Trees Planted and Christened and I was advised to use ning. The Arbor Day exercises at Pendleton academy were conducted yes-terday with great interest. The de-partment of agriculture furnished six trees, which were planted and christened by the different grades in the academy, with appropriate ceremonies.

The graduating class of fourth year pupils planted a horse chestnut, which was christened William C. Cusick, for the well known botanist of Union by that name, who had fur-nished the academy with a total of 1,600 botanical specimens from the flora of Oregon; the third year pupils W. A. B.
