ECHO ROYALLY ENTERTAINS
WITH A FARMERS' PICNIC

May Day is Appropriately Celebrated by the People of the Hospitalable Cannery Town.

O. R. & N. Company Furnishes Able Speaker—School Children Take Part in the Excellent Program—One Thousand People Enjoy the Best
Farmers' Dinner Ever Served in the County—School Teachers and Houseswomen of Eola Deserve Exonereal Credit for the High Success of the Entertainment—Addresses by Prominent Educators.

Two months ago the citizens of the community were the recipients of the wonderful gift of a $15,000 carriage and horse team, presented to the town by the O. R. & N. Company. This carriage is considered to be probably the finest and most expensive ever presented to a town in Oregon, and the beautiful vehicle has been presented to the town as the symbol of the highest of achievement and progress of the county.

In its beauty, its elegance, and in its value it is second only to the magnificent carriage and horse team that was presented to the town by the Oregon State Fair Association last year. The carriage is a beautiful example of the finest workmanship and is a credit to the town and to the O. R. & N. Company.

Many Western farmers farm just as they do in Arkansas, Iowa and Kansas, and the farmers of the county are just as contented as the farmers of these states. They have the same problems, the same hopes and the same dreams, and they are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of these states.

The farmers of the county are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of Arkansas, Iowa and Kansas, and they are just as contented as the farmers of these states. They have the same problems, the same hopes and the same dreams, and they are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of these states.

The farmers of the county are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of Arkansas, Iowa and Kansas, and they are just as contented as the farmers of these states. They have the same problems, the same hopes and the same dreams, and they are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of these states.

The farmers of the county are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of Arkansas, Iowa and Kansas, and they are just as contented as the farmers of these states. They have the same problems, the same hopes and the same dreams, and they are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of these states.

The farmers of the county are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of Arkansas, Iowa and Kansas, and they are just as contented as the farmers of these states. They have the same problems, the same hopes and the same dreams, and they are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of these states.

The farmers of the county are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of Arkansas, Iowa and Kansas, and they are just as contented as the farmers of these states. They have the same problems, the same hopes and the same dreams, and they are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of these states.

The farmers of the county are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of Arkansas, Iowa and Kansas, and they are just as contented as the farmers of these states. They have the same problems, the same hopes and the same dreams, and they are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of these states.

The farmers of the county are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of Arkansas, Iowa and Kansas, and they are just as contented as the farmers of these states. They have the same problems, the same hopes and the same dreams, and they are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of these states.

The farmers of the county are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of Arkansas, Iowa and Kansas, and they are just as contented as the farmers of these states. They have the same problems, the same hopes and the same dreams, and they are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of these states.

The farmers of the county are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of Arkansas, Iowa and Kansas, and they are just as contented as the farmers of these states. They have the same problems, the same hopes and the same dreams, and they are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of these states.

The farmers of the county are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of Arkansas, Iowa and Kansas, and they are just as contented as the farmers of these states. They have the same problems, the same hopes and the same dreams, and they are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of these states.

The farmers of the county are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of Arkansas, Iowa and Kansas, and they are just as contented as the farmers of these states. They have the same problems, the same hopes and the same dreams, and they are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of these states.

The farmers of the county are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of Arkansas, Iowa and Kansas, and they are just as contented as the farmers of these states. They have the same problems, the same hopes and the same dreams, and they are just as proud of their farms as the farmers of these states.