VALUABLE POTATOES.

Story of the Origin of the E! Dorado "Spud in England.

The sheriff of Nottingham, Engand, of Robin Hood fame, figures in story and song as a great liar, and an official report which comes to Washington from Consul Mahin, at Nottingham, reads more like a fairy tale than anything else.

He states that one A. Findley, of Markinch, Scotland, is the originator of a wonderful potato, the El Dorado. The He has long been an expert in hybridization of tubers and tells this in his latest achievement. It is disease and drouth resistant and remarkably vigorous. The few potatoes which have been raised from two samples of seed given out by Mr. Findley have been sold at fabulous

One of the first recorded sales was Henry Thomson, night policeman, 10 small potatoes, weighing half a has mounted the two-headed calt, pound, for $486, or $48 for each po-brought to the city by Frank Lock-tato. At an auction sale of 14 of these potatoes, so wild did the bid Another case is recorded where one

El Dorado potato brought $560 and the purchaser immediately refused $1,000 for it. The record price thus far is $2.185 for one pound of these potatoes. Even at this prodigious figure, which works out at $5,000 a ton, the purchaser expects to reap a profit from the crop. Consul Mahin naively remarks that it will probably be some years before this potato can be marketed as an edible. Its reproductive capacity, however, is said to be great, some thing like 300 to 1.

A HORSE POWER.

Mooted Juestion Over Which Scientists Have Long Quibbled.

A subscriber asks if a 40 horse power engine has "the same power, whether attached to an automobile or is stationary The term horsepower is one in me chanics used in expressing the force of a motive. It is based on the assumption that horses in general perform a certain constant amount of work in a specified time—an assumption evidently erroneous,

The fundamental unit of work is the foot pound; but in measuring the work of a horse by this unit the esneers differ widely from each other; Boulton and Watt, basing their calculation on the work of London dray horses, working eight hours per day, estimated it at $3,000 foot day, estimated pounds per minute. D'Aubuisson, taking the work done by horses in whims at Friedberg, es timated the work, eight day, at 16,440 foot pounds. hours per Under similar circumstances the estimates of Desagulier was 44,000; Smeaton, 22,000, and Tregold, 27,500. It matters little, however, what number is assumed, provided the same be always used. Accordingly, the original estimate by Watt is still counted a horsepower.
