TO BE BUILT AT ONCE

ALL-DAY ELECTRICITY
BY FIRST OF OCTOBER.

Much Depends Upon the Condition of the Roads, and the Company Hopes for Co-operation by the County—Power for the Plant Will Be Transmitted Through a 48-Inch Hydraulic Main.

The engineers for the Washington & Oregon Power Company have been sent out to the site of the proposed power station on the south fork of the Walla Walla, and in a short time the work on the station construction will be begun and rushed forward to completion as fast as possible. It is the intention of the company to have the all-day current into Pendleton by the first of October. Whether or not it will be possible to do this will depend on the condition of the roads, and the facility with which the company can get their material on the ground.

The company is intending to put in a 48-inch hydraulic main from the river, several miles above the location of the power station, in which the water for the plant will be brought down the river to the machinery. All of this heavy piping and the electric generators and engines must be hauled in over the roads to the power house, and it is the desire of the company to co-operate with the county to make a good road out of Milton and Walla Walla to the power house. The Walla Walla-Milton road is now in good shape for a part of the way, but for several miles near the power house it is in bad shape, and nothing heavy can be hauled over it.

The company has proposed to the county that it will put as much money into the construction of a road as the county on its side will be willing to spend, and Horace Walker made a trip into the country a day or so ago to look into the conditions and see if the proposition was one which could be sanctioned by the county. From present indications the county will be willing to co-operate, especially as many of the citizens of that part of the county are desirous of having the road improved.

THE WADE AUCTION

A. R. BURFORD BIDS IN EN-TIRE LUMP OF GOLCONDA.

J. F. Robinson Bids in Fine Aeolian Orchestral for Masonic Lodge for $350—150,680 Shares of Red Boy Sell for $220—One-half Interest in 240 Acres Heat Brings $800.

The personal property of the Wade estate was sold today at auction in front of the Commercial stables. A large number of persons from all over the country who were interested in the sale were present to bid on what was put up.

The library was the first thing that was put under the hammer, and brought some very good prices. The total amount realized from the sale of the books was $388.25, and some of the books went at figures as good if not better than new. It would have been possible to have secured some of the same books in as good condition as those sold today but at much lower prices in the second-hand stores of Portland, or any of the cities.

Details of the Sale.

The Golconda stock was bid in by A. R. Burford, of the First National Bank of Walla Walla, for $7,270. Wade owned more than one million shares of this stock and the bank covered the whole lot with their one bid.

The Red Boy stock of 150,680 shares was sold to N. C. Richardson for $220. The rest of the large bunches and bundles of mining and other stock was sold at any old figure. Some of it brought a fair price as live stock, while the rest brought a fair price as any kind of stock.

The Aeolian orchestra was purchased by J. F. Robinson, who bid for the Knights Templar and secured the instrument for $350. It will be placed in Masonic hall for the use of the order. A one-half interest in 240 acres of growing wheat sold for $800 to James Snyder and the fine buggy used by Mr. Wade sold for $150.

At the time of going to press the last bits of the mining stock and other papers held by the managers of the estate were being sold, preparatory to the auctioning of the horses, and farming implements and buggies.

The horses are not in the condition for a sale that could be desired by one who would wish to get money from the transaction, but judging from the spirit displayed during the day it is very probable that they will realize all that they are worth.

The sale was adjourned 3:45 this afternoon until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the O. K. feed yards.

STAND FOR UMATILLA.

Milton Wheat and Fruitraiser Tires of Giving Walla Walla All the Credit.

"I think it is high time for Umatilla county to assert her individuality," said Tassie Stewart, the prominent wheat and fruitraiser of Milton, to the East Oregonian, a short time ago.

"Umatilla county raises the best wheat in the West, and is not listed on the markets of the world, as a wheat district. All the market reports contain the name of Walla Walla wheat and Walla Walla fruit, while Umatilla county produces a goodly supply of the wheat and fruit that reaches the markets of the world under the head of Walla Walla products.

"We should insist on having a separate place in the market for Umatilla county products. The county holds the record of having produced one per cent of the entire wheat crop of the United States, in the year 1897, and yet all this immense crop was marketed under the head of Walla Walla wheat.

"It will only require a little diligence and a little persuasion on the part of wheat and fruitraisers in our county to secure a fixed place in the markets for our products, as Umatilla county products, and home pride, at least should actuate us to do that much to advertise our county.

"If we insist on labeling our products as Umatilla county products, it will only be a matter of a few years until this county will be as widely known in the market quotations as Walla Walla."
