OREGON WEATHER

SUMMARY OF THE STATE IS ISSUED.

Umatilla the Dryest Point in the State, With But 5.88 Inches of Rainfall—Tillamook County Wettest, With 129 Inches—Pine, in Baker County, Coldest Point—Mount Hood Had the Most Snow.

The department of agriculture has just issued the crop and weather summary for Oregon for the year 1903, and it discloses some interesting facts and figures concerning weather and rainfall in the state.

Owing to the fact that no regular observer is now stationed at Pendleton, no figures covering weather conditions here are given in the report. Weston and Umatilla are on the list with comparative figures on rainfall, temperature and other items.

The altitude of Weston is given at 1,800 feet, the annual mean temperature for the year was 47.9, the highest temperature for the year was 99 degrees on August 18, and the lowest was 3 below zero, on February 6. The total rainfall for the year at Weston was 22.73 inches, the greatest fall in any one month being 5.28 inches in November, and the least for any one month being 0.61 inches in April.

The total snowfall at Weston is given at 35.6 inches, the number of rainy days at 78, the number of clear days at 170, partly cloudy days at 50 and the number of cloudy days at 145.

The town of Umatilla has the distinction of being the driest place in the state, the total rainfall for the past year being but 5.88 inches. The elevation of Umatilla is but 340 feet above the sea level. The average mean temperature was 54.2 for the year, the highest being 58.2 on August 18, and the lowest being 14 above zero on February 6. The total rainfall for the year was 5.88 inches, the greatest amount falling in any month being 2.02 inches in November and the smallest amount being 0.01 in April. The total snowfall was 0.4 inches, the number of rainy days was 53, the number of clear days 150, the number of cloudy days 153 and the number of partly cloudy, 60.

The highest temperature recorded in the state was 108, at Umatilla Junction, on August 18, and the lowest was 24 below at Pine, in Baker county, on February 13.

The least precipitation was at Umatilla, where but 5.88 inches of rain fell and the greatest precipitation was at Glenora, Tillamook county, where 129 inches fell. The greatest number of rainy days recorded was at Bay City, Tillamook county, the number being 241. The greatest number of clear days reported was 250 at Joseph, Wallowa county.

The greatest snowfall reported was 225 inches on Mount Hood, and the next greatest was at Pine postoffice, in Baker county, where 117 inches fell. The smallest number of clear days at any one point for the year was 50, at Bay City, Tillamook county, and the smallest number of rainy days at any one point was 32, at Blacklocks, Gilliam county.

E. B. CONKLIN,
City Superintendent.
Lonely Chicago.
Chicago at night is the stupidest, dullest big city in the United States, all because the theaters are closed. Where a dozen cabs rolled through Michigan avenue before the Iroquois theater fire one goes creeping along through the darkness now. Private carriages remain in stables. Fine gowns for theater wear are going to waste. Late dinners at the hotels and cafes are things of the past. The music is still, lights burn dimly, waiters stand like statues for the patrons that do not come except at rare intervals. Street cars at night are almost tenantless. There is no more need of trap rapping. There is nothing to come down for. Not only the theaters, but the dance halls are all closed. Public lectures are abandoned for the time.
"Ten thousand people are dependent on Chicago theaters for bread and butter," said Miss Grace Realls, lending woman of Bush Temple, today. "Performances are stopped, but board bills continue. They mean suffering. They form a side of the Iroquois tragedy scarcely considered by the public."—Kansas City Star.

UNLAWFUL TO TREAT.

In Temperance Town a Man Must Not Give Away Beer.

To the state court of appeals has been referred the interesting question whether it is unlawful for a person to treat his friends to beer in a temperance town, says the Denver Post.

The county court of Logan county has declared that such a practice is against the ordinances of the town of Sterling.

The appellant in the case is M. Litch, who gave a birthday party one evening last summer and opened a keg of beer in a rear room of his confectionery store in celebration of the event. The temperance people of the town heard of the Litch hospitality and had him arrested. He was fined $30 and costs before the police magistrate, under the old blue law, which forbids even the giving way of intoxicating liquor in the town of Sterling.

In his defense Litch says that the beer did not belong to him, but that he had borrowed it from James Lynch, who was in Sterling that day, proving up on his homestead and that he, Lynch, brought the beer there to treat the witnesses in the proving case.

Litch wants the court of appeals to reverse the police judge, and he claims that the ordinance under which he was fined is invalid.

The upright go right up.
