MORMON TITHES AMOUNT TO MILLIONS

Every Latter Day Saint pays his tithing, a tenth of his salary, his crops or the value of the increase in his livestock, but some Mormons do not. Contrary to the general belief outside Mormonism the paying of tithing is not compulsory.

A man can be a Mormon and not surrender a tenth of his earnings for the "upbuilding of the kingdom of God," but if he does not pay his tithing he does not come in for any of the "blessings and privileges." He cannot be married in the mysterious great temple; he cannot enjoy the full fellowship in the church—he is somewhat of an outsider. Consequently the majority pay their tithing. Those who do not are looked upon as being on the road to apostasy.

From figures recently given by the Mormon church, this organization numbers 317,500 possible tith-payers. Roughly estimated the membership of the church in the various states is as follows: Utah 200,000, Idaho 40,000, Arizona 8,000, Wyoming 6,000, Colorado 3,000, Old Mexico, 2,500, Oregon 1,000, Canada 4,000, New Mexico 500, Nevada 1,500, Montana 1,000, foreign countries 5,000.

For the sake of arriving at some idea of the income of the Mormon church from this source it would be a conservative estimate to say that the average per capita for 12 months would be $10 per head, or $3,175,000 for the entire church.

That is as near as any one can get to it. None but Bishop Preston, who has charge of the tithing receipts, and the first presidency and twelve apostles know just what the income of the church is.

No statement is ever given to the faithful. The Mormon pays his tithing, and that ends it. What becomes of the money is known to but few. The Mormon church pays practically no salaries to any of its ministers.

The assertions made by some writers that President Joseph Smith gets an annual allowance from the church funds of $50,000 is entirely without foundation. He does not even get $5,000. He and the apostles receive a salary from the fact that they devote all their time and attention to the work of the church.

The son of one of the leading apostles is the authority for the statement that the apostles get the princely salary of no less than $2,500 a year, while some of the bishops get $500 a year.

All the wealth of the church roughly estimated, is placed at $50,000,000 and is under the control of President Joseph F. Smith as trustee for the church. At every conference of the saints he is sustained in this position by the vote of the people. They have implicit trust in their leader and never ask for an account of his stewardship. Some have done so, but their curiosity was squelched.

The policy of the Mormon church from the beginning has been "Home Industries," build up institutions that will give work for our own people.
Hence it is that the Mormon church is in business on a large scale.

The various leading industries of the state of Utah, with perhaps the exception of that of mining, are practically owned and operated by the Mormon church. They are incorporated and on the board of directors to be found the names of apostles and church dignitaries.

Millions of dollars are invested in Utah and Idaho in sugar factories.
The Utah Sugar Company has as its president Joseph F. Smith. Again the church has the control of the street car, electric light and power privileges in Salt Lake, a corporation that represents nearly $10,000,000.

Then it owns and operates a railroad and a big pleasure resort, representing nearly $500,000. The big Z. C.
M. L. (Zion's Co-operative Mercantile Institution), with its huge department store and wholesale business together with branches throughout Utah and Idaho, is practically owned by the church, to say nothing of a huge shoe and overall factory, woolen mills, knitting factory, three banks, implement houses, flocks and herds, ranches and meeting houses, among which the big Salt Lake temple alone represents over $3,500,000.

MONEY IN USELESS FENCES.

Pendleton is estimated to have over 100 miles of fences valued at $150,000.

A man who has given the subject some attention, estimates that there is fully 100 miles of fences of all kinds, from the costly iron and stone fence to the cheap board fence in the city limits of Pendleton. This fencing is estimated to cost an average of $1,500 per mile, which would be a moderate guess, owing to the great amount of costly fencing in the residence districts.

This would be a total of $150,000 invested in absolutely useless material, if the laws regulating stock were enforced as they should be.

STOCK LOSSES VERY LIGHT.

Two Per Cent Loss of Cattle in Southern Umatilla County.

J. Davis, the pioneer farmer and stockman from Willow Springs, near Ridge, has been in the city for a couple of days, after having returned from Portland, where he purchased a stock of goods for his new store at his farm.

Mr. Davis has been a close observer of the stock conditions in that district during the past winter, and estimates the loss of cattle in southern Umatilla county at 2 per cent.

Feed was plentiful, but some stock starved in the winter very poor and during the rough weather just before the opening of spring, a few head of cattle on the breaks of the river died, but the loss was very light.

Further south in Grant county he says the loss is estimated at from 6 to 8 per cent, but no greater. If anything even less than this. Cattle are in fine condition now and lamb-ing is now in progress among the large herds of sheep.

noted in the reports from this part of the country in the first part of April.

During the week there has been just enough rain to note, but not enough to measure, and the present indications are that more will fall during the week to come.
