"ANTI-UNION UNION."

New Order Supposed to Be a Back Fire Against Labor Unions.

The union men of the city are discussing the organization of the American League of Independent Workmen, which took place at the courthouse on Saturday evening. When the matter was discussed among people of the town in the first place, it was supposed that the league was a new fraternal body springing into existence, but from what the union people say of it, it is a sort of an "Anti-union union."

J. C. Tramplesure, president of the Trades and Labor Council, said of the new order today:
"It is claimed by the unions that the organization was formed in the first instance at Chicago some months ago, with the help of the employers, who were having trouble with the unions, and wished to band the opposition to them together for greater strength. From that place it came West, lighting at Butte, when the trouble between the copper forces was at its height. From Butte it went to Spokane during the recent labor troubles there, and now has come here to soothe the wounds of a few who are out of favor with the union men."

"Out of the list of officers elected Saturday, all but one or two are on the black-lists of the various unions in the city, and these people think that they have cause to believe that the organization here was formed to fight them."

CONTRACTS LET.

Plumbing and Heating of the Bowman Building.

The contract for the plumbing and heating of the Bowman building was let Saturday evening and work will commence on the piping at once.
The Goodman-Thompson Hardware Company was successful in landing the bid for the plumbing at $2,770, and will hurry the work through to the finish with all the dispatch possible.

The heating plant will be installed by the Garden-Kendall Company, of Portland, they having offered to do the work for $3,800. "Bade, Jacobs & Company, of Portland, G. H. Sutherland and Lynch & O'Rourke, of Walla Walla, also bid for the work, but their bids were higher than the others.

As soon as the piping is put in place the finishing work will be done and it is the intention of the contractors to have the building ready for occupancy by the first of May.

Substitute For Rubber.

The so called "greasewood plant" of the Rocky mountains, it is said, has been found to yield a good substitute for rubber. The young shoots of this plant contain a milky fluid and the older wood a resinous gum. In making the rubber, it appears, the former are bruised between rollers and the latter crushed, the whole mass being afterward placed in a mechanically agitated vessel and subjected to the action of carbon bisulphide, carbon disulphide, naphtha or other India rubber solvent. When this has been continued for some hours, heat being applied if necessary, the liquid is strained off. This is placed in a closed vessel and the volatile matter driven off by heat. That part which will not volatilize is then washed with either cold or hot water and subjected to repeated rollings.

Zinc Salts In Fruit.

The export of various forms of dried fruit from this country has been considerably hampered of late by the discovery that a large part of it is contaminated with zinc salts. It was at first supposed that the presence of the zinc was due to the zinc trays in which the fruit was dried, and their use was abandoned. The zinc, however, continued to appear in the fruit. Herr Solstein of Gorlitz has recently conducted an investigation to determine its source. He finds that if zinc is present in the soil or atmosphere it is readily taken up by the plants and fruit trees, and as a considerable portion of the ordinary fertilizers contains zinc salts it is very probable that the latter are responsible for the contaminated fruit.

Ingenious Life Raft.
A simple and ingenious life raft resembles the ordinary cork ring life preserver, but is larger and more "ship-shape." A transverse band serves as a seat, so that only the lower part of the body is immersed. The raft is provided with a knotted rope, down which the passenger clammers after the boat has been thrown overboard; also with paddles and an automatic alarm bell.

Color of Tea.

A bulletin of the Tokyo agricultural college says that the color of green tea is not caused by copper salts necessarily, but is due to the fact that green tea is made from leaves dried as soon as they are picked, while black tea is allowed to ferment first. The fermentation neutralizes some of the tannin; hence black tea is not so injurious as green.
