O Life, how pleasant is thy morning,
Young Fancy's rays the hills adorning,
Cold, pausing caution's lesson scorned,
We frisk away
Like school boys at the expected warning
To joy and play.

Some lucky, find a flowery spot
For which they never toiled nor swat,
They drink the sweet and eat the fat—
No care or pain!
And haply eye the humble hut
With high disdain!

While others like your humble servant
Poor wights! Nae rules nor roads observin',
To right and left eternal swervin'
They zig-zag on!
Till, curs'd with age, obscure and starvin'
They aften groan!
—Robert Burns.

The Russians would rather admit that the loss of the Petroplovsk was due to Russian carelessness than to Japanese strategy and if it does them any good, they are welcome to the uncton. The main fact remains that there is one warship and 800 men less for the Japs to watch and destroy by inches.

The investigation into the disaster on the warship Missouri in which 21 Americans lost their lives, proves that the general order and supervision on that vessel was deficient. While gunners are supposed to know their business and be able to act judiciously, it is evident that the excitement of the target practice led them to risk their lives and the safety of the vessel and the official supervision was not strict enough to check them in their disastrous enthusiasm. The explosion on the Missouri was caused by the ignition of a charge of powder put in the gun too soon after the previous discharge, and while the gun was yet smoking hot from the rapid firing. Strict discipline and able supervision on board would have foreseen this perilous practice and prevented it. Captain Cowles was proven unfit for the position in the collision between the Missouri and the Texas some weeks ago, and although he is a brother-in-law, President Roosevelt should not have raised his hand against his dismissal or retirement to a position of less importance. Roosevelt's interference made Cowles feel secure no matter what the cost and this is the result.

From the present indication, there will be a bolt from the democratic national convention. The Hearst campaigners are firm in their determination to have Hearst, and the anti-Hearst people seem equally as determined not to have him. If this same unbending policy is carried into the convention, no compromising measure can prevent a bolt of one side or the other. Hearst's delegates are for Hearst even at the cost of harmony and if the opposing delegates are determined to take party disruption rather than Hearst, the prospect is anything but encouraging. Democracy does not consist in seeking office, anyway. There is a higher duty for the leaders to perform than that of distributing empty honors. There is the appalling concentration of wealth in the hands of the few, the defiant violation of the sacred laws of the land, the intricate systems of official corruption, glimpses of which have been caught in the postal department, reach through the entire fabric of the government, and the masses are taxed more and more every year to bear up under these burdens of fraud and extravagance. There is something for somebody to do. No matter who unearths the hidden sources of this brazen corruption, he will be hailed as a benefactor. One-man power and one-party politics always goes to the limit of selfish aggrandizement in time. There must be a balancing power, a check on selfishness, to keep all organized government spotless from the grafter and the spoilsman.

A sweet girl widow was in this office last night, seeking aid in finding her recreant husband who left her penniless and decamped with another girl after two months of wedded life. Her story was as pitiful as her appearance. She was a gay school girl such a short time ago. Her home was happy and overflowing with comforts. She met her hero in a street corner flirtation. His hair was parted in the middle of his head, a golf cap was tilted on one side of his baboon brow, a cigarette was hanging between his teeth and his red cravat was so brilliant that a wild bull would have been attracted to it through a dozen fences. At their first chance meeting he winked and she sniggered. The next time they met he walked home with her. The next week he hung on the schoolyard fence. The next week the old man ordered him off the premises and the next week they eloped. This week she comes back a sad-eyed widow, searching for her empty-headed, empty-hearted husband who was attacked with another sudden love spasms and left her, after a couple of months fruitless effort to starve her to death. It is the same old street flirtation over again. It is the same weak-willed girl and infamous idler. From such matrimonial grists hell itself is ground out in large chunks.

There is only one "Golden Rule" Jones. There is not room enough in Ohio for another like him. His popularity fills the state and slops out over the nation. As a practical illustration of his "golden rule" principles he has just made a present of $10,000 worth of stock in one of his factories to his employees, to use for their own comfort and pleasure. He believes in happiness and independence in the homes of workmen as well as in the homes of employers. He believes in justice between man and man the world over. He believes that nature's bounties are intended for the human family. He believes that nature underlaid Ohio with stratas of coal and oceans of oil for the use of humanity and not alone for the edification of the barons and

CLEANLY WOMAN.

Erroneously Thinks by Scouring Her Scalp That She Cures Dandruff.

Cleanly woman has an erroneous idea that by scouring the scalp, which removes the dandruff scales, she is curing the dandruff. She may wash her scalp every day, and yet have dandruff her life long, accompanied by falling hair, too. The only way in the world to cure dandruff is to kill the dandruff germ, and there is no hair preparation that will do that but Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide by killing the dandruff germ, leaves the hair free to grow as healthy Nature intended. Destroy the cause you remove the effect. Kill the dandruff germ with Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

the syndicates. As a practical test of his socialistic principles, he will gradually distribute the stock in some of his industries to his employees, that they may feel the thrill of ownership and know the joy of an income independent of their daily toil. This is not practical outside of the matchless disposition of "Golden Rule" Jones. No one expects a better condition to come to humanity through a division of earnings—but improvement must come through laws that distribute the opportunities more justly than now.

WHAT IS AN AUTOMOBILE?

The absorbing question whether an automobile is a hack or an animal will probably be carried to the supreme court of the United States. On a great question like this the court may be expected to divide four against four with a cautious separate opinion by the fifth judge showing that since it has wheels it is a hack, but that, having its propelling power within itself, it is an animal, and that, in equity, it is perhaps a hybrid. An experienced old woman said it was always possible to decide when indigo was good or bad. Just put it in a cup of water; if it was bad it would either sink or swim, and she had forgotten which. Many of the decisions of our courts are a toss-up, since honest and learned judges differ, as do other people.—Salem Statesman.

GRIP CONVALESCENCE

There's nothing better than Scott's Emulsion after the grip. When the fever is gone the body is left weak and exhausted; the nervous system is completely run down and vitality is low.

Two things to do: give strength to the whole body and new force to the nerves. Scott's Emulsion will do it; contains just what the worn-out system needs.

Rich blood, healthy flesh, resistive force, more and better nourishment are what Scott's Emulsion supplies to the convalescent.
