

GRIP CONVALESCENCE

There's nothing better than Scott's Emulsion after the grip. When the fever is gone the body is left weak and exhausted; the nervous system is completely run down and vitality is low.

Two things to do: give strength to the whole body and new force to the nerves. Scott's Emulsion will do it; contains just what the worn-out system needs.

Rich blood, healthy flesh, resistive force, more and better nourishment are what Scott's Emulsion supplies to the convalescent.

We'll send you a sample free upon request. SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl Street, New York.

GRADE YOUR WOOL

A. H. SUNDERMAN MAKES STIRRING SPEECH TO SHEEPMEN.

Buyers Should Not be Allowed to Take Choice Lots and Hammer Down Price—Wool Growers Should Sack Their Clip With More Care This Year—The Price is What the Grower Makes it.

Echo, March 10.—(To the Editor)—I wish to call your attention to a few things with respect to the present wool clips.

Already the would-be wool buyer is running over the country with his self-framed phrase, "Wool is three cents lower than last year." With him he also brings an entire catalogue of unfavorable circumstances, and would have you to believe them, after he has also presented them and also act upon them before he leaves.

You will remember how some of these same men were around last spring with the same stories and by virtue of the same induced many of you to sell your wool to them.

Then after turning their holdings over to the buyers of the east, at 1/2 profit returned to San Francisco and were "shentlemen" for the rest of the year, while you and I had the range question for the summer to fight, careless herders to pay, hay to buy, winter range to rent and pay high prices for, stand the loss of sheep, have all the trust on salt and sacks to meet, and now comes the taxes to pay—$20 for every $1,000 worth of sheep you have worked with.

Now, for the benefit of the wool industry of the county and state, why not keep the wool unsold until the Woolgrowers Association offers the wool for sale. This would keep these men from establishing a precedent by which all following sales would be gauged.

If the men must have wool let them meet the woolgrowers on the day when the wool is for sale, it will be much cheaper for them. They can see more wool in one hour, than they would by running over the country for a month.

Let them place themselves on the floor and bid with the "Boston man." It will make things more pleasant than to stop work at home, and listen to the ring of the low price tune.

Some may think this brow-beating is a good business. It may be for some, but it needs fixing and will be fixed in a few years if things continue.

Now the above is not so much what I wanted to say.

This is my object in writing, viz: I want to call your attention to "How" you offer your wool.

Had you listened to the speech made by Mr. Hardin, president of the Manufacturers Association of Boston, while in Portland in January, you would put up your wool with more care than you have in the past.

Let the shearer do his work with care. Don't let him merely practice on your sheep to see how many he can butcher in a day and then throw the fleece over the fence and the string after it. Make him shear the sheep good; keep your tags in a separate sack if you must sell them.

Grade the coarse from the fine at the time of shearing and put both in the sacks clean and well bound so if one buyer should not want it, you will not be ashamed to show your goods to another.

Keep out the old shoddy mattresses like have been found in sacks. It will pay you to put it up with care.

The outlook for price is as good as last year if you make it so.

The woolgrower is to blame for low prices, at times himself, for if you get a buyer to guessing at how much dirt you have in the sack, he always will guess in his own favor.

Mr. Hardin voiced this fact in his speech at Portland, he said "I have in mind several men in Oregon whose wool, I have bought in the past, and if they are present, and will say that their wool is as good as it has been, I will pay them as good, if not a better price than I have in the past."

Yours respectfully, A. H. Sunderman.

Do You Want Strength?

If you want to increase your strength you must add to not take from the physical. In other words, the food that you eat must be digested, assimilated and appropriated by the nerves, blood and tissues before being expelled from the intestines. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure adds to the physical. It gives strength to and builds up the human system. It is pleasant to the taste and palatable, and the only combination of digestants that will digest the food and enable the system to appropriate all of its health and strength-giving qualities. Sold by Tallman & Co.
