The chances favoring the removal of Major Abuerson, the Indian agent of the Colville and Coeur d'Alene reservations are very slim. Although Mr. Anderson has been rigorously "in-spected" by Inspector Jenkins, the chances are that unless an exception-ally strong case has been made out against him, he has little to fear against him, he has little to fear from the hands of the department, for the reason that it has been the rule of every administration for years to uphold the appointees of their ad-ministration, if it is possible, and also because in an investigation of this nature many Indian witnesses are examined and their construction of what the agent should do is often in direct. department requires him to do, What-
