RENTERS' HOMES

NEWCOMERS CAN HARDLY FIND SUITABLE HOUSES.

There is a Strong Demand in Pendleton Now for Small Dwellings for Rent, With an Excellent Prospect of the Demand Being Filled the Coming Season—Architects and Contractors Are Already Busy Figuring.

The house situation in Pendleton is a peculiar one just at present, for there are more than a dozen empty residences, and none to rent.

During the fall and winter a number of the prosperous farmers from the vicinity of the city moved in from their ranches in order to give their children the advantages of the city schools, but now that spring is about to open and the work of the farm demands the presence of the owner, many of them are giving up their city homes and going back again to the country. This has made several vacancies in the past week or two, but the vacancies are not of long standing.

Judging from the vacant residences one would conclude that it would be an easy matter to find a place to live in Pendleton, but this is an error, and easily proven so, if one has to hunt a house. As fast as a house is vacated the owners are besieged with applicants who wish to rent. Those who have been compelled to put up with places which were to them undesirable, are after better homes, and those who have been waiting in any old place for a home are wanting to change their quarters.

The real estate offices are buried under requisitions for houses, and have no means of satisfying the demand. The dealers estimate that 500 new houses in this city during the coming summer would not overstock the market, and that all would be rented as soon as built, or before, if they were in desirable locations.

Owing to the congested condition rents are high, a five-room cottage bringing $15 or more, if it is in a first-class location and modern. This would be overcome if new houses were built in the summer now coming.

From the indications there will be a larger amount of building during the coming season than ever before in the history of the city. All the architects are considering plans for prospective builders who are either about to build homes for themselves, or houses for investment. If the plans carry there will be no dearth of work in the building mechanics' lines during the summer and into the fall.

AN ADVERTISED INDIAN.

Paul Showaway's Picture Has Visited Every Civilized Country.

Paul Showaway, the proud hereditary chief of the Cayuses, who is seen on the streets of Pendleton every day, is perhaps the most widely advertised American Indian alive, not even excepting Chief Joseph, of the Nez Perces.

Happily for Showaway, his photograph was one of several Indian photographs, by Major Lee Moorhouse, chosen by the Pendleton Woolen mills, as an attractive advertisement for their famous Indian robes, and cards bearing Showaway's picture, have been sent into every civilized country on earth, by that enterprising company.

Several hundred thousand cards, bearing Showaway's picture by Major Moorhouse, have been mailed through the Pendleton postoffice and shipped to the advertising agencies of the woolen mills in the East, to be mailed there. Not a single civilized country under the sun, has escaped.

The Pendleton Indian robe cards have traveled by the thousands over every international mail route on earth. His photograph is especially striking, owing to his proud bearing and typical Indian face.

In the photograph in question, he is arrayed in an eagle feather headdress with bare arms, and buckskin leggings, with a splendid specimen of the weaver's art, in one of the gaudiest Indian robes, manufactured, by the Pendleton Woolen mills, thrown loosely about his shoulders.

That these cards have been seen and admired by people in all parts of the earth, is proved by the wide scope of sales of the wares advertised. Showaway appreciates notoriety, and enjoys the distinction in an unexpressive, peculiar way, and while he does not know just how many throne rooms his picture has visited, he has a vague idea that he is a person of great importance, outside of the confines of the Umatilla reservation.

Notice to Contractors.

Sturgis, according to plans and specifications now on file in the office of the architect. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids for the work. February 25, 1904.

MORMONS AT ECHO.

Many of the Homesteaders on the Echo Irrigation Reservation Are of That Faith.

A glance of the plats of the Echo irrigation reservation in the La Grande land office, reveals the fact that many of the homestead filings made upon that tract have been made by prominent members of the Mormon church at La Grande.

This indicates, in a measure, the Mormon faith in the ultimate outcome of the Echo irrigation project, and presages a Mormon settlement in the Echo district, which is supported by the fact that those people are now deeply interested in pushing the experiments in beet culture there.

As the Mormon has made few mistakes in his choice of locations in the past, many watchful people in this county believe the settlement of the Mormons in the Echo district is the forerunner of a large settlement of these people in that portion of Umatilla county, with the intention of building up a sugar beet industry there, to equal, if not to surpass that of Grand Ronde valley.

There is but one way to overcome the trouble and kill the germs—that way is to apply Newbro's Herpicide to the scalp—it will kill the germs and healthy hair is sure to result.

"ROBIN HOOD'S" POPULARITY. Most Intensely Interesting Comic Opera on the Road Coming to the Frazer.

In these days of ephemeral comic opera companies, it is unusual to find one good voice. It is certainly expected by the public so long has it become accustomed to inferior singers. When one good voice is discovered much that is lacking in other ways is overlooked. With the Bostonians every member of the cast possesses a voice that would do for concert work. As a matter of fact, the majority of the company's singers have been recruited from the concert stage or the best church choirs and given a careful dramatic training. That is why the Bostonians "discover" so many "stars."

The following noted singers were discovered and made famous by the Bostonians, who took them into the company entirely unknown to fame: Zelle de Lusan, Camille D'Arville, Alice Nielson, Jessie Bartlett Davis, Eugene Cowles, Agnes Huntington and many others.

When the Bostonians closed their engagement at the Academy of Music in New York city on the night of September 12th, "Robin Hood" was sung for the 2,362nd time. What other American opera has this record? It will be sung here for the 2,459th time on March 3.
