Who loves, forgets himself, oppresses not. The one he loves; doth more than clothe and feed, And find a shelter for his mate. He doth Consult her wishes, honor her, respect Her feelings as they were his own. True love Sustains the mind and makes the spirit thrive; Uplifts the earthly toward the spiritual part. It makes the dullest clod a thing of life; Its presence fills the darkest hut with light. Illumes its walls of clay. It silvers o'er The wooden spoon and gilds the gourd with gold.

—From "The New Pandora," by Harriet H. Robinson.

Country boys are rushing to the city as rapidly as scanty openings are found for a livelihood. But this rush is entirely offset by the rush of professional men to the refreshing life of the country, as fast as they accumulate means with which to purchase country homes.

The local option and direct primary amendments to be voted upon at the coming election are not confined to any party. Like the initiative and referendum and the popular vote for senator, they belong to the masses and will be accepted regardless of the party lines that may be drawn.

The amateur baseball games with which the season has been opened in Pendleton have been characterized by disgraceful fights and the public will soon tire of these trimmings. Let us have more good ball and less disorder. In neither case have the teams been responsible for the disorder, but the public will soon come to blame them for it if it is countenanced.

The failure of the cattlemen to hold a state convention in Portland as advertised last Saturday, was particularly unfortunate. It shows a weakness in the industry in this state that does not actually exist. While the cattlemen are progressive and aggressive in fighting for their rights and interests, they undervalue the importance of organization. It is significant to mention that not a single scheduled meeting of the sheepmen's association has ever gone by default. It pays to meet and discuss your interests. It pays to maintain an organization. The market is organized against you, and you stand unprotected and helpless.

The alarming increase of immorality in the large cities and the brazen effrontery which it assumes in the midst of homes and business spheres, should cause parents to shudder for their families. Within the past week six apparently reputable employment agencies in Spokane, all occupying elegant quarters in the business center of the city, have been discovered in the darkest and foulest traffic known to human vultures—that of procuring young girls for dance halls. These parasites move in respectable circles. Some of them even affiliate with church organizations, and yet hidden away in the busy circles of the great city they carry on a trade that causes the parent to cry out with indignation. These foul dens should be ferreted out and barred from the city. The monsters engaged in this debasing business should even be hanged, in order to protect society from their lecherous touch and presence. Thinking of this awful influence tearing down homes, eating away the vitals of social life and blasting innocent human lives, how can a good citizen in any community consent in his conscience to permit open gambling and invite the train of evils that follow it? How can you encourage social hell by inviting the loathsome class that makes the business of the procurer possible? No matter who is the official or who is the criminal, the parents of every community should guard the lives in their keeping.

A newspaper may wear out its windmill pumping hot air about this man and that man, boosting the town and defending the people; it may print column after column of complimentary notices and pour out pages of free advertisement of town and country and not one citizen in 10 takes any notice of it. But let one line of just criticism on some public favorite appear, or let it print a few words in arraignment of some set principle, and floods of censure are poured down upon it. All its services in behalf of the individual and the community are forgotten and only its single imagined error is remembered. So the only thing to do is to go on pumping hot air, oil your own windmill, boost everybody, be sociable and save up enough to buy a lot in one corner of the cemetery. The undertaker and the minister will do the rest.

That the policy of Assessor C. P. Strain is unreservedly and unqualifiedly indorsed by the people, is proved by the fact that not a word of objection is raised to his assessment now in progress. Although the heavy state appropriations of last year made an extraordinary burden on the taxpayer, they understood that the assessor was not responsible for those appropriations and that the assessment made last year, in which valuations were equalized, laid the foundation for lower taxes in Umatilla county, after the appropriations are paid off. Mr. Strain brought property to light that had never been assessed before. He discovered cash, notes and accounts that had always escaped their share of the burden. His raise of railroad values to a basis fixed by their earning capacity and equal to the values of other classes of property, has given the state of Washington a living precedent which her assessors will cheerfully follow in making their assessments this year. Compare 34 mills in Umatilla county on a valuation of $9,000,000, to 66 mills in Baker county on a valuation of about $5,000,000, and you have an argument in favor of Mr. Strain's assessment that cannot be refuted. The best proof of its justice and popularity is the entire satisfaction with which the taxpayer views it.

Senator Beveridge says there will be no more postoffice investigations this year. Beveridge is a member of the committee on postoffices and knows what he is talking about. So far the efforts of ferreting out postal frauds have been highly satisfactory to the people. The task is not half completed. Every step so far made in the investigation has revealed some new form of fraud from some unexpected quarter. There is no reason for suspending investigation now. If the people's money is being stolen through official dishonesty, it is the duty of the president and congress to pursue the investigations and bring the thieves to justice, although it is a presidential election year. To stop the investigations now will be to admit that the president is afraid the revelations will hurt somebody. To break off in the midst of a highly fruitful search for fear of exposing some still higher official is the rankest brand of cowardice. The people demand that the rottenness in the postoffice department be exposed and checked. They demand that the administration show its good intentions by fearlessly pursuing this official rascality through the very jaws of a presidential election. To stop now is to admit that still greater frauds are hidden away in the meshes of the department. To stop now is to admit that this campaign against fraud was started simply for effect, only to be discontinued before it damaged the political chances of anybody big.

We Shall Buy a Million Bottles of Liquozone and Give Them to the Sick.

We have purchased for $100,000 the American rights to Liquozone. We thus control the only way to kill germs in the body and end a germ disease. We want the sick to know this product, and at once. So we make this remarkable offer. We will buy a million 50c bottles and give them to a million sick ones. Will you—if you need it—let us buy one for you?

Costs $500,000.

We publish this offer in every great newspaper in America. The cost of the offer, we expect, will reach $500,000. We pay that price because it seems the only way to quickly let the sick know what Liquozone does.

The greatest value of Liquozone lies in the fact that it kills germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. And no man knows another way to do it. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. Every physician knows that medicine is almost helpless in any germ disease.

Liquozone does in germ troubles what all the drugs, all the skill in the world, cannot do without it. It cures diseases which medicine never cures.

Acts Like Oxygen.

Liquozone is the result of a process which men have spent over 20 years in perfecting. Its virtues are derived solely from gas, made in large part from the best oxygen producers. By a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time, these gases are made part of the liquid product.

The result is a product that does what oxygen does. Oxygen gas, as you know, is the very source of vitality. Liquozone is a vitalizing tonic with which no other known product can compare. But germs are vegetables; and Liquozone—like an excess of oxygen—is deadly to vegetable matter. Yet this wonderful product which no germ can resist, is to the human body, the most essential element of life.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone kills the germs, wherever they are, and the results are inevitable. By destroying the cause of the trouble, it invariably ends the disease, and forever.
