ROBBERY AT HOTEL

SNEAK THIEF ENTERS THE HOTEL PENDLETON.

No Clue to the Burglar, Who Secured Cash, Keys and Checks, Entering George Van Dran's Room While He Was Yet Awake—Performance Responsible for Much Annoyance, as Well as Loss.

Some one entered the room occupied by George Van Dran, one of the proprietors of the Hotel Pendleton, last night, and carried away his trousers, containing about $55 in gold, $3 or $4 in silver and in the neighborhood of $250 in bank deposit checks, besides the keys to the cash register, the safe and the wine room. There is no clue as to who the thief might be.

Mr. Van Dran, who is on the night shift at the hotel, went up to his room for a short nap this morning about 1 o'clock, and went to bed. Shortly after getting into bed he heard some one enter his room and heard his keys rattle, but thought that it was Casper, his brother, who was taking them for some legitimate purpose, and so paid no attention.

When the sleeper arose this morning he found that not only the keys, but the whole outfit had been taken and he immediately instituted inquiries, thinking that some of the traveling men at the house in league with his brother, were playing a joke on him. It soon became apparent that it was no joke, and a search is now under way.

The management of the hotel and the officers have no clue upon which to proceed, as no one was seen about the house upon whom suspicion could rest.

WILL MEET DAVENPORT.

Webfoot Club of Friends and Admirers of the Cartoonist Will Escort Him From Train.

The friends and admirers of Homer Davenport will meet at the office of the East Oregonian tomorrow evening at 5:30 for the purpose of going in a body to the O. R. & N. depot, to greet the famous Oregonian, who has written the name of Oregon on all the barn doors and yard fences of the world.

He will drive 45 miles tomorrow to catch a train to make a date at Pendleton, hoping in this way to make amends for having disappointed his admirers here three years ago through unavoidable business arrangements. His houses in every city are filled to overflowing. Seats in this city were nearly all taken during the first few hours of the sale and the theater will be filled tomorrow night, in a way that it has never been filled before.

His inimitable stories cannot be repeated with the droil effect that his natural humor puts into them. His anecdotes have a local coloring and this is to be the climax of entertainments in Pendleton this year. E. A. Pond, business manager for Mr. Davenport, is in the city, and has all arrangements made for his reception.

DEATH OF CHARLES D. HUSON.

Took Place This Morning at San Bernardino, Cal.

J. T. Hinkle, the representative of the L. M. Huson estate, is in receipt of a telegram from San Bernardino, Cal., telling of the death in that city of Charles D. Huson, formerly of Helix.

A little over a year ago the son went to California for his health, a bronchial trouble having become severe. After he had settled in California it was discovered that the malady had merged into consumption, from which he died this morning.

His mother, Mrs. Mary J. Huson, was with him at the time of his death.

A brother, Lewis E. Huson, was also at the bedside, having been called there a few days ago.

The mother and son with the remains of the dead boy, will leave for Walla Walla this evening, where the funeral will be held and interment made in the family burying ground in that city.
