Wood for Vice-President.
Some of our democratic contemporaries have mentioned the name of Hon. George E. Chamberlain, our present honored executive, as competent material for the second place on the national ticket. We are not a democrat, and while we believe him a worthy man in every particular, and one who would go down in defeat with as good grace as any one, yet if we were to state our preference for an Oregonian, who, if the miraculous should occur, would worthily occupy the position of president of the senate, and add dignity and credit to the second highest position in the gift of the people, as well as honor to Oregon, we should name Hon. C. E. S. Wood, of Portland. Even his enemies admire his ripe intellectuality, and his patriotic, consistent course on all great national policies, however much as republicans they may differ from him on some questions.—The Dailies Chronicle.

PACIFIC COAST LUMBER.

Greatest Activity in History of the Trade in 1903.
The Oregon Timberman for January gives the following interesting resume of the lumber business on the Pacific coast for the past year:
"The first seven months of 1902 showed the greatest activity in lumber ever known on the Pacific coast. The last five months have shown the inevitable reaction due to disturbed financial conditions and labor unrest throughout the United States, coupled with an aggravated car shortage and overproduction. Despite these unsatisfactory conditions the lumber industry of the Pacific coast has grown, is growing and will continue.
Elsewhere in this issue will be found exhaustive and interesting statements concerning every branch of the lumbering business, treated from all standpoints.
Cut of Columbia River basin mills for 1902 will approximate 600,000,000, of which Portland cut 361,000,000 and Astoria 45,500,000 feet. The cut of the state will approximate 1,000,000,000 feet.
The cargo trade from the Columbia River for 1902 aggregated 171,577,603 feet of lumber, as compared with 134,556,789 feet in 1901, an increase of 36,920,814.
This gain was largely attributable to the shortage of cars. Portland still retains her prestige with 361,000,000 feet as the largest lumber producing city on the coast.
The foreign shipments showed a gain of 12,697,161, and the domestic an increase of 24,313,653 feet. The foreign cargoes were distributed as follows:
Destination. Ships. Feet.
China 22 23,484,277
South Africa 19 11,132,698
Russian Asia 5 13,544,717
Manila 5 6,156,827
South America 5 4,980,383
Australia 2 2,346,492
United Kingdom 1 1,792,983
British India 1 1,500,965
Oceania 1 542,923
Total 52 64,580,281
Of the domestic shipments 35,990,000 feet went to lower California points and some 72,000,000 feet to San Francisco, an increase of a little over 10,000,000 feet for San Pedro and district, and about 14,000,000 for San Francisco.
Of the lumber shipped from the Columbia river 46,909,945 feet were from lower Columbia river points, and the remainder, 60,988,177, from Portland. Of the foreign, all but 907,571 feet was from Portland."
