oregonian some months ago, entitled "Matlock's Ride," is in the city today. Mr. Murray is also author of several other popular newspaper poems which have had a wide circulation in the West among them "The Dying Tramp," an episode in verse of the wreck of the Elks' excursion, and "The Old Fort," a very touching little story of old Fort Benton, on the upper Missouri. This poem also appeared in the East Oregonian a short time ago.

IBSEN'S "GHOSTS."

Best Dramatic Art Seen in Pendleton This Winter Was Enjoyed at the Frazer Saturday Night.

There were only five characters in the "Ghosts," presented by Alberta Gallatin at the Frazer last Saturday, but every one of them was an artist. How that thrilling book of Ibsen's can be crowded into three short acts, without suffering more of a loss of interest, and interruption of the plot, than it does in this stage version, is one of the wonders of the dramatist's art. The whole story, from beginning to end, was there, with all its thrilling situations, its vital moral sermons and its intense dramatic value. It was presented with marked ability and cleverness, throughout. It was not overdrawn nor underdone. It was just natural and plain—true to the wonderful requirements of the deep questions woven into its outward plot.

The audience cheered heartily as the climax was reached in which it was shown that a fallen man is embraced by society, and lionized, while the chattering harpies in the social tree turn to pluck at a woman who swerves from the narrow path of rectitude. It was one of the hits of the play.

Although the moral questions discussed by Ibsen are always before society, it is a rare treat to see them transferred so vividly to the stage.

LARGER ELECTRIC PLANT.

Northwestern Gas and Electric Company Advertisers for Bids for Enormous Plant.

The Northwestern Gas and Electric Company, which now owns the Pendleton and Walla Walla electric light plants, has advertised for bids for the construction of a $250,000 light and power plant on the Walla Walla river, from which plant power and light will be transmitted to all the Umatilla county and Walla Walla valley towns.

The construction of this plant was the prime object of the company when the purchase of the Walla Walla and Pendleton light plants was made last fall, and as soon as the bids are accepted work will begin on this enormous concern.

It is the intention of the company to include Milton, Freewater, Athena, Weston, Adams, Walla Walla and Pendleton on this circuit and an all-day electric service will be furnished. There are many business institutions now awaiting the completion of this plant, so a full electric service for manufacturing and other purposes can be secured.

Was Not McFarland's Body.

E. B. McFarland of Adams Communicated with the coroner at Lewiston Saturday and was informed that the body found near Wild Goose Rapids on Snake river on Friday was that of Sam Weber. Mr. McFarland had hoped that the body was that of one of his brothers, who were drowned while rescuing the boilers of the wrecked steamer on Wild Goose Rapids, about two months ago. Two of his brothers were lost in the river at that time and no trace of either of their bodies has yet been found.

ACT OF A COWARD.

Unknown Party Puts Acid in Laundry Being Shipped to Pendleton.

On Saturday evening Dunn Bros. the laundrymen delivered two baskets full of clothes to be shipped to Pendleton, to the express office, says the La Grande Observer. The baskets were on the platform scales in front of the office and when express agent Claud Hamilton went to place them on the truck prior to the arrival of the train, he noticed a large black spot on one of the baskets.

At first he thought it was ink but close inspection revealed the fact that some one had poured sulphuric acid on them and that a number of the clothes were ruined. Dunn Bros. were busy yesterday paying various owners for the damaged clothing.

Praiseworthy Fault

One that true economy must endorse

The only complaint we have ever heard about "Revere" Coffee came from a consumer who said it was "too strong." "Too strong" is a highly laudable fault in a Coffee, and one easily remedied by

USING LESS TO THE CUP

"Too strong" is not the same as "too rank." The latter is a fault that often characterizes weak coffee, and nearly always characterizes very cheap grades. "Too strong" simply means that will produce more cups of the desired strength than the consumer gives it credit for, and for that reason true economy prompts its purchase. The "per cup" cost of "Revere" coffee at 40c a pound is no more than when a 25c grade is used. The incomparable flavor, rich aroma and satisfying body cost absolutely nothing extra.
