WITH MARGARITA FISCHER.
Well Known Actor Comes to the Frazer Tonight in Thrilling Drama.
 William H. Morgan is another "Bonny Baira." He was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, descending from a line of famous people. His grandfather at one time, was the owner of eight large theaters in Scotland, of course Mr. Morgan got his training right at home. Later wishing to prove to himself whether he would be able to make good under less lenient management, he went to London.
 He soon found that he could stand alone making quite a success in a piece called "Newmarket" produced by Willie Edwin, from there he went to the Drury Lane theater, and was there nearly four years, appearing in numerous parts, and acting as stage manager at the same time.
 In the latter capacity he took several pieces on the road and from the Drury Lane, doing well with all. When he was 17 Mr. Morgan played the principal part in the "Duchess of Coorgardie." He understudied Shine, Da Leno, Robert Payton and several other of the stage celebrities of the continent.
 Just a short time ago he decided to cross the Atlantic. On a chance after arriving in this country, he joined the "Lord Strathmore" company, which opened in New York, and toured the United States. At the close of the season he accepted an offer to go to Dawson, Y. T., for the summer. Upon his return he joined the Margarita Fischer company, and will be seen during their engagement at the Frazer opera house three nights, commencing tonight.

NEW TARGET RANGE

Will Be Close to the River. With Targets Set at the Base of a Bluff—Will Be Used as a Practice Ground for Two Months Every Summer—Will Be Flanked by Camping Site and Parade Grounds.

Major Irwin and Captain Armstrong, of Fort Walla Walla, are in town this afternoon, and tomorrow morning will go to the reservation with Agent Wilkins, to pick out a site for a target range.

Major Walsh, of Walla Walla, was over the ground last year with a detachment in search of suitable grounds for a range, and from his report a place will now be selected.

There is one place, selected by the officers and approved by the Indians, who held a meeting yesterday and gave their permission. It is a tract above Bingham Springs station, on the Umatilla river.

The range as it is the intention of the officers to lay them out, will be about 1,000 yards long and 100 yards wide. The place will be so laid out that the target base will rest against one of the bluffs, in order that no shots will go astray.

It is necessary that the grounds be near the railroad, so it will be easy to transport the troops and supplies for their use with as little trouble as possible, and in the grounds that have been selected all these conditions have been met.

When the location has been definitely settled, troops will be detailed from the fort to prepare the grounds, which will in the future be used two months out of the year. About half the troops at the fort will be sent to the grounds at a time, and will be kept there about a month. When they have been put through their practice they will be returned and the other half will be sent for their practice.

Considerable work must be done before the range is ready for use. The underbrush and trees must be cleared away, the ground leveled up a little and the target end of the grounds made ready. Besides this, a place for camp must be chosen and prepared, a parade ground laid out, and many little details attended to.

The establishment of the range at Bingham Springs means that all the troops taken to and from the fort will pass through Pendleton; that in all probability the soldiers will be purchased here, and that this place will share with Walla Walla the profit of being a base of supplies for a military camp.
